BIGGEST VOTE IN HISTORY OF STATE PRIMARY PLEDGED ROOSEVELT BY 140 CLUB LEADERS

TAX BILL RESCUED BY ADJOURNMENT ON CRISP'S APPEAL

Georgian's Firm Stand in Midst of Fiery-Tempered House Saves Day for Proponents of New Revenue Measure.

SOLONS APPLAUD PLEA OF LEADER

Nation Faces Crucial Hour, Declares Rainey in Warning Against Move to "Communism."

BY CECIL B. DICKSON.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Resorting to the only drastic means they could to save the billion-dollar tax bill, democratic leaders today summarily adjourned a fiery-tempered house amid the wildest scenes of late years.

The move, an effort to save the bill from complete destruction, came after opponents of a sales tax had triumphed anew in propositions opposed by the leadership of both parties.

The spectacular situation was led to a climax when the sponsor of the bill, Representative Crisp, of Georgia, took the floor in the middle of the afternoon after the third defeat and said—while many members stood applauding—that the house was not "in a proper frame of mind to legislate." He suggested it cool off until consideration is resumed Tuesday and moved adjournment.

Speaker Garner hurried into the chamber and resumed his gavel as members stood, some shouting and others holding to a quiet tension.

Seizing the opportunity, Majority Leader Rainey swept into the well and turned on his colleagues, pleaded for the bill and said:

Facing Crucial Hour.

"This is a crucial hour in the history of this republic and there are many of you who do not seem to realize it. We must balance the budget and we must balance it with real taxes and real money.

"This house, I realize, at present, is a runaway house. You are adopting measures here without proper consideration.

"You are opposed to communism and so am I. I want to maintain this government as it is, but let me tell you—during this congress, and you have put the capsheaf on all of it at the present time—we have made a longer step in the direction of communism than any other country in the world ever made except Russia."

It was after three hours of bitter debate that the bi-partisan foes of the sales tax, which forms the big part of the bill, had struck from it, by 139 to 103, a provision to allow American taxpayers credit for income levies paid to foreign governments.

Anti-Sales Tax Fight.

Led by Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, independent chieftain, and Doughton, democrat, North Carolina, the anti-sales tax group yesterday forced the war-time surtax rates into the bill with an increase to 7 per cent on incomes of more than $8,000 in a drive to replace the 2.25 per cent manufactures levy that is expected to yield $600,000,000. A vote on the sales tax bill will be reached next week.

Democratic and republican leaders decided to go down the line for the sales levy, as typified in support from Speaker Garner. In a statement, he said: "The supreme purpose of the pending tax bill is to enable the government to balance the budget. As the surest, soundest and most effective means to this vital end, the sales

Two Die in Suicide Pact In Rockdale Churchyard

Man, Woman Found Side by Side, Bullets Through Heads—Woman Leaves Note Urging Son To Marry.

LITHONIA, Ga., March 19.—Mrs. Estelle Capes, 34, and Charlie Weed, 43, died in the churchyard of Union Grove Baptist church, three miles east of here, at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in what officers declared was a "suicide pact." The woman, shot through the left temple, died instantly, while the man, with a bullet wound in his right temple, died an hour after the bodies were discovered, side by side, lying on a pile of lumber.

A .38 caliber pistol was by Weed's right hand, and it is believed he first shot the woman and then turned the gun on himself. The bodies were discovered by Mrs. Capes' 11-year-old daughter, Louise.

The woman left a note at her home before leaving to keep the rendezvous with death. It was addressed to her son by a former marriage, Gene Dutton, and to Miss Lucile Robinson, who has been living in the Capes home. The note read:

"Get married and take care of L. and H. I'm gone."

The L. and H. in the note referred to the younger children of Mrs. Capes, Louise, 11, and Harry, 7.

Mrs. Capes was the wife of Will Capes, but had been estranged from her husband for several years. She had been married twice.

Louise Capes, after the finding of the note, remembered overhearing her mother saying she was going to the churchyard to meet Weed. The child, hurrying there, heard one pistol shot, she said. She found the two bodies and immediately ran for help. Investigators said the death instrument was a five-chambered revolver and contained two empty shells and three loaded cartridges.

The site of the tragedy is just over the line in Rockdale county, and the sheriff of Rockdale took charge of the bodies. Inasmuch as there were no eyewitnesses to the tragedy, it was announced an inquest would be held Sunday.

Weed is survived by two small children, Charles, 11, and Melvin, 7; a brother and several other relatives. His wife died in May, 1931.

No arrangements for funeral or interment had been made Saturday night.

THEFT IS CHARGED TO EX-GOVERNOR

Lee Russell, of Mississippi, Is Jailed on $150 Embezzlement Charge.

NEW ORLEANS, March 19.—(AP)—An ex-governor of Mississippi, Lee M. Russell, spent the morning in a police station cell on charges of embezzling $150 paid for securities which his accusers said his company failed to deliver.

After noon, his counsel obtained bond of $1,000 and he was released after having spent several hours in the receiving cell with a conglomerate group of prisoners, including several negroes.

The ex-governor was arrested early today in his downtown office and hauled to the police station in a patrol wagon. He was treated as an ordinary prisoner, fingerprinted, measured and recorded. He was entered on the book "Lee M. Russell, alias ex-governor of Mississippi."

"I have nothing to say," was all Russell would say of the charges against him.

Capiases for the arrest of L. C. Cadenhead, president of the securities company, also were issued on the same charges, but police were unable to locate him during the morning and Adolph A. Ernst, of New Orleans, became bondsman for both Russell and Cadenhead. The bond, police said, would make it unnecessary to arrest Cadenhead.

The charges were made against the company officials by one of their salesmen, Louis A. Bloch, of New Orleans, who said he had been charged with embezzlement in St. Tammany parish, where he sold securities. He claimed his charges grew out of the failure to deliver securities for which he had collected $150 and turned the money over to Russell as secretary-treasurer. The original accusers were Steven C. Abney and Edward A. Anderson, of Abita Springs, La., who charged they had paid $100 and $50, respectively, for securities that they did not get.

Russell was governor of Mississippi from January, 1920, to January, 1924. His term was punctuated with a trial in federal court at Oxford, Miss., on charges filed against him by Miss Frances C. Birkhead, his stenographer, who brought suit for $100,000 on a charge of seduction.

The suit caused a political upheaval in Mississippi and resulted in former Governor Theodore G. Bilbo spending 10 days in jail at Oxford for refusal to testify in the case. Miss Birkhead lost her suit in December, 1922, after a long jury trial.

Bilbo, who had previously served as governor, came out of jail and announced for governor in a fiery speech from the jail steps. He was defeated then but was elected for a second time in 1928.

Cadenhead lived in Memphis in 1924 and a part of 1925 and while there married Miss Lynn Black. The Memphis Evening Appeal said they were divorced and remarried three times. He was divorced from his first wife in 1921.

MARSHAL'S OFFICE ABOLITION SOUGHT

Placing of Duties With Tax Assessors Asked by White, Millican.

Consolidation of the office of city marshal under that of the city tax assessors will be asked Monday as a feature of the council session, it was announced Saturday by John A. White, councilman from the fourth ward, who said that Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth, will join in the move.

White said the plan would not deprive J. Ben Daniel, city marshal, of any of his rights, since the consolidation would become effective January 1, 1933, and Danjel's term expires at that time. He asserted that he is backing the plan in the interest of efficiency and economy.

Among many other important matters to face council Monday will be the following:

1. Proposal of the bridge committee, headed by Councilman William M. Rogers, of the seventh ward, to award the contract for reconstruction of the Whitehall street viaduct to the Flagler Construction Company for $30,482.

2. Consideration of a resolution of the tax committee scoring an alleged "tax reduction" racket in which it is charged that commercial organizations are telling prospective clients that no reductions can be made unless their services are obtained in presenting the matter to tax assessors and the tax committee.

3. Report to council of the results of the recall election Tuesday in which Mayor James L. Key emerged victorious over a labor-prohibition coalition seeking to oust him. J. Henson Tatum, city clerk and registrar, will tell council 17,234 persons voted against the recall and 11,689 for it.

There has been much agitation for mergers and consolidations in the municipal government in the interest of economy and Millican has always led a fight for them.

Daniel has announced that he does not intend to become a candidate for re-election in the city primary, which probably will be held in June, and as the marshal's office was created by a council ordinance, White and Millican propose to concentrate the duties under the city tax assessors.

"We agree that the work could be handled more effectively and efficiently and that the public could be served better if all tax matters were in the hands of and under the direction of tax assessors and the tax committee of council," White said.

Councilman Rogers said his committee has decided to recommend award of the contract for rebuilding the Whitehall street viaduct because of reports of competent engineers that it is in a dangerous condition and should be replaced with a modern and safe structure at once.

Tax assessors said Saturday they have affidavits showing that four other firms in addition to the Taxpayers'

4 PER CENT BEER IS GIVEN APPROVAL BY SENATE GROUP

Majority Report Indorses Brew To "Promote Temperance and Decrease Crime" in U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—A bill to permit 4 per cent beer was reported favorably by a senate subcommittee today with a majority contending it would "promote temperance and decrease crime," while a minority held it would "add to enforcement difficulties."

The action laid the issue before the full manufactures committee, which is expected to decide whether to report it to the senate.

The measure, sponsored by Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, would amend the Volstead act to legalize the manufacture of beer containing not more than 4 per cent of alcohol by volume. It provides for sale only by brewers and dealers in the original package or case, except that the beer might be served in bottles by "legitimate hotels and restaurants."

Trio Favor Bill.

A majority report favoring the bill was signed by two of the three members of the subcommittee which conducted extensive hearings. They were Senators Metcalf, republican, Rhode Island, chairman, and Bulkley, democrat, Ohio. Senator Hatfield, republican, West Virginia, dissented.

The majority said 4 per cent beer is not intoxicating and that the bill would decrease crime and unemployment, promote temperance, assist agriculture, benefit the national finances and be practical in operation.

Hatfield differed with these conclusions, questioned the constitutionality of the measure and with reference to its practicability said:

"The national director of prohibition gave it as his opinion that as far as the difficulties of enforcement are concerned, this bill would almost immeasurably increase them"

Majority Report.

The majority report said in part:

"The effect of prohibition seems to have been the driving of people to hard liquors with a resultant increase in drunkenness, deaths from alcoholism and general lawlessness.

"The subcommittee believes the use of hard liquors would be greatly decreased if people were given an opportunity to purchase wholesome beer.

"This bill will promote the cause of real temperance.

"At this time the young people of the country are drinking dangerous, habitforming hard liquors . . . there is a strong tendency in all youth to try out whatever has a suggestion of being unusual or exciting. They have thus been led to the use of hard liquors, much of which would be curtailed with the legalization of wholesome beer.

"The wholesale crime and drunkenness which has grown out of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act has wrought terrible havoc in the dignity of law and the respect for its existence. A real moral crisis exists."

Speakeasy Influence.

The report said operators of large hotels had testified to loss of business to "speakeasies" and it contended that if the hotels were able to sell beer "many of the speakeasies, which breed contempt for law, would be driven out of existence."

The minority report said in part:

"It is a well-known fact that statistics of the arrests for drunkenness are misleading.

"Before the passage of the national prohibition act, no man was considered drunk who was able to walk or be take to his home.

"Today anyone showing the slightest evidence of intoxication, and in the case of automobile drivers, even if he has the smell of liquor on his breath but may be otherwise totally normal, is arrested and charged with drunkenness.

"It is common observation that drinking throughout the country at large has materially decreased since 1920.

"Modification of the existing law to permit the sale of beer would not satisfy the demands of those who desire the legalized sale of hard liquors as well.

"The measure, on the other hand, has the united opposition of the prohibition organizations and church boards interested in the prohibition of the liquor traffic."

Recession Is Noted In Harris' Condition

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—The condition of Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, suffering from a gland disorder, was described by hospital attendants today as not quite so good as earlier in the week. He was operated on some time ago and a second operation was performed recently.

Foster Courage Fund Reaches $316; Slayers Face Holdup Victims Today

As detectives arranged for a "line-up" this morning of the three negro suspects involved in the killing of Detective Frank C. Foster, who was shot to death last Wednesday night in defending a North Boulevard delicatessen shop against a holdup, citizens of Atlanta were paying tribute to the slain detective's courage in the "Courage Fund" started by The Constitution, which Saturday had reached a total of $316.

All donations to the fund are being listed by H. H. Trotti, treasurer of The Constitution, who is serving also as treasurer of the Foster "Courage Fund," and the money is being transferred to Mrs. Foster, the widow, for use toward the relief of the family left fatherless by the detective's death.

Persons desiring to recognize the sacrifice of the slain detective by making contributions to The Constitution's "Courage Fund" should call on Mr. Trotti at the cashier's office of The Constitution, on the first floor of the Constitution building.

This morning's "line-up" will be made in an effort to identify the three negro suspects as part of a negro bandit gang that has preyed on stores, druggists, cafes and pedestrians for the last several weeks. Those held in connection with the murder of Foster are Richard Sims, Richard Morris and John Wesley Peek. Sims and Morris, questioned Saturday in the office of Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, are alleged to have confessed their part in the attempted robbery of the delicatessen and the shooting of Foster, but Peek denies he took any part either in the robbery or in the fatal shooting. Attaches of the solicitor's office, however, say the statements of the other suspects have implicated Peek as a member of the gang.

A fourth member of the bandit gang was shot and fatally wounded by Foster while the detective lay dying on the floor. The fourth negro, known to be one of the actual killers of the detective, was Harold White, 16. Investigators say that White shot Fos-

STATE WILL PAVE 2 ROADS IN COUNTY

Negotiations for Highway Work To Be Completed at Conference.

Negotiations between Fulton county and the state highway board for the improvement of 17 miles of highway in this county will be completed Thursday in a conference with the highway board, County Commissioner Walter B. Stewart announced Saturday.

The projects, involving a cost of approximately $750,000, are the widening and resurfacing of Lee street from McCall's crossing to the Clayton county line, and the hard surfacing of 11 miles of Route 9 through Alpharetta from Roswell to the Forsyth county line.

Paving of the Alpharetta link in Route 9 will give a shorter highway from Atlanta to Gainesville, Stewart pointed out. The Lee street project will supply a broader and smoother traffic artery to the south, he said. Mr. Stewart, Walter C. Hendrix, chairman of the county public works committee; Clarke Donaldson, city chief of construction, and Chairman J. W. Barnett, of the highway board, are to confer Thursday. The proposed agreement involves the supplying of material by the state and labor by the county.

Four Reported Dead In Airliner Crash

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., March 19.—(AP)—Four persons were reported killed and a fifth injured tonight when a passenger plane, apparently en route from Phoenix, Ariz., to Los Angeles, struck a high-tension wire near Calimesa, and crashed in flames.

Nevada Regent Leads Gambling Repeal Move

RENO, Nev., March 19.—(AP)—Call for a meeting here in May to plan a referendum to repeal Nevada's law licensing gambling at the general election in November was issued today by Frank Williams, University of Nevada regent and former legislator.

"Gambling has brought no additional wealth to Nevada," he said. "Its licenses, state, county and local, are consumed in meeting the extra expense which its presence creates.

"It wrings $750,000 annually from Nevada people with no return but depleted pocket books, darkened homes and wasted lives."

A law legalizing gambling became effective March 20, 1931.

WHITES CONTROL G. O. P. IN COUNTY

Continuance of the recently established white control of the republican party in Georgia was assured Saturday in reports from various county conventions, according to J. W. Arnold, of Athens, national committeeman. Fulton county's convention, casting out negro leaders, elected white men to all posts on the county executive committee and named whites as a majority of the delegation to the fifth district convention.

In Savannah, black and tans made a strong bid against white leadership, 90 per cent of the Chatham convention being negroes, according to dispatches which said that the message of friendship from Josiah T. Rose,

KEITH'S TO MOVE INTO PARAMOUNT

Film House To Reopen Saturday; Georgia Will Show Pictures Only.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Formal announcement of the reopening of the Paramount theater was made Saturday by Ernest Morrison, division manager for Publix Theaters Corporation. At the same time R. B. Wilby, operator of a chain of motion picture theaters in the Carolinas, announced future plans for the Georgia theater, which he takes over under lease from the Publix organization.

The change will go into effect next Saturday.

The Paramount theater will show the same programs which have hitherto played at the Georgia, including the finest obtainable talking pictures, weekly programs of RKO vaudeville, the concert orchestra under direction of Conductor Adolph Kornspan, and other features. The theater will be under the management of E. E. Whitaker, now at the Georgia.

The new manager for the Georgia, beginning Saturday, will be Earl Holden, who has been affiliated with the Sparks theater interests in Florida. He has recently managed houses in West Palm Beach and Jacksonville.

The policy of the Georgia theater under operation by Mr. Wilby will be confined to first runs of the finest of talking picture productions. These will be chiefly from the studios of First National-Warner Brothers, with some

GREAT LANDSLIDE FOR ADOPTED SON BELIEVED CERTAIN

Officials of Roosevelt-for-President Groups Throughout State Meet. Cohen Names New Yorker as "Next President."

ATTACK ON G. O. P. LAUNCHED BY CAMP

Fulton Democrats Warned To Best in Themselves. Action of Al Smith Scored by Spalding.

BY R. E. POWELL.

Mounting enthusiasm fanned by a sense of deep loyalty to a fellow Georgian and a distinguished American public servant Saturday moved more than 140 Roosevelt-for-President clubs to pledge him a vote in Wednesday's primary second to none ever given a presidential candidate in Georgia.

Practically every leader of the democratic party in the state, and local leaders in 159 counties, agreed that his victory in Georgia would be greater than the four previously won, in the last few weeks in widely separated sections of the country.

In Atlanta, at a meeting of the Fulton county Roosevelt club, Major John S. Cohen, national committeeman, asserted that a representative vote in Georgia next Wednesday "names the next president of the United States. Failure to get that vote out might seriously endanger the chances of a man now destined to be the next president.

"If we fail in Fulton to roll up a great majority, I shall be heartily shamed," Major Cohen said. "The rest of the state is safe."

Spalding Scores Combination.

Writing W. E. Page, director of the Roosevelt campaign in Georgia, from Miami, Fla., where he is spending a few weeks, Colonel Jack J. Spalding, well-known Atlanta attorney, public-spirited citizen and outstanding democrat, said, "It is evident that there is a combination in existence to nominate a candidate by the democratic party who will be controlled by the same financial and favored interests that control President Hoover."

"If Governor Roosevelt can be defeated and such a candidate put upon the party," said Colonel Spalding, "then these interests are perfectly indifferent as to which is elected."

Colonel Spalding expressed surprise and disappointment over the position which former Governor Alfred E. Smith is taking against Governor Roosevelt and said he would have more respect for him if he came out "square-toed" with the proposition that he wants the nomination rather than play the role he is now enacting in connection with blocking Governor Roosevelt's nomination.

"I may attach too much importance to gratitude and it may be that this does not obtain in politics," said Colonel Spalding.

In a spirited attack on the last three republican administrations, Law-

Centenary of Great World Poet Occasion of Many Celebrations

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—To honor the great name of Goethe, more than 3,000 persons filled Carnegie hall to its topmost gallery and overflowed onto the platform tonight in part of a worldwide observance of the centenary of the writer's death.

A distinguished list of artists, including Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Elisabeth Rethberg, Walter Kirchhoff and the United Singers of New York, who were celebrating jointly their 50th anniversary, contributed their talents to the program.

From the University of Breslau, Germany, Professor Eugen Kuehnemann came to eulogize in German the name of John Wolfgang Von Goethe.

The chairman and president of the Goethe Society of America, Dr. Emanuel De Marnay Baruch, spoke impartially in German and English, following the lead of each performer.

"While Europe still considered America a barbarous, far-away country, Goethe showed a deep appreciation of America and hailed it in song and word," said Dr. Baruch. "Goethe was read by Lincoln and by Washington."

"Above all things, Goethe was a poet of harmony, of beauty, rooted in reality, his feet firmly planted on the ground, his head, his spirit, touching the stars.

"He is a poet of love of all life, and when he was a man of 80 he still wrote, 'however it may be, life is good.'

"He is a great and universal personality, touching upon every phase of life and human thought and action, and from this superabundance of life flowed the source of his poetry, for to him 'life was poetry and poetry was life.'

"While Europe still considered America a barbarous, far-away country, this German poet showed a deep appreciation of the new country and hailed it in song and word. He was one of the few minds of his time to

Greater Atlanta Day Values In Constitution's Ads Today

In today's Constitution the merchants of Atlanta are advertising with lavish detail the great pre-Easter values they will offer to the shoppers of Atlanta on Monday, Greater Atlanta Day.

Previous advertisements had been preparing the public for this event. In this issue full details appear in the advertisements of the merchants co-operating with The Constitution in this semi-annual value event.

Monday will be the second shopping celebration of this kind sponsored by The Constitution. The first occurred on November 1, last year. Its success was tremendous. The merchants of Atlanta offered such unusual values on that day that the attention of the entire city and its environs was attracted.

Monday's celebration will have the added zest of timeliness. Easter is only a week off. Everybody wants to appear well on Easter. The merchants have done their best to meet this seasonal demand, and have offered the added inducements of price and high quality.

All indications point to Monday being the biggest day in the retail stores of Atlanta this year.

Signs in the windows of the various merchants co-operating will designate their part in the event.

Spring Arrives This Afternoon; Clear, Balmy Weather Forecast

BY W. O. KEY JR.

Spring will arrive in Atlanta officially at 1:54 o'clock this afternoon.

Although the calendar arbitrarily sets the advent of spring as March 21, the travels of the sun cause that planet to vary in the time at which it crosses the equator meridian of the earth, and every few years the official day of spring comes on March 20 instead of March 21.

Thus, at exactly six minutes before 2 o'clock this afternoon, the citizenry of Atlanta may know that spring is here. To put it technically, the sun at that moment will enter Aries, sometimes known in astrology as The Ram, which doesn't mean a thing to most of us, who are more interested to know that when it's springtime in the Rockies it has been that way in Georgia for one hour.

The coming of spring, in addition to exposing the public to its perennial outburst of highly licensed poetry, marks the closing of one of Atlanta's mildest winters on record. This holds true for the rest of the country and it was left to March to provide Atlanta and most of the remainder of the United States with the coldest weather of the season.

Ushering in the springtide, so far as Atlanta is concerned, will be some mild weather, clear and balmy in this vicinity, but with a threat of showers for the extreme north portion of Georgia. C. F. von Herrmann, observer for the Atlanta weather bureau, predicts temperatures between 45 and 65 degrees.

But at the sound of the gong it will be 1:54 o'clock and spring for Atlanta, marking the open season for the trailing arbutus, the shrinking violet and the turning of young men's fancies.

Recent Decisions To Curb Holding Company Activities

Senator Capper Pays High Tribute to Action Taken in Constitution Fight by Hughes, Roberts.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Pillaging of the innocent consumer and investor by giant holding companies, which The Atlanta Constitution has denounced repeatedly in editorial attacks, probably will proceed with less vigor in the future in the light of two recent decisions of the United States supreme court. Senator Arthur Capper, republican, of Kansas, declared here today after an analysis of the decision.

According to the Kansas senator, who has been one of the leading critics of holding company operations, the highest tribunal has now exploded the legal fallacy that contracts entered into between two companies having the same ownership are always to be construed as free and independent instruments.

The two cases cited by Senator Capper are the Illinois commerce commission, et al., vs. the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, and the Western Distributing Company vs. the public service commission of the state of Kansas, et al. In both cases, the supreme court has successfully curbed the holding company, he said, adding that if congress will supplement the action of the court by passing needed legislation to regulate and supervise holding companies, "overcapitalization and racketeering in stocks and bonds" will be ultimately destroyed.

Not to Push Bill.

"Because of the present economic distress," said Senator Capper, "and the pressing need for unemployment and relief legislation, this congress probably will not have an opportunity of passing directly upon the holding company problem. For this reason, I am not pressing for action on my bill 'to regulate commerce by pipe line agencies operating in the purchase, distribution, sale and transportation of natural and artificial gas at this session'.

"Through a sort of legal fiction, the lower federal courts for years have refused to recognize that a contract between two companies, having the same ownership—through the holding company device—might not be a free and independent contract. They have refused to take judicial notice of that common ownership. The result has been that the holding company could dictate the terms of the contract, and the consumers had to pay the price agreed upon by the owner of the properties in a contract made with himself.

"Recently the United States supreme court exploded this legal fallacy, and to the case of the Western Distributing Company against the Kansas public service commission held that the state commission has the power to pass on the reasonableness of the interstate pipe line charges against the local consumers. The opinion was written by Associate Justice Roberts and goes a little farther even than the opinion of Chief Justice Hughes in the Illinois Bell Telephone case, in giving protection to consumers against interstate monopolies in rate matters.

Important Opinions.

"In my judgment, the Hughes and Roberts opinions are two of the most important opinions, in the public interest, written by the United States supreme court in many years.

"In the gas rate case appealed from my home state of Kansas, the United States supreme court handed down a decision that goes a long way toward removing one of the baneful effects of the holding company in public utilities practices.

"Practically all the states have utility rate regulating bodies, for the protection of the public against extortionate rates, but through the holding company device, aided by the fact that interstate gas pipe lines are regulated through failure of congress to act, these state regulations have been largely nullified in the case of natural gas.

"In the case appealed from Kansas, a three-in-one arrangement effectively nullified the state's power to regulate rates. A Doherty interstate pipe line company and the local distributing companies made contracts fixing the price to be paid to the pipe line company for gas. The pipe line company and the local retail companies both were owned by a Henry L. Doherty holding company, so in effect these contracts were the same as a contract between the right hand and the left hand of the same person, and the right hand knows what the left hand is doing, when it came to rate matters, you may well believe."

Lauds Roberts Opinion.

Senator Capper also pointed out that the Roberts opinion, following the Hughes opinion in the Illinois Bell Telephone case, is of "tremendous importance, and is indicative of congressional action if public sentiment continues to pile up demands for action."

In the Illinois Bell Telephone case, Chief Justice Hughes said that the court below found that 99 per cent of the stock of "the complainant, the Illinois company, is owned by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, which also owns substantially the same proportion of the stock of the Western Electric Company; that the Illinois and American companies unite in rendering long distance service under an arrangement for a division of tolls; that at the time to which the inquiry related, in October, 1923, there was in effect an agreement by which the Illinois company paid to the American company 4 1-2 per cent of its gross revenues for rent of instruments and as compensation for engineering, executive, financial and other services; that a large part of the materials entering into the construction of the plant and equipment of the Illinois company were purchased from the Western Electric Company and much of its operating expense consisted of payments made under a contract with that company for apparatus and supplies. The court further found that the American company owned a controlling interest in 15 telephone companies which, in connection with other companies, controlled by those subsidiaries and some companies in which its interest was not controlling, were operated as a system with the avowed purpose of rendering a nation-wide and unified telephone service; that the American company had stated that 'the associated companies are specialists in local service problems, with local operating forces, identified and familiar with the needs of the communities they serve;' that the parent company undertakes the solution of the problems that are common to all and in this way there was provided a central authority equipped to perform adequately general functions, leaving to the local companies responsibility for local affairs."

"The conclusions reached by the lower court," continued Chief Justice Hughes, "as to confiscation, had particular reference to the evidence bearing upon the business of the year 1923. The court said that this finding applied 'with increasing force to the succeeding years.' But no findings were made as to the value of the property and the revenues and expenses in these years. A rate order which is confiscatory when made may cease to be confiscatory, or one which is valid when made may become confiscatory at a later period."

Accordingly, Chief Justice Hughes remanded the case back to the district court for further proceedings.

ALABAMAN TAKES POLITICAL STAND ON REPEAL PLANK

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 19. (AP)—John Morgan Burns, of Selma, Ala., only avowed "wet" in a field of five candidates seeking election to the United States senate from Alabama, today issued his campaign platform advocating repeal of the 18th amendment.

"I stand for the repeal of the 18th amendment because it is the most direct and the only way to recover for the people their original and imprescriptible right to determine for themselves their policy with respect to the liquor traffic in Alabama," Mr. Burns said.

"I favor abolishing the extraordinary bureau for enforcing the national prohibition laws which operates out of Washington, because its very existence is an indirect confession that those laws lack sustaining public sentiment in widespread areas and constitutes a flagrant invasion of state rights.

"It may be that the enforcement of the national prohibition laws involves the employment of spies, snoopers and stool pigeons; nevertheless, if the home must be invaded, if the citizen must be held up and searched on the highways, if the innocent must be humiliated, insulted and frequently shot, then such arbitrary and questionable activities should be performed by home folks rather than strangers."

E. M. PRICE HEADS FIRST BAPTIST BOARD

Eugene M. Price, rate expert for the Georgia public service commission, has been elected chairman of the board of deacons of the First Baptist church of Atlanta. Mr. Price has been an active member of this church for several years and has served continuously on the board. He was elected to succeed Colonel B. L. Bugg.

Mr. Price has been with the commission since the latter part of 1919. He is one of the outstanding rate experts of the country. Mr. Price's training in rate matters was confined to railroad rates until he became connected with the commission, when he took up the study of utility rates. He is now one of the very few men in the country qualified as a combination railroad and utility rate expert.

PRISONER CONFESSES JAKE LINGLE SLAYING

JOLIET, Ill., March 19.—(AP)—E. W. Stubblefield, assistant warden at the state penitentiary, disclosed today that a convict has made a purported confession that he was the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, but Stubblefield said he took no stock in the statement.

Leo Brothers is serving a prison term for the murder, which occurred in a Michigan boulevard pedestrian subway June 9, 1930.

Stubblefield said Curtis Davis, 24, a Chicago convict serving time for robbery, came to him twice, the last time a month ago, with the story that he killed Lingle.

Hoover 'Passes Buck' To U. S. Representative

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP) President Hoover was faced today with a new and apparently difficult problem—but solved it quickly by passing it on to Representative Sol Bloom.

It was just what to do with a plaster bust of George Washington, standing more than seven feet from throat to wig and with a forehead several feet wide.

It was presented by its sculptor, Ernest Durig, who had been introduced by the Swiss minister, Marc Peter.

Mr. Hoover viewed the statue, expressed his appreciation and, then turned to a group nearby, asking:

"What shall we do with it?"

The bust was too big for any of the White House rooms, in fact, too large to be taken through any ordinary doorway. Yet it was considered too fine to be allowed to stand uncovered in the grounds.

UTILITIES FAVOR FEDERAL COURTS

Oppose Bill Which Would Prevent Appeal From State Commission.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—An argument over public utilities developed today before a senate committee out of a discussion of highly technical measures to change the judicial code.

Senator Johnson, republican, California, interrupted a witness to say he sponsored a bill to prevent public utilities from taking orders of state commissions affecting rates to federal courts on the grounds of diversity of state citizenship because "federal courts were threatening state regulation."

He added he had introduced the measure at the request of the California railroad commission.

Paul V. Keyser, of Washington, D. C., representing investment bankers, and Randall J. Leboeuf Jr., appearing for New York public utilities, insisted that the bill would take away from investors in utilities the right of protection enjoyed by other classes of investors.

"Aren't public utilities in a class by themselves anyhow because of the virtual monopoly they enjoy?" Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, asked.

Keyser said public utilities might be damaged greatly if rates ordered by state commissions went into effect pending final determination of the case.

Leboeuf said the number of cases appealed to the federal courts were "infinitesmal" and Chairman Norris, of the judiciary committee, commented that "apparently you don't need this protection then."

The attorney insisted, however, it was necessary in important cases where the decisions of the state courts might uphold confiscatory orders.

Other witnesses representing the American Bar Association, the Association of Casualty and Security Executives and the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, appeared against other pending bills which would limit the right to take cases to the federal courts on the grounds of diversity of state citizenship.

Small "Trade" Brings Tour of 40,000 Miles

INSURRECTION LAW WILL BE ATTACKED

6 Alleged Communists, Facing Death Penalty, Seek Test of Statute.

Constitutionality of the aged statute which provides the death penalty for an attempt to incite insurrection will be attacked when the cases of six alleged communists are called for trial Wednesday before Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy in Fulton superior court, O. C. Hancock, attorney for the reds, announced Saturday. Demurrers have already been prepared, Hancock said.

The six defendants have been notified through the International Labor Defense to appear in court, Hancock said. The defendants are Joe Carr and M. H. Powers, who were indicted on April 11, 1930, and Mary Dalton, Ann Burlack, Gilmer Brady and Henry Story, who were indicted on May 30, 1930. They are at liberty under bonds as high as $3,000 each.

W. A. McClelland, of Macon, is associated with Hancock as counsel. The insurrection statute, passed by the Georgia legislature during reconstruction days, has been used only once in a Georgia court, Hancock said. The defense will elect to sever the six cases, he said.

Other important cases scheduled for this week include that of George Cox, who was indicted in the Lichtenstein murder case. Cox will be called for trial Monday before Judge Pomeroy on a charge of robbing W. A. McDaniel, laundry employe, of $25.50, a watch and a truck on February 23. Clint Pinson and J. C. Hastings will face trial Thursday before Judge Pomeroy for the murder of Max Jaffe, grocer.

Diversion of Loan Funds For Surplus Sale Opposed

Carolinian To Fight Use of Agricultural Finance To Negotiate Wheat and Cotton Deals.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Trouble developed today on Capitol Hill over administration suggestions to use Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds to finance foreign sales of the farm board's surplus wheat and cotton.

Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, author of the resolution making $200,000,000 immediately available for crop loans, declared against diverting half of this for financing export credit.

He said it can have nothing but a "disastrous effect upon the market at this time."

Meanwhile, Secretary Hyde and Chairman Stone, of the farm board, gave assurance there was no intention of "dumping" these surplus stores or disrupting orderly marketing plans previously announced.

Hyde said the administration plans contemplated seeking new American markets—such as the orient. He added the $75,000,000 now available for crop loans is sufficient and "to expand these loans only means the stimulating of production."

"The process of exporting the surplus now and getting it out of the country will increase the price of next year's crop," the secretary said in a statement tonight.

Discussions between administration leaders and Chairman Stone looking to setting aside about $100,000,000 went forward on Capitol Hill today. The resolution making the $200,000,000 immediately available for crop loans now is before the house banking committee, and an effort probably will be made there to obtain authority for use of the $100,000,000.

"It will necessarily have the effect," Senator Smith said in an interview, "of demoralizing the trade disastrously in these two staple crops (cotton and wheat). To take 1,000,000 bales of this farm board cotton and put it on an already burdened market can have no other result than that which has already occurred.

"My canvass of the house and senate leads me to believe that no financing for this purpose can be authorized. The $200,000,000 I was instrumental in providing for production of crops is to aid distressed farmers—not to make a surplus crop. It is to provide some of the scant necessities for the farmers themselves."

"The conferences held at the capitol," Hyde said, "have been solely for the purpose of seeing whether we could dispose of large blocks of surplus cotton and wheat in markets which would not otherwise take American products, and thus relieve the surplus which is hanging over the farmers' prices."

He added that if $125,000,000 more were loaned small farmers in addition to the $75,000,000 now available, it would increase cotton production by more than 1,000,000 bales and wheat by 50,000,000 bushels. This, he said, would defeat the purpose of those borrowing money.

To avoid this, the secretary said he had suggested the additional money should be devoted to export loans for marketing the surplus. "It is this constructive course that I would like to see congress follow," he concluded.

In Chicago, Fred Uhlman, vice president of the Board of Trade, expressed the opinion that wheat sales to China, one of the prospective markets, would be impractical because of the discount on that country's credit and also because it would be expensive to ship board wheat to the Pacific coast for export.

Adventists Decline Papal Unity Appeal

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP) The invitation of Pope Pius for Protestants to return to the Roman Catholic faith has been turned down by the executive committee of the general conference of Seventh-Day Adventists.

In resolutions made public today the committee called attention to differences in doctrine between the two churches and added:

"It is perfectly apparent, even to the casual reader, that it would be just as impossible for us to become members of the Roman church as it would be for the pope to become a member of our church, inasmuch as our doctrines are so absolutely at variance. . . .

"We cannot accept a call for unity which involves the violation of our conscientious convictions concerning the truth of the gospel."

WHEAT FOR POOR HERE WILL BE READY SOON

Rogers Will Handle Storage and Distribution for Chest and Relief Agencies.

Wheat from the federal farm board's supply of 40,000,000 bushels, completely milled as flour, will be available for distribution to Atlanta's needy families within a short time, with start of operation Saturday of a special committee on flour distribution of the family relief section of the Atlanta Social Welfare Council.

A survey of Atlanta's needs was undertaken, to give the measure of requisition necessary on the federal wheat supply now held in the grain centers of the northwest.

As distribution of the flour to thousands of families involved considerable difficulty, arrangements were made for this service to be performed by Rogers stores. G. K. Selden, a member of the committee, explained this arrangement in the following statement:

"The committee of the various relief agencies through whom the flour will be distributed called upon Rogers, Inc., today, and at the committee's request Rogers has agreed to handle the storage and distribution, through specified stores of theirs, on proper order of the various relief agencies to whom the flour will be allocated. This distribution by Rogers, Inc., is to be at no expense to the agencies.

The local committee was organized to co-operate with the Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross, as the Red Cross has been designated by the federal act as the intermediary of general distribution. Miss Margaret Fetner, executive secretary of the Atlanta chapter, will serve as secretary of the local committee, whose other members are Joe L. McMillin, insurance executive, chairman; W. H. Johnston, city warden; G. K. Selden, president of the Atlanta Chapter of the Red Cross; Miss Rhoda Kaufman, executive secretary of the Family Welfare Society; Mrs. Mabel R. Curry, a member of the staff of the Family Welfare Society who is serving on special assignment with the Emergency Relief Committee; Major J. Arthur Fynn, of the Salvation Army; Edward M. Kahn, executive secretary of the Federation of Jewish Charities, and Frank Miller, executive director of the Chest.

For distribution of the flour has been assembled the machinery of the Family Welfare Society, the city warden's office, the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, the Federation of Jewish Charities, and the Unemployed Relief organization, which constitute the principal relief agencies of the community. Most of the families being served by these groups will receive the flour on an approximate ration of 48 pounds as a 30-day supply for a family of five persons.

Winter Named Vice President Of Gas Light Company Here

J. W. Gates Appointed Divisional Manager of Affiliated Utilities in Texas, Alabama, Florida

Announcement of the appointment of Willard W. Winter, formerly of Mobile, Ala., as vice president and general manager of the Atlanta Gas Light Company was made Saturday by Colonel Albert E. Pierce, president of the Central Public Service Corporation, of which the Atlanta company is a part.

J. W. Gates, for the past two years general manager of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, has been appointed divisional manager for the group of affiliated utilities of the Central Public Service system located in the states of Alabama, Florida and Texas and including Montgomery, Mobile, Anniston, Gadsden, Ala.; Pensacola, Fla.; Port Arthur, Texas, and many smaller cities. Both Mr. Winter and Mr. Gates will assume their new duties immediately.

In addition to his duties with the Atlanta Gas Light Company, Mr. Winter will act as chief executive in coordinating the general policies and management functions of all the Central Public Service utility properties in the southeast, serving approximately 40 cities, located from Charleston, S. C., to Port Arthur, Texas.

Mr. Winter's appointment as chief executive of this important group of utilities follows an extensive career in utility management in various sections of the country. He began his career with the Dawes properties in Little Rock, Ark., from which he was appointed manager of the Mobile Gas Company. Following this experience, he was appointed comptroller of the Southern Gas and Power Corporation, of Philadelphia. When this company became a part of the Central Public Service Corporation, Mr. Winter was transferred to the general offices of the corporation in Chicago.

Upon the purchase of the Atlanta Gas Light Company and other southern properties by the Central Public Service Corporation about three years ago, Mr. Winter came to Atlanta, in charge of the accounting for the group, and was active in the transfer of the management to the new owners. This having been completed, he was appointed divisional manager of the important western group of the southern properties of the corporation, where he has served until his present appointment.

Florida Candidate.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 19. (AP)—W. B. Douglas, of Lake City, today qualified with Secretary of State R. A. Gray for participation in the June democratic primary as a candidate for state railroad commissioner.

KIWANIS OBJECTIVE GIVEN BY OFFICIAL

A new objective of Kiwanis which would "give primacy to the human and spiritual rather than to the material values of life" was outlined the past week by District Governor Thomas O. Marshall, of Americus, who made an official visit to the local club last Tuesday.

THOMAS C. MARSHALL.

He was accompanied here by Mr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Merritt, of Americus. Mr. Merritt is secretary of the Georgia district. The visitors were entertained here and Mr. Marshall addressed the local club.

He stated in his address that, while "we may not have money to invest in these so-called days of depression, we may invest ourselves in the making of men, which is much more productive of social values."

After his address Governor Marshall was presented with a bust of George Washington by William J. Hammond, president of the Kiwanis Club of Atlanta.

SALVATIONISTS PLAN SPECIAL MEETINGS

Uniting with the Southern Evangelistic Association, headed by Dr. Marion McH. Hull, Atlanta Salvationists will participate in a special series of meetings to be held in the Kimball House, 33 Pryor street, S. W., during "Passion Week" commencing today, it was announced Saturday by Lieutenant-Commissioner Alexander M. Damon, head of the Army's southern operations.

S. L. Brengle.

Three special speakers have been obtained for the meetings, including Commissioner Samuel Logan Brengle, retired, who has an international reputation as the Salvation Army's foremost exponent of holiness; the Rev. Charles H. Mount, of Greenville, S. C., for four years in the African mission field, and the Rev. "Bud" Robinson.

FORMER CITIZENS OF GWINNETT PLAN FULTON SOCIETY

Plans for the organization of a social club of all former Gwinnett county citizens who now reside in Fulton county will be perfected by George W. Whitehead, county health inspector, as soon as those desiring to become members in the proposed Gwinnett County Club get in touch with him, the inspector announced Saturday. The chief aim of the club this year will be to stage a big rally and barbecue.

All citizens who formerly lived in Gwinnett county and who are now living in Atlanta and within the border of Fulton county are requested by Mr. Whitehead to write him, in care of the Hapeville postoffice, so that he may get in touch with them with regard to a meeting at which organization plans may be discussed and officers elected.

"There are enough former Gwinnett county residents now living in Fulton county," Mr. Whitehead said, "to enable us to organize a fine social club, and it is our desire to get together as early as possible and lay plans for a big Gwinnett citizens' rally and barbecue, which will be held during the summer at any place decided upon by the members. Other social affairs will be planned from time to time."

Atlanta Stamp Society To Give Series of Interesting Programs

An increasing interest and rapidly expanding membership in the Atlanta Stamp Society was reported Saturday by Karl Pathe, secretary, when announcement was made of programs for the coming month. An ambitious schedule of interesting features will be presented to members and Atlanta collectors, all of whom are welcome at the meetings.

The biggest event in the history of the society will be the auction of United States, Confederate and foreign stamps on the night of April 21. More than 100 lots of stamps will be auctioned off in the clubroom. Departing from the usual procedure, the auction catalogs are being mailed to a large number of American Philatelic Society members all over the country, and mail bids will be opened that night. The lots, the total value of which will be more than $500, will go to the highest bidders, mail bids being accepted the same as those from the floor.

Other society features will be:

March 31—H. C. Moore, a talk on engraving of plates for postage stamps, explaining how flaws, cracks, scratches, shifts, etc., develop. Mr. Moore will display engravers' tools in illustrating his talk.

April 7—F. W. Cate, president of the society, will give a talk on the air mail stamps of the world, describing many of the issues, their beauty, peculiarities, etc. Mr. Cate has probably the finest air mail collection in the city.

Ashby Taylor last Thursday night talked on twentieth century commemorative issues of the United States, telling why the stamps were issued, giving a bit of the history back of each one and listing the number of each stamp released to the public. Mr. Taylor is one of the club's foremost United States collectors and one of the largest gatherings in recent months was present to hear him, among them being a number of visitors.

The society meets every Thursday night in room 304 Peck building, on Houston street at Peachtree, directly across the street from the Candler building.

ATLANTA, ROME GROUPS TO DEBATE ON ZIONISM

The question of whether or not Zionism is necessary for the continuation of Judaism will be discussed pro and con Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, at the Jewish Educational Alliance, when the Coterie Club, of Atlanta, debates the A. J. K. Club, of Rome, Georgia.

Representing the Coterie Club will be Edward R. Vajda and Melvin I. Weinman, while Miss Ruth Lesser and Miss Frances Mendelsohn will uphold the standard of the Rome organization.

The debate will be one of the principal features of "Young Judea Month," now being observed in this city and throughout the southeast. A dance, honoring the out-of-town visitors, will be held following the debate.

In charge of local arrangements are Edward R. Vajda, chairman; Miss Lillie Berchenko, Miss Jennie Shamos, Ned Cohen and Simon Noveck.

HIDDEN CAR FOUND IN LINDBERGH HUNT

"Sam, the Barber" Reveals Auto Buried Beneath Hay on Farm.

BY BATES RANEY.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 19.—(UP)—An automobile, found buried beneath a ton of hay in a barn near the estate of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, led state police late today off on a new trail in the search for the kidnapers of the famous flyer's 20-month-old son.

Sam Cucchiara, known as "Sam, the barber," was credited with having furnished information which led to discovery of the hidden car. He was taken to the Lindbergh home for questioning.

State police started an immediate search for Caspar Oliver, on whose farm the automobile was found.

Inspector Gustave S. Lockwood, of the state motor vehicle bureau, posed as an automobile thief and managed to gain the confidence of "Sam, the barber," who gave him the information concerning the car, state police said.

Oliver's farm is on the rocky hill road, a few miles from the Lindbergh estate.

Oliver Found Hiding.

Some time after Cucchiara was taken to the Lindbergh residence, Oliver was found hiding at his home. He, with a negro, said to have been seen riding with Cucchiara near the Lindbergh estate on the night of the kidnaping, was being questioned by state police.

Motor vehicle inspectors said the engine had been removed from the car, a 1929 Buick touring car, and that it is extremely unlikely it is connected in any way with the kidnaping.

The Lindbergh investigation otherwise had reached a negative stage, though there was some activity today in the questioning of Henry (Red) Johnson, sailor friend of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nursemaid.

While police persist in their declaration that Johnson is not under arrest and has furnished a convincing alibi, they went so far as to bring the English sailor from Jersey City to the Hopewell residence of the Lindberghs to have him recount his story. After he had been examined, presumably on his acquaintanceship with Miss Gow and his visit to the Lindbergh home prior to the kidnaping, he was taken back to Jersey City, where he is being held for action of immigration authorities.

Germans Eliminated.

One angle of the case was eliminated today when police announced that Paul and Katie Engstenberg, German servants at Franklin Park, N. J., have been cleared of all suspicion in the case and have returned to their new place of employment at Ardmore, Pa. Their movements had been checked after it was learned they left Franklin Park at about the time of the kidnaping.

Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf, in charge of the Lindbergh investigation, said late today there apparently is no connection between the arrest of an alleged kidnaper at Highland Park and the Lindbergh case.

The apparent attempt to kidnap the child of a wealthy Highland Park manufacturer, in which methods of entry identical with those used by the abductors of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. were employed, aroused New Jersey authorities to a fresh burst of activity.

A man who gave the name of George Malden, 37, of New York, was arrested shortly after an attempt to enter the second-floor nursery in the home of J. Seward Johnson. He was questioned in the county jail at New Brunswick after a nurse and a watchman at the Johnson home had reportedly identified him as the intruder. Highland Park is only 20 miles from Hopewell.

Foiled by Nurse.

The man who tried to enter the Johnson home used a ladder to reach the nursery, and was foiled by the presence of a nurse in the room with Johnson's infant daughter. The nurse telephoned a watchman on the estate, who fired one shot at the intruder as he fled across a near-by field. The man fired a shot in return, but neither took effect.

Albertine Filiatrault, the nurse, was awakened at about 3 a. m., and saw a man at the window, trying to unhook the latch. He was standing on a ladder and had already cut the screen. Miss Filiatrault picked up a telephone and called John Shea, caretaker and watchman. Shea ran out just as the intruder was jumping from the ladder. The caretaker fired one charge from a shotgun as the man went around a corner of the house. As he started to give chase, the intruder turned and fired a shot from a pistol.

Malden was arrested a short time later at a South Plainfield restaurant. Miss Filiatrault and Shea were said to have identified him as the intruder.

One circumstance which police considered important was the fact that when arrested Malden had in his possession a pistol with one chamber empty. He was booked at New Brunswick on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Johnson told police Malden resembles a man who entered his home last month and robbed himself and his wife of jewels and money. The identification, however, was not positive.

District Attorney Douglas Hicks, who has assumed charge of the investigation of the Highland Park affair, is communicating all details and developments to Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf, who is in charge of the Lindbergh investigation.

ACCUSED APACHE AVOWS INNOCENCE

Indian Repudiates Confession in Killing of Henrietta Schmerler.

GLOBE, Ariz., March 19.—(AP)—Mac (Golney) Seymour, young Apache Indian, categorically denied for the first time from the witness chair today that he killed Henrietta Schmerler, Columbia University student of anthropology.

Both defense and government rested upon his unexpected avowal of innocence.

United States Attorney John C. Gung'l failed in a day-long, slashing cross-examination to break down Seymour's previous direct testimony. The Indian testified he was intoxicated and had not intended to kill the girl last July 18 after alleged intimacies at the White River Apache reservation where she was doing research work.

The case will go to the jury some time Monday, only instructing of the jury by Judge Albert M. Sames and closing arguments of counsel remaining to be completed.

Miss Schmerler's body was found July 24. Seymour previously had asserted he did not know she was dead until after that time.

"Do you tell this jury you did not cut that girl that night or any other time?" demanded Gung'l after exhaustive questioning.

This and other questions brought from the somber-eyed Apache only fresh repudiation of confession he is reported to have made to J. A. Street, department of justice agent, on November 1.

"I did not cut her," Seymour declared stolidly.

"Do you deny killing that girl, to this jury?"

"I did not kill her."

"And you were drunk," accused Gung'l.

"Yes—I was drunk," Seymour answered readily through an interpreter. "You were so drunk you didn't know what you were doing," the United States attorney declared.

"I was not so drunk I cannot remember," denied the Apache. "If I was too drunk I could not remember."

Under Gung'l's interrogation, Seymour repeated without deviation the story he told in direct testimony of a fight he admitted having with the white girl in the ravine where her body was found.

Character Attack.

Taking of testimony ended without John P. Dougherty, Seymour's counsel, succeeding in repeated efforts to force before the jury alleged facts regarding the Columbia student's character and her behavior on the reservation.

Judge Sames said he did not consider the girl's character or reservation activities to have any bearing on the charge of murder against Seymour.

Dougherty was allowed to read into the court record, in the absence of the jury, a statement of what he desired to establish, for the purpose of appeal, should appeal become necessary.

"I desire to offer and am prepared to offer evidence to show," Dougherty told the court, "Miss Schmerler did not confine her activities to study of anthropology as testified by Miss Ruth Underhill (assistant secretary of the Columbia department of anthropology, prosecution witness).

"I want to prove Miss Schmerler was engaged in study of abnormal sex impulses of the Indians, and that her conduct was such as to arouse indignation and cause the Indians of the reservation to question her morals."

COUNTY TO PUSH SCHOOL BUILDING

Steps toward early construction of new school buildings and additions under the $700,000 bond issue voted recently by the people were taken Saturday by the Fulton county board of education in the adoption of resolutions outlining a plan of action.

The board created an advisory committee to be composed of Superintendent Jere A. Wells, chairman; Hal Hentz, of the architectural firm of Hentz, Adler & Shutze, and Cherry Emerson, of the engineering and architectural firm of Robert & Co. The committee will serve as consulting architects and engineers to the board.

The offer of the state board of education through J. M. Graham to survey the county system and make recommendations as to uniform school buildings, uniform specifications and bulk buying of materials, was accepted.

Architects were employed Saturday as follows: Hentz, Adler & Schutze, annexes to the North Fulton High school at an estimated cost of $125,000; Robert & Co., annex to the E. Rivers school, $20,000, and the Hammond annex, $22,500; Daniell & Beutell, a new building at Bolton, $22,500; George H. Bond, an annex at College Street school, Hapeville, $15,000; Tucker and Howell, consolidation of Liberty Hill and Guinn schools, $12,500; Edwards and Sayward, Lakewood Heights school, $45,000; E. C. Wachendorff, Perkerson school, $20,000; Burge & Stevens, West Haven school, $12,500; Thornton Marye, Benteen school, $12,500; William J. J. Chase, Hope school, $20,000. This work was awarded under the understanding that the architectural jobs be undertaken at the risk of the architect employed unless the bond issue is validated and the bonds sold.

Other projects will be awarded as soon as proper investigation and surveys determine the locations and sizes of the buildings, it was announced.

Huge Rum Ring Net Brings Arrest of 21

NEW ORLEANS, March 19.—(AP) Early morning activities of a heavy squad of federal prohibition officers here today broke through the defenses of a big rum smuggling and shipping syndicate and netted a rich prize prohibition agents said was intended for the "Capone liquor trust" reputed to center in Chicago.

First capturing a truck laden with contraband whisky and champagne after the truck had become bogged up in soft mud in Dupre street, the prohibition agents traced their course to a house at 2331 North Rampart street, a liquor supply base, and captured 21 men, another truck, an automobile, pistols and a shotgun, and an estimated $65,000 worth of liquor.

Among those arrested were Nate Goldberg, alias Meyers and Merchant O'Neil, reputed aides of Al Capone.

Gas Price Lowered.

MIAMI, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—Gasoline prices in Miami were reduced one cent today to 21 cents a gallon, including the seven cents a gallon state tax. Dealers said wholesale price fluctuation was the cause for retail reduction.

C. OF C. TO OPEN EXPANSION DRIVE

Fund of $57,500 To Be Sought for Enlarged Program of Activities.

Plans for a campaign on April 11 to 22 to raise $57,500 for an enlarged program of activities were announced Saturday by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

The campaign will be known as Atlanta's Three-Year program, according to Roy LeCraw, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and is intended to bring the community increased activities in industrial development, retail and wholesale trade expansion and will be linked into the forward Georgia program, which was launched a few weeks ago.

N. Baxter Maddox, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, who was named to act as general chairman of the campaign, said the drive would be divided into four divisions, with Horace Russell heading the speakers' division; Sam C. Dobbs and George A. Bland leading the activities fund group; Robert A. Clark as leader of the general membership solicitation division, and F. R. Seely heading the national firms division.

Benefits to Be Outlined.

The task of the speakers' group will be to carry before civic clubs and other organizations detail of the program, outlining how Atlanta may benefit from the program.

Membership solicitation, under direction of Mr. Clark, will engage a group known as the sales army, including Fonville McWhorter, Robert McLarty, T. T. Flagler, G. C. Bowden, Walter Anthony, Dean S. Paden, H. T. Green and Edwin McCarty. Individual and plural memberships costing $25 to $50 will be sought on a three-year basis.

The activities fund group will direct their efforts to raising funds for carrying on the activities of the campaign, and the national firms division will contact firms with branch offices here who are not now members of the Chamber of Commerce. A list of 800 such firms has been prepared for the workers.

Aside from the four organized groups, more than 150 active team workers will assist in carrying on the drive and officers of the Chamber of Commerce believe that gratifying results will be accomplished.

Fund Would Aid Business.

"I do not doubt that the goal of $57,500 will be oversubscribed," said Mr. Maddox, "and will place before the city a program of business and civic activities which will not only remove from the minds of people doubts for the future but which will also materially increase business."

Declaring that he believes that Atlanta's future is just what the citizens wish to make it, President LeCraw said "the city is at the cross-roads and will either go forward or backwards.

"As president of the Chamber of Commerce," he continued, "I feel it my duty to be cognizant of the interests of the citizens. We cannot sit idly and be content with the present situation. The Chamber of Commerce has forgotten the word "depression" and will carry on the Three-Year Program.

"Every businessman in the city is obligated to financially assist in the campaign for this program will undoubtedly pay back to citizens dividends from increased business."

Seed Loan Jurors Retire in Deadlock

DOTHAN, Ala., March 19.—(AP)—A jury in United States district court deliberating a verdict in the trial of eight Houston county citizens, charged with conspiring to obstruct justice and defraud the government in securing seed loans, failed to reach an agreement tonight and it was locked up at 9:50 o'clock. Deliberations will be resumed at 9 a. m., tomorrow.

The jury received the cost shortly after 4 p. m., after a lengthy charge by Judge C. B. Kennamer in which he instructed that some of the defendants could be found guilty and some not guilty, or all guilty or all acquitted. It marked the close of a trial that began last Monday, in which several score witnesses gave exhaustive details of seed loan dealings.

GOETHECENTENARY BEING CELEBRATED grasp its meaning, its problems, its importance, and to divine America's undreamed-of greatness and its meaning to the world. He was not only the first to prophecy the building of the Panama canal by the United States, but his works on the metamorphosis of plants and on animal morphology, particularly his discovery of the intermillary bone, foreshadowed the evolutionary theory. His last words were 'more light.'"

President Frederick B. Robinson, of the College of the City of New York, and Professor John A. Walz, of Harvard University, were other speakers. Max Montor gave readings.

Mme. Schumann-Heink received an ovation as she trod with familiar, firm step to the front of the stage, where she has sung many times. She sang the favorite Erl-King with the old fire and drama, and returned amid bursts of applause to receive flowers and give "Ich Liebe Dich" in encore.

A bust of Goethe, heroic size, was placed on the rear of the stage, between decorations of palms.

AMBASSADOR TO GET HONORARY DEGREE

MADISON, Wis., March 19.—(UP) Baron Friedrich von Prittwitz-Gaffron, German ambassador to the United States, and Dr. Camillo von Glenze, University of Munich, will receive honorary degrees from the University of Wisconsin, March 24, at a celebration honoring Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, German poet.

The all-university gathering will be part of a worldwide commemoration of Goethe's death, March 22, 1832.

Besides von Klenze and the ambassador, speakers here will include Governor Philip F. La Follette and Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin.

GERMANS OF ST. LOUIS WILL HONOR GOETHE

ST. LOUIS, March 19.—(AP)—German societies of St. Louis will join in a worldwide commemoration of the one-hundredth anniversary of the death of the poet, Johann Wolfgang Goethe, who died March 22, 1832.

KEITH'S TO MOVE INTO PARAMOUNT

Paramount pictures in addition. Programs will be changed either weekly or semi-weekly, depending upon the public response to the attraction offered.

New Price Scale.

A new scale of prices goes into effect at the Georgia with the change in management. Matinee prices will be 25 and 15 cents, while there will be a flat price of 25 cents for any seat in the house at night.

Mr. Morrison, in announcing the reopening of the Paramount, stated that for the second week, beginning Saturday, April 2, Ray Teal, who was one of the most popular masters of ceremonies ever in Atlanta, during the days of the Howard theater, will return. Teal will bring with him his own stage band and group of entertainers, coming here from Miami, where he is just concluding a highly successful engagement. This will be an added attraction, in addition to the regular vaudeville programs.

The first picture at the Paramount, beginning next Saturday, will be the new Maurice Chevalier vehicle, "One Hour With You." This is an Ernst Lubitsch-directed production and is one of the most delightful pieces of entertainment the Lubitsch-Chevalier combination has ever turned out.

Mr. Wilby stated that he would launch his operation of the Georgia next Saturday with the sensationally successful picture, "Taxi," starring James Cagney. Other screen productions he has obtained for early showing include "Her Majesty Love," with Marilyn Miller; "Local Boy Makes Good," with Joe E. Brown; "Compromise," with Ben Lyon; "Five-Star Final," "Wayward," "High Pressure," etc.

Paramount Being Renovated.

This week the Paramount theater is undergoing complete cleaning and renovation inside and out. The exterior is being cleaned by the sand pressure process while every inch of the interior is being scientifically cleaned by vacuum process, operated by a famous cleaning corporation.

The Paramount was for years one of the most popular theaters with Atlanta picture patrons. It was built by Troup Howard and, when it opened in 1920, was named "The Howard." Some time later it came under Publix operation and, a few years ago, that organization changed the name to "The Paramount."

Not quite one year ago the theater was closed because of conditions, not local, in the picture industry. Production conditions at that time made it impossible to secure the type of pictures desired for the house and the management thought it better to close than offer attractions not in line with the theater's splendid reputation.

Now, with greatly improved production conditions at Hollywood and with the finest of current releases available for the house, it is reopening to bring back to Atlanta its former glories and establish the theater once again as probably the most individualistic amusement establishment in Atlanta.

MRS. HOLLINGSWORTH DIES NEAR AVONDALE

Mrs. Mollie Hollingsworth, 60, a cousin of Police Captain A. J. Holcombe, died suddenly of a heart attack Saturday night at her home on the Covington road, near Avondale. She had appeared in good health until she was stricken, members of the family said.

Mrs. Hollingsworth resided with her sister, Miss Fannie Smith. She also is survived by a brother, Frank R. Smith, of Avondale. Funeral arrangements are under the direction of A. S. Turner, of Decatur.

OLD DOCTOR ESCAPES GALL BLADDER OPERATION

An old German physician, Dr. H. E. Hildebrand, many years ago, was severely suffering from what appeared to be a Gall Stone Trouble. He was frequently subject to colic attacks, gas pains, indigestion, pain in sides, back and around the liver. Rather than to submit to an operation he decided to treat his own case. So successful was he in his efforts he prescribed the same treatment to other sufferers. The amazing results they reported is convincing evidence of the merit of this preparation. Through the Dr. Hildebrand's Laboratories, Dept. 19-L, 155 N. Union Ave., Chicago, Ill., sufferers from Gall Stone, Gall Bladder and allied Liver and Stomach ailments everywhere may obtain a test of this splendid treatment free by writing to the above address at once.—(adv.)

STRENGTH STABILITY SERVICE

"For the South Atlantic States the increase in the number of insolvencies and the indebtedness reported was quite small. In both of the Carolinas and in Florida fewer defaults occurred in 1931 than in 1930 and in five of the nine divisions comprising this section, liabilities also showed a reduction. Trading failures were more numerous in the South Atlantic States last year than in the preceding year, but for both the manufacturing division and the section embracing agents and brokers defaults were not only reduced as to the number but the liabilities were less than in 1930."
—From "DUN'S REVIEW"

Another "Bright Spot"

Perusal of statistics compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., on commercial failures for the year 1931 shows that our own section of the country stands out most favorably in comparison with other sections of the United States. It is a distinct tribute to conservative management and hard work—and the effective combination of these factors will surely point the way to better times.

Jobless List Is Cut Two-Fifths By United Action Campaign Here

Having reduced the number of unemployed men and women in Atlanta by approximately two-fifths, the local workers in the nation-wide United Action campaign against unemployment began to get their second wind Saturday for this week's efforts to further lessen the number of persons out of work. At the close of business hours Saturday approximately 1,850 persons were reported to have been given jobs in this city since the campaign started.

Definite number of positions obtained by the various teams and individual workers Saturday was not available at offices of the American legion's unemployment headquarters. Several of the team "colonels" had not turned in their week-end reports and were not expected to report until Monday. Nevertheless it was conservatively estimated that at least 40 new jobs were obtained, which, added to the 1,809 previously reported, made the total number for Atlanta approximately 1,850.

National figures Saturday showed that at a rate of nearly 10,000 a day, the nation-wide campaign had put back to work nearly 300,000 men and women, representing the substantial relief of approximately 1,200,000 persons on the family basis.

DOCTOR CALLS COP, GIVES $10 TO FUND

Dr. David B. Hawkins, of 430 Ponce de Leon avenue, Saturday night telephoned police headquarters and reported that a safe in his offices had been cracked by yeggmen. Call Officers M. O. Evans and Robert Floyd hurried to the scene.

Dr. Hawkins met the officers at the door. He had a $10 bill in his hand.

"Just take this to The Constitution's Courage Fund for the family of Detective Foster," he said. "Courage like his cannot go unrewarded."

Smiling, Evans and Floyd thanked the doctor and in their report on the call marked "false alarm."

FUND FOR FOSTERS MORE THAN $300

ter through the heart, but that another one of the bandits fired a shot into the detective's head as he lay dying. They are searching for a fifth negro, Mose White, brother of the slain bandit, as the driver of the automobile involved in the holdup.

Bills of indictment have been drawn against the three suspects held by police, which will be presented to the grand jury Tuesday. In the event of indictments, which are confidently expected by investigators, the alleged killers will be given a prompt trial, it was indicated Saturday.

In contributing a check to The Constitution's "Courage Fund" Saturday, J. R. Clark, of Barrop G. Collier, Inc., praised the valor of Foster in opening fire on the armed invaders, and recommended a system of compulsory savings for peace officers which would overcome the handicap they are under in applying and obtaining life insurance. Mr. Clark's letter follows:

"Editor, The Constitution:

"Atlanta, Ga.

"It affords me great pleasure to contribute the small check attached to the 'Courage Fund' for Red Foster's family.

"In this connection, permit me to say that it has long been my opinion that the police department of the city and state should send the regular check to the family of any officer who is killed in line of duty for a period of one year, which will give that family time enough to so arrange their personal affairs so that they will not be in real need. It is a sad state of affairs when we cannot reward the family of a brave officer who dies in the discharge of his duty in protecting society.

"Another idea which would be a great protection to this department would be for the city or state under whom they work, to require 10 per cent of their monthly salary to be placed on deposit, bearing interest, in a state depository to be given to them at the time of losing their position, or in case of death, by natural cause or otherwise, the sum of total deposit to be turned over to their family. It is very hard for any of us to keep up the savings habit. By this compulsory savings it would be a great protection for them to be used should they live and need it, or to their families should they pass on, as they are greatly handicapped in taking out life insurance due to the greatly increased cost of life insurance to men following their hazardous work.

"It is very certain to me from my long observation of the sorrows that are left behind that something should be done to protect the deserving families of our law-enforcing officers."

Boykin's Staff Aids Fund.

The office staff of Solicitor-General Boykin sent in a check for $30, in addition to the contribution personally made by Mr. Boykin. The four members of the United States narcotic squad, Edward Manning, T. B. Wiggins, P. A. Williams and Joseph M. Bransky, in submitting their check, said:

"We feel privileged to contribute our mite for the Frank C. (Red) Foster fund. This fearless officer had our sincere admiration and respect in life as well as in death."

Judge W. F. Jenkins, of the Georgia court of appeals, wrote:

"Enclosed please find check for $5 as a contribution to the fund you are raising for the family of the brave and loyal policeman who gave his life against heavy odds in the performance of his duty, and in the defense of the public welfare. I wish I was able to give more."

AUTOPSY IS ORDERED IN DEATH OF GEORGIAN

HAVANA, Cuba, March 19.—(AP)—An autopsy will be performed tomorrow on the body of Floyd M. Powers, who came to Havana March 17 to seek work and died in a hotel room.

Powers, who was about 40 years old and a resident of Macon, Ga., was found on the floor of his room in a hotel this morning. A hypodermic syringe and an eyedropper were clutched in his right hand. An envelope nearby contained some few grains of white powder.

PEACE-TIME GARDENS FEEDING 9,000,000

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(UP)—More than 3,000,000 peace-time gardens are assisting unemployed and part-time workers.

The president's committee on unemployment relief was informed today that gardens aiding in the nation's battle against depression are providing food needs for approximately 9,000,000 persons.

Courage Fund

Atlantans of every walk of life continued Saturday to pay tribute to the heroic sacrifice of Frank C. Foster, city detective, who was killed Wednesday night by four negro bandits when he resisted their attempt to hold up a delicatessen on North Boulevard. The fund, started by The Constitution as a "courage fund" for the slain detective's widow and two young children, had passed the $300 mark Saturday.

tax plan was adopted after prolonged and exhaustive deliberation."

Laying aside his personal objections to a sales tax, the Texas democrat added he was ready "to yield temporarily every economic opinion I have ever held to reach that goal—the financial salvation of my country."

Delayed Until Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Crisp obtained permission to delay further consideration of the bill until Tuesday and voiced opposition to the efforts of the anti-sales groups to force it back to the ways and means committee for revision.

Taking the floor, the Georgian looked over the angry house members and said:

"Gentlemen, I may be defeated, but I am never a quitter and I do not run under fire. We have reported this bill to the house. The house has a perfect right to work its will. The house has a perfect right to reject any and all of it.

"I say to you that if the house should reject the manufactures tax of the bill, the committee on ways and means, I hope, will present to you another program, and I say to you frankly I know of no other program that can be presented which will raise the money to balance the budget except the treasury program, picking out certain items.

In No Frame of Mind.

"Now, gentlemen, I do not believe the house is in a proper frame of mind to legislate today. I think it would do us all good to have an opportunity to cool off and to think. I think it is the part of wisdom that that course be pursued. I hope we may reach some understanding when the committee next resumes its consideration of this bill that we may take up, even out of order, the controverted sections, and see if we can dispose of them."

Representative Crisp said tonight that on Tuesday the house would go directly to the sales tax provision of the bill for a decision. Also, when the house has concluded amending the revenue measure he will ask separate roll call votes on some of the changes made in the committee bill.

"I am certainly going to ask one on the Swing amendment," he asserted.

That was the amendment putting surtaxes back at the war-time level.

INCOME TAX RECEIPTS CONTINUE TO DECLINE

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Further declines in tax receipts from 1931 incomes were shown today at the treasury.

The statement for March 17, the third day of collections, showed receipts for that day of $24,269,074, as compared with $44,178,143 on the comparative date a year ago.

The payments brought the receipts for the month to $124,581,907 as compared with $239,123,981 for the same period last year. Total income taxes for the fiscal year were increased to $782,703,249, as compared with $1,637,487,567 a year ago.

The receipts decreased the government's deficit from $1,843,478,962 to $1,829,443,080.

McDUFFIE FAVORS CUTTING OF SALARIES

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—The personal opinion that "every man should take a cut," came today from the chairman of the house committee drafting a bill to reduce government salaries.

Explaining he could not speak for the entire committee, since it had not yet agreed on a bill, Chairman McDuffie said congress should overlook nothing in its efforts to balance the budget.

"We're considering a tax bill to do the work," he said. "Another way of helping to balance the budget is to cut all expenses—and by that I mean all of them, including salaries. We've got to have substantial cuts, too."

McDuffie said he hoped his special economy subcommittee would have "two or three proposals" on salary reductions ready for the full committee to act upon Monday.

"The committee can take its choice," he added.

CONGRESSMAN WRIGHT OPPOSES SALES TAX

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(Special.)—Declaring that he is convinced a majority of the house is opposed to the revenue bill in its present form, Representative William C. Wright, of the fourth Georgia congressional district, issued a statement tonight condemning the manufacturers' sales tax provision and demanded that sweeping reductions be made in the salaries of government employes "beginning at the highest and including members of congress."

516 GEORGIA FARMERS GET FEDERAL LOANS

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Crop production loans have been given 516 Georgia farmers from the $50,000,000 fund appropriated by congress to help finance spring planting.

For the country loans totalling $598,971 have been made to 3,500 farmers. The loans average slightly more than $170 each.

Loans made to farmers in South Carolina, Georgia, North Carolina and Florida total $230,351 from the Washington office. C. L. Cobb, manager, said 5,000 loans a day are expected to be handled next week by an extra staff of 250 clerks.

South Carolina loans to date total 925; North Carolina 228, and Florida 39.

M. L.—I received my Astrological Forecast and found it very interesting. Will you please tell me if I will be married in 1932?

Ans.—The desired marriage with the one you have in mind will take place about the second week of the coming July. This will take place in Atlanta, but shortly after this you two will go to make your home in the city of Savannah.

F. K.—I am very much impressed with your ability to answer questions. Will you please tell me where my gentleman friend is?

Ans.—This friend at present is employed as a salesman for a firm with headquarters in Chicago, and is not stationed at any one place. He is having fair success and will return to your town for a short visit during the early part of May.

A. R.—I received my Astrological Reading in October and am very much pleased with it. When and where will I meet my future husband, and what will his occupation be?

Ans.—You will meet your future husband in Atlanta. He will be engaged in educational work. You will make your home in Savannah after your marriage.

A. B.—Having ability to do such amazing work, will you please tell me what line of work I should follow to be successful?

Ans.—You have a natural aptitude for salesmanship and in this line you will acquire most success. It seems that in real estate or insurance work you will be most happy and have the greatest opportunities for good financial income.

E. C.—I had a reading from you and was very much pleased with it. It is about one of the best I have ever had. Will I ever marry the man I go with and when?

Ans.—You will marry this man, but not until the early part of March of next year. He has certain ideals and goals he wishes to reach before accepting responsibilities and this will make necessary this delay, but will also cause a more happy married life when the time comes.

V. A.—I have read your column with much interest. Where is my father living?

Ans.—Your father is at present living in the vicinity of Nashville and you will see him again when he returns to Atlanta during the latter part of next month.

M. H.—I received my forecast in November and am very pleased with it. When may my husband expect the city position he wishes?

Ans.—Your husband may expect this position during the early part of May, and this will be permanent for him during the balance of 1932.

M. M.—I have read with interest your column in the paper. When and where will I move and when will my son find employment?

Ans.—You will remain in your own town about two months longer and then will move to the city of Savannah. Your son will be successful in getting work there shortly afterwards.

J. K.—I am greatly interested in your ability. Will I sell my property this year?

Ans.—You will be able to sell this property for the price you want, but not until about the middle of May. Immediately after that you will make a trip to Wilmington and will become engaged in business in that city.

M. G.—I am well pleased with my Astrological Reading. Who and when will I marry?

Ans. — You will marry the one you have in mind now in early November of this year. Although this does not seem possible because of financial reasons, it will come about because of better conditions during the spring and summer.

A. S.—I received my 1932 forecast and am very pleased with it. When will my husband get back to work?

Ans.—Your husband will be employed for a short time during May and will get his regular work back the first week in June. This will be steady for him as long as he wishes to stay.

R. C.—I am greatly interested in your ability to answer questions. Will I be a success financially in the work I am about to start?

Ans.—This work will be discouraging at first with little income but if you continue it will prove to be worth while. You may look for real financial results after the first of June.

M. K.—I have read of your wonderful readings and am asking you a question. Where is my son?

Ans.—It seems at present that your son is in the city of Savannah, and will return about the middle of May. He is doing quite well there and will correspond with you in the near future.

C. C.—I am interested in your column and would like to know where W. is living and will he ever come back?

Ans.—W. at present is living in a suburb of Savannah and will return in June. He will remain in Atlanta just for the summer and will return in the fall to Savannah, where his real opportunity lies.

J. I.—I am much interested in your wonderful work. Will I ever go back to Texas?

Ans.—Your family is in Texas and it seems that your most happiness will be found there. You will return to make your permanent home in the city of San Antonio in April.

R. E.—I am very pleased with my 1932 forecast and am greatly interested in your ability to answer questions. Can you describe the man I will marry?

Ans.—The man you will marry is tall, dark, good-looking, with an air of dignity which commands respect. He is at present in an executive capacity with a large firm in Savannah and you will meet him in that city when you visit there this summer.

A.—I received my forecast sometime ago and was much interested. Will you tell me if the man I have in mind will ever come back, and when?

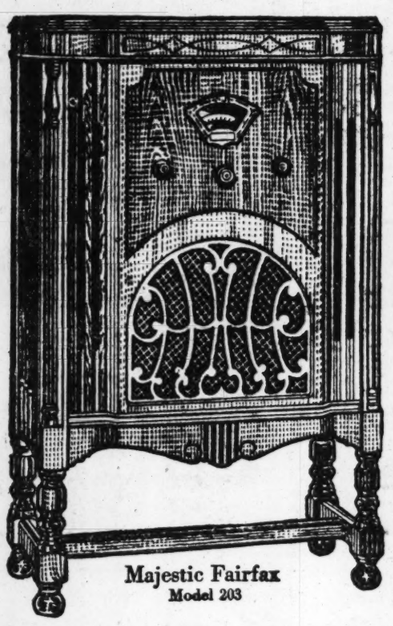

Ans.—This man will come back to you in about six weeks and your marriage to him will take place the early part of July. He is at present making a good business connection which will bring fair income in the future.

'Buy Georgia Products Week' To Be Inaugurated Monday

Organizations Formed in Many Cities of State To Work for Success of Trade Stimulation.

Consumption of state-grown products will begin in earnest Monday when "Buy Georgia Products Week" will be launched with several cities and towns working with organized groups to further the cause of prosperity, according to Roy LeCraw, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Forward Georgia Committee, organization sponsoring the movement.

Mr. LeCraw said that numerous cities and towns had organized groups of editors, mayors and civic and business leaders which were functioning, including Athens, Cordele, Tifton, Jackson, Vidalia, Moultrie, Cairo, Columbus, Hawkinsville, Cochran, McDonough, Thomaston and others.

The Fifth District of the Georgia Press Association will hold a Forward Georgia meeting at Vidalia on March 28, at which time editors and civic leaders of the district will be hosts to citizens from various sections of the state at a Forward Georgia banquet. Speakers who will attend the banquet include D. G. Bickers and W. G. Sutlive, of Savannah; Jack Williams, president of the Georgia Press Association; Roy LeCraw, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Scott Allen, of Atlanta, and J. C. Robinson, secretary of the Forward Georgia movement.

Beginning Monday and continuing through the week, several of the largest business concerns in the state will hold special sales calculated to stimulate the "Buy Georgia Products" campaign. Only those products grown in Georgia will be advertised to the public. Among the firms participating are Rogers', Inc., Quality Service Stores, Sears, Roebuck & Co., Rich's, Inc., Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, Jacobs' Pharmacies, J. M. High & Co., Davison-Paxon Co. and others.

Mr. LeCraw requested communities not now stressing the Forward Georgia move to organize at once into groups which would stimulate interest in the consumption of home-grown products.

ATLANTA 8TH IN LIST OF 'CLEANEST CITIES'

City's Rating Should Be Much Higher, Jones and Von Herrmann Say.

Although statistics presented engineers attending an air conditioning conference at Cleveland Saturday placed Atlanta eighth in the list of cleanest cities of the country, Andrew W. Jones, city smoke inspector, said the listing was taken in 1927, and that a new reading would place Atlanta near the top of the list.

C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist, corroborated Jones in saying that no recent count had been made for Atlanta. Von Herrmann made the last count for the federal government.

"Atlanta has made rapid strides in clarification of its atmosphere of smoke and dust particles," Jones said. "We are 80 per cent clear of smoke, which means that about 80 per cent of the furnaces are using modern smokeless equipment, and our work is progressing all the time."

St. Louis was listed as having made the greatest strides in clarification by Howard C. Murphy, expert, speaking before the Cleveland convention.

The cleanest cities were found to come in the following order, based on a count of dust and smoke particles in one cubic foot of air tested:

Boston, 5,360; San Francisco, 6,580; New Orleans, 6,600; Denver, 6,740; Washington, 7,800; Des Moines, 8,370; Minneapolis, 8,470; Atlanta, 9,460; Kansas City, 9,700; New York, 9,760; Philadelphia, 9,880; Columbus, Ohio, 10,160; Toledo, 10,700; Millwalkee, 11,460; Baltimore, 11,980.

Robbers Fare Badly.

Pre-Easter Services To Be Held At Christian Church During Week

Beginning this morning and continuing through the week, pre-Easter services will be held at the Peachtree Christian church, with unusually beautiful musical programs arranged for celebration by the congregation of the "Week of Worship."

Inaugurated at services this morning by the Rev. Robert W. Burns, pastor, in a sermon, entitled, "The Tumult and the Shouting," the observance of the week will include services at 8 o'clock every night, at which a group of messages based on the lives of "His Mother," "John," "Pilate," and "Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus," will comprise a nightly sermon on "The Heroes of the Passion Week."

At 5 o'clock this evening Dr. Burns will preach on "The Seven Words of Jesus."

The special services will be brought to a close Easter Sunday with the sermon, "The Power of the Resurrection."

Special music by the famous choirs of the church will be rendered every night in connection with the services, under direction of Mrs. Victor B. Clark. On Thursday evening, at celebration of the aniversary of the Lord's Supper, all groups in the religious life of Atlanta will be represented. In addition to Dr. Burns there will preside the Rev. R. W. Oakey, pastor of the Peachtree Presbyterian, and the Rev. Adiel J. Moncrief Jr., pastor of the Oakland City Baptist churches, and members of every denomination in the city have been invited to attend.

Particular significance is attached by leaders of the Peachtree Christian church to the fact that a Presbyterian and a Baptist minister will take part in the Lord's Prayer service. In the beginning of the Christian church more than 100 years ago, the early leaders of that group were members of the Presbyterian church. Later, for many years, there was a union with the Baptist church. With both of these groups there was a division over issues which now have ceased to divide the three churches, and the Thursday evening services will dramatically witness the existence of a happier spirit among the churches.

From 1 to 3 o'clock Friday afternoon devotional messages by seven of the city's most prominent ministers will feature the services around the seven sayings of Christ during the hours He was upon the cross. Those to take part in the delivery of these messages are Dr. D. P. McGeachy, president of the Christian Council and pastor of Decatur Presbyterian church; Dr. S. S. Daughtry, pastor, Westminster Presbyterian church; Dr. R. K. Smith, Church of the Epiphany; Dr. John S. Jenkins, Trinity Methodist Episcopal, South; Dr. Wilburn S. Smith, Jackson Hills Baptist; Dr. R. J. Broyles, Peachtree Road Methodist Episcopal, South, and Dr. H. A. DeWald, St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church.

DR. LOUIE D. NEWTON OFF FOR ARKANSAS

Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, will leave Atlanta this afternoon for Arkadelphia, Ark., where he goes to deliver the Flenniken lectures at Ouachita College, the Baptist college for men in Arkansas. The lectureship is a foundation established by Mrs. Flenniken, of El Dorado, in honor of her husband and provides for annual series of lectures on some phase of applied Christianity. The lectures are published in book form.

Dr. Newton's theme for the 10 lectures will be "Every day religion as revealed in the Sermon on the Mount." Former Baptist leaders who have delivered the lectures are E. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary; George W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist church, Dallas, Texas; George W. McDaniel, pastor of the First Baptist church, Richmond, Va.; W. F. Powell, pastor of the First Baptist church, Nashville, Tenn., and Dr. John E. White, president of the Georgia Baptist convention and pastor of the First Baptist church, Savannah, who died last year.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OPENS DRIVE TODAY

The Presbyterian church in the United States will launch a campaign to raise approximately $12,000,000 for all budget requirements, with $2,500,000 for benevolent work today.

The territory of the church extends from Baltimore, Md., to El Paso, Texas, and from Kansas City, Mo., to Miami, Fla. It has approximately 460,000 members.

Committeemen in the budget campaign are:

Thomas W. Currie, of Austin, Texas, chairman; R. B. Clinton, of Memphis, Tenn.; W. M. Everett, of Atlanta; Dr. F. W. Gregg, of Rock Hill, S. C.; Dr. J. H. Henderlite, of Gastonia, N. C.; Dr. W. E. JAPS TO RESIST INVOCATION OF PACT

Over-Sea

BY BYRON DARNTON.
Associated Press Cable Editor.

WEIMAR, Germany. — (AP)—In this, its birthplace, the German republic Sunday begins a week of festivities commemorating the hundredth anniversary of the death of John Wolfgang Von Goethe, one of Germany's greatest writers.

Starting Sunday evening, March 20, and lasting through the week, a program has been prepared in which the leading authorities on Goethe in this and other lands will participate. Tomorrow's program begins with a play in the German national theater where the city players of Berlin will produce "Goetz Von Berlichingen."

Monday's program opens at noon with the exhibition of Goethe collections in the Land museum, followed by an address by the German novelist, Thomas Mann. A concert of music popular during the life of Goethe will follow Dr. Mann's address. Another play, "Egmont," will be given in the national theater at night.

Tuesday, March 22, a memorial service will be held commemorating the day of the master's death. Professor Julius Peterson, president of the Goethe Society, will speak. An evening performance of "Torquato Tasso" will be given Tuesday. Three lectures on Goethe also will be given by Dr. Erwin Kolbenheyer, Munich; Dr. Hans Eibl, Vienna, and Walter Von Molo, of Berlin.

Wednesday's program includes lectures by the Goethe authorities representing Sweden, England, France and Czechoslovakia.

American interest in the week's program centers in the address Thursday by Dr. Schreiber, of Yale University, who will speak on "Goethe and the United States." Similarly the influence of Goethe on their native lands will be discussed by Dr. Ortega Y Gasset, Madrid; Professor J. G. Scholte, Amsterdam, and Dr. Bleyer, Budapest, and Dr. Farinelli, rome. Goethe's work "Iphigenie Auf Tauris" will be presented in the National theater Thursday night.

Another Goethe lecture will be given on Friday by Dr. Franz Kock, of the University of Vienna, followed by the Goethe symphony concert, assisted by the Weimar orchestra, and Men's Singing Verein.

Goethe's effect on world literature will be the subject of the address Saturday by Dr. Fritz Strich, of the University of Berne. "Clavigo" is the play selected for presentation that night.

Easter Sunday Gerhart Hauptmann, prominent German author, is scheduled for the principal address followed by a concert of Goethe songs.

On Easter Sunday night the first part of Faust will be presented, to be followed by the second part Monday night, concluding the commemorative exercises.

Stratosphere Balloon Rises 28,020 Feet

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, March 19.—(AP)—The balloon "Ernst Brandenburg," manned by Prague scientists, which went up from Bitterfield, Germany, this morning for substratospheric investigations, landed at Feldberg, on the Austro-Czechoslovak frontier, tonight. It was reported to have reached 28,020 feet.

The scientists reported that the object of the ascension had been achieved.

Professor Auguste Piccard, the Belgian, last May ascended into the stratosphere to a height of 52,500 feet, almost 10 miles, and established a balloon altitude record.

He ascended to get information on the stratosphere, or isothermal, layer. In that portion of the upper atmophere the systematic rise and fall of temperature ceases.

Ex-King George Seeks More Funds for Helen

FLORENCE, Italy, March 19.—(AP) Former King George of Greece, whose sister is Princess Helen, divorced wife of King Carol of Rumania, was on the way to Bucharest today in an effort to induce the king to increase Helen's financial allowance.

Persons close to the former royal family of Greece said George intended to go into the matter very thoroughly, and there were reports that he might even be able to bring about a reconciliation between his sister and King Carol.

France May Limit American Machinery

PARIS, March 19. — (AP) — The American Chamber of Commerce announced today it had been informed the French government was considering a quota on textile machinery which would particularly affect American winding machines. A committee has been appointed to see what can be done to prevent it.

FRENCH BROKER HELD FOR ILLEGAL TRADING

PARIS, March 19.—(UP)—Jacques Barrault, prominent French stock broker, was arrested today charged with illegal maneuvers in connection with Kreuger & Toll shares prior to the suicide of Ivar Kreuger. Police charge he sold large amounts of Kreuger & Toll shares on the New York Stock Exchange, although he had contracted merely to hold them as security and not sell them.

SOVIETS UTILIZING ARID WASTE LANDS TO RAISE CATTLE

Chinese-Border Cattle Barons Passing Before New Chains of Government Backed Farms.

BY CHARLES S. SMITH.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Robert P. Lamont Jr., son of the secretary of commerce, who has sailed for Russia to investigate an offer to advise the soviets how to bring cattle production there up to a parity with the United States, will find the cattle barons who formerly dominated the wild mountain country along the western border of China are rapidly giving way to cattle collectives.

The boys who were the lords of the Turkestan and Mongolian border regions have been dispossessed. Like the cattle kings of Wyoming and Texas, their days are numbered. It is not settlers and small farmers, but the soviet government chains of cattle farms which are displacing them.

Humble herdsmen who formerly worked for the potentates have been organized by the government and sent out to work under the direction of experts who hope to give Russia a better meat ration.

Kazaks and other primitive tribesmen have built corrals and winter shelters out of willow and turf. Roads have been built. Hay has been harvested, and every caution taken to guard against loss of stock when the snow is too thick for grazing on the winter feeding ground.

Semi-Arid Districts.

Great semi-arid districts in Siberia and Turkestan which cannot be utilized for general farming have been turned over to collectives. The Kokpektinsk collective has about 2,000,000 acres of land assigned to it for use in carrying out its agreement with the government live stock organization and handled 45,000 longhorns last year, turning 25,000 over to the government meat trust after they had been fattened on rich summer grasses in the highland plateaus.

These cattle had to be driven several hundred miles from the railroad to the chain cattle farms, where they were kept till it was time to take them through passes in the Xolbi mountains to rich feeding grounds, where there were no mosquitoes nor gadflies.

Until 1928 the grazing lands in these mountains were controlled by wealthy beys who killed all outsiders who tried to range cattle there. But they were finally driven out. Government forces and their herdsmen were organized by soviet officials to carry on the industry.

STEEL HELMETERS OUT OF ELECTION

Some of Party Will Vote for Hitler, But Admit Hopelessness.

BERLIN, March 19.—(AP)—The certain wtihdrawal of the steel-helmeter Theodore Duesterberg from the presidential run-off election April 10 was indicated tonight when the national party announced it would not participate in the second contest for the presidency.

An official party statement indicated its support would be thrown to Adolf Hitler, the nazi leader, although it was conceded that the re-election of President Von Hindenburg was certain.

At the same time it was made known that the united patriotic societies had decided to vote for Hitler in the run-off, but the steel-helmet affiliates of the organization announced they did not consider themselves bound by this decision.

It was indicated that the steel helmeters would decide tomorrow on what stand they would take.

Duesterberg's candidacy drew its chief support from the steel helmeters, of which he was an official, although his entry into the first election a week ago was engineered by Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, the nationalist party leader.

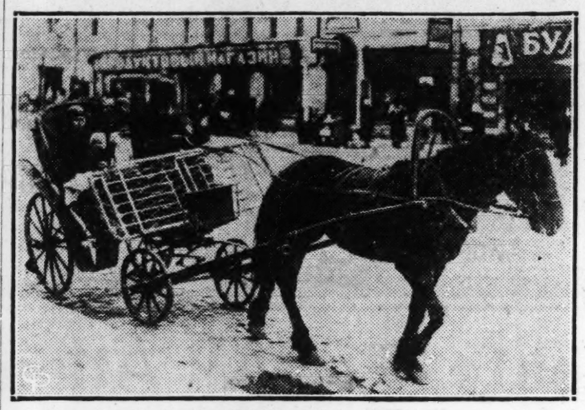

Hugenberg engineered Duesterberg's candidacy solely to have votes to bargain with in a second ballot, but the steel helmeters' 2,557,876 votes of the more than 37,500,000 cast last Sunday was disappointing.

Of that total President Von Hindenburg gleaned more than 18,600,000 votes, almost the required majority, while Hitler got 11,300,000.

The nationalist party statement today said its objection to Von Hindenburg remained unchanged and that it would stand by an agreement with the nazis made at Harzberg last October to overthrow "the system," meaning the government of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening. The party added it must now bend its efforts to dislodge the "system" in Prussia.

Earlier today Hermann Goering, one of Hitler's lieutenants, predicted that the national socialists would win 40 per cent of the seats in the Prussian diet in the election in Prussia on April 24, and would form a government with the aid of other national parties.

Desire for Comforts Revises Soviet Collective State Plan

The Russian Kulak, a "disappearing" type.

BY RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
(Copyright by St. Louis Post-Dispatch and Distributed by Central Press.)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., March 19. The innate human desire for personal comforts and conveniences is proving itself strong enough to force the bolshevik leaders to revise their plans for reaching the goal of a perfect collective state. The ordinary Russian is willing to work for posterity but he also wants some of the fruits of his own labors.

The Russians are a simple, backward people and their desires cannot be compared with those of advanced countries like the United States, Germany, England and France. Just now they want an increase in the essentials of life—more food, warmer clothing, better shelter—and the prospects are good for obtaining them. They are just beginning to think about having their own radios, telephones, automobiles and other conveniences. The government promises that these things will be within the reach of all but wisely neglects to set the exact date.

The low standards of the Russian masses now theoretically the privileged class—cannot be over-emphasized. One of the favorite old benedictions was, "May you always eat white bread." Black bread was—and is—the staple food. The old generation did not think in terms of cake.

Making Natives Like Progress.

In contrast with the old regime the present leaders want the people to aspire to a better way of living. The government is actively directing the formation of appetites by seeing that some of the non-essentials are available to selected groups for group use. Even where there is no widespread demand, oil lamps are replaced by electric lights. Radio sets are to be found in remote village community houses and on collective and state farms. Bathtubs are being installed in the newer apartment houses. It is planned to sell some of the Russian-made automobiles to groups of individuals.

The government, of course, in true socialistic fashion tries to inculcate in the masses a willingness to sacrifice individual desires for the welfare of the group or state. The struggle for existence has been so hard for most Russians, however, that they are not yet prepared to embrace this altruistic doctrine. The crowds around the shop windows displaying a few

Definite Check Is Believed Made On Identity of Missing Explorer

BY C. A. POWELL,
(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 19.—(UP)—Stephan Rattin, Swiss trapper, prepared today to beat back into Brazil's jungle, convinced he has located the missing Colonel P. H. Fawcett, British explorer.

From a group of pictures of men resembling Fawcett, Rattin picked out Fawcett's picture today as the mysterious white man he had come across with a tribe of natives several weeks ago. The white man, according to Rattin's story, said first he was an "Englishman" and later said "Fawcett."

Based on this test made at the British consul general's office, plus similarities in descriptions of the missing explorer as furnished by relatives in England, Rattin prepared to start immediately back to the area where he came across the natives and the wind and sun-bronzed white man.

"I promised Colonel Fawcett I would bring aid, and that promise will be fulfilled regardless of whether British officials take action," Rattin said.

He planned to leave tonight for Sao Paulo to wind up his affairs and

RAILROAD STRIKE AGAIN THREATENS TO DISRUPT SPAIN

Failure of Government To Support Nationalization of Roads Criticized.

MADRID, March 19.—(UP)—The Spanish government may shortly find itself confronted with another attempt to organize a railroad men's strike, just at a time when revenue of the country's important network is on the decline. Since the railroads obviously cannot meet the new demands for wage increases, it is the government that is looked upon to supply them.

In the last part of 1931 the railroad men's agitation for a strike was halted through the adoption of a resolution of their labor unions, demanding that the government favor nationalization of the railroads. This has not been done, and the strike has not yet been called, due mostly to the fact that there are three socialist ministers in the cabinet, and it is hard, if not impossible, for the socialists to be both for and against the government at the same time.

The biggest argument in favor of rail nationalization is that, while there are three big systems, in addition there are between 80 and 90 short lines, all of them having large boards of directors, technical councils, officials, etc., to which large salaries are paid.

BRITON RAPS U. S. FOR DEBT POLICY

Lloyd George, in New Book, Declares America Hasn't Played the Game.

BY EDWARD STANLEY.

LONDON, March 19.—(AP)—The fiery David Lloyd George declares in a book to be published Monday that payment of war debts and reparations cannot be resumed on a pre-moratorium scale "within any predictable time."

In the bristling book, "The Truth About Reparations and War Debts," England's wartime premier considers Great Britain has been generous, but that France and the United States have not played the game with war debts and reparations.

Lloyd George, who only this week returned to active politics after a long illness, reviews the whole story of international debts in a brief volume which sets out fact and opinion with machine-gun speed.

Even the entire abolition of debts, he says, is now "unlikely by itself to restore a full reversal of the present tide of depression unless there also is a breaking away from the policy of economic nationalism which the existence of these international payments has fostered, and a general lowering of tariff barriers, and resumption of full and vigorous international commerce."

Immediate Decision.

The Welshman argues it is vital for nations to arrive at an immediate agreement.

"Playing for time is not playing for safety," he says, "but is fooling with the accelerator while the car is rushing down the hill.

"The whole machinery of the existing economic order is at stake. If it crashes, it will not be worth picking up for scrap iron. It is no time for nerveless vagueness and diplomatic hesitancy. . . .

"I cannot help saying," he goes on elsewhere, "that I think in this matter of debt settlements that Great Britain has had very shabby treatment.

"Had Britain been the creditor and the United States, France and Italy the debtors, I should be a little ashamed as a Britisher if we had treated in this fashion a country so closely linked with ours in language, history and race.

"Perhaps it is unjust to attribute the character of the settlement to harshness of the American treasury. It would be fairer to ascribe it to the softness of those who represented our exchequer."

Baldwin Gets Blame.

Lloyd George blames Stanley Baldwin for high British debt funding, and declares the funding a hindrance to the solution of the whole question.

Andrew Mellon, then secretary of the United States treasury, he describes as "keen, experienced, hard and ruthless." Baldwin he describes as "casual, soft, easy-going, and at that time 'raw.'"

"Mr. Baldwin admits that since then he has learned a great deal. At that time he merited his constant boast that he was only 'a simple country man.'

"The business transaction of that date (the British debt funding agreement) between Mr. Mellon and Mr. Baldwin was in the nature of a negotiation between a weasel and its quarry."

Elsewhere in the book Lloyd George says that if America in discussing debts would put on the screws, forcing European disarmament to the point of harmlessness, it would be a service to humanity.

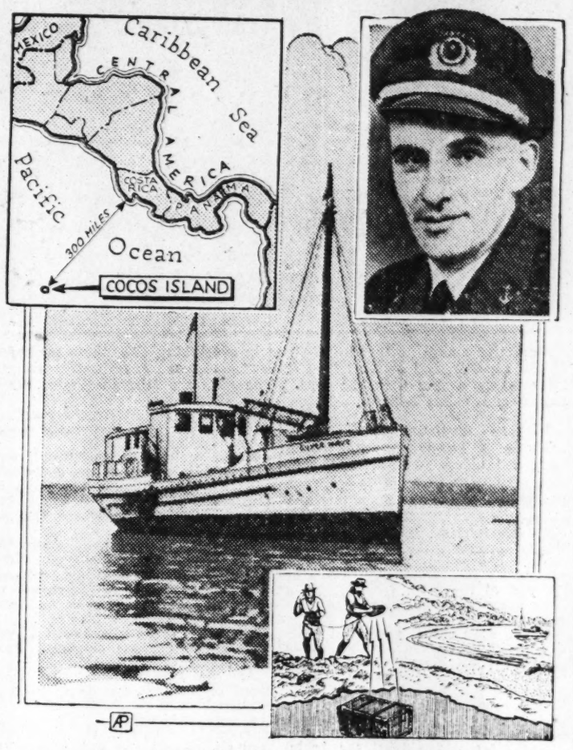

Dutch, British Fail To Frame Rubber Pact

LONDON, March 19.—(AP)—"Mystery hiking" will be inaugurated by one of the British railroads on Good Friday morning.

A train will leave Paddington station with young hikers who will be handed itineraries of rambles at one of two stops on the train's route.

Not even the conductor or train crew will know where the train is headed until sealed orders are opened after it leaves. Passengers also will be in the dark. The train will stop twice to enable hikers to alight and will return in the evening and pick them up.

Gold Hunters Replace Maps With Electrical Apparatus

The motorship Silver Wave is now en route from Vancouver, B. C., to Cocos island, off Costa Rica, to hunt buried pirate treasure with the aid of an electrical device expected to indicate the presence of metal by signals in telephone receivers. Captain Eldred Ransen (above) is master of the ship bearing an expedition headed by Colonel J. E. Leckie.

BY R. W. NEILL.

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 19. (AP)—Supplanting the legendary pirate chart with its skull and crossbones, an electrical divining apparatus is to be used by modern treasure hunters on far south Cocos island.

With this new gadget to take the place of musty maps familiar to readers of pirate lore, an expedition now headed toward this unpopulated Costa Rican dependency hopes to locate the supposedly fabulous wealth buried there by roisterous buccaneers and pirate chieftains.

Head Phones Used.

The operator of the metal-detecting device wears head phones connected with coils of wire on a wheel-shaped frame which an assistant carries.

The apparatus registers a sound when it is directly above a spot containing metal, its inventor claims, and an acre of ground can be covered in about an hour.

Twenty-four men, commanded by Colonel J. E. Leckie, of Vancouver, were aboard the motorship Silver Wave—once tender for Roald Amundsen's flight across the north pole—when it left here in charge of its master, Captain Eldred Ransen.

Exclusive Rights Granted.

After a stop at San Pedro, Cal., the party planned to proceed the remaining 2,200 miles to the island, about 300 miles southwest of the republic of Costa Rica.

The Cocos Island Treasure, Ltd., has been granted exclusive right by the government of Costa Rica to search for the buried treasure.

The company was formed as a result of the many tales of valuables deposited there by Spanish priests, grandees and cavaliers, thieves, mutineers, murderers and soldiers of fortune.

Stories of booty hidden on the beautiful island cover a period of nearly three centuries and students of the period have estimated treasure buried there would total more than $100,000,000.

The "Devonshire" treasure alone, said to have been deposited there by a British naval officer, Captain Grahame, who served with distinction under Nelson at Trafalgar, was estimated at 350 tons of bullion and other valuables taken from Lower California, Mexico and Peru.

A British warship sent to deal with him was beaten in battle and the surviving officers and crew given the option of joining the pirates or "walking the plank." Most of them became pirates. Three other warships later captured Grahame and his crew.

Another British captain, Edward Davis, who became leader of a thousand buccaneers, was said to have looted the Nicaraguan city of Leon and also Guayaquil, Ecuador, of many millions of dollars' worth of gold and jewels, which were buried on Cocos.

There are numerous stories of other valuables deposited there, and only the "Edgecombe" expedition, under command of Captain Boig, was said to have uncovered any of the loot.

This expedition reached the island in 1841 and was rewarded by the finding of only a small part of the vast wealth the small island was believed to contain.

SOVIET TO EXECUTE 8 FOR SABOTAGE

BY STANLEY P. RICHARDSON.

MOSCOW, March 19.—(AP)—The crime of sabotage, which has been gaining increased attention from soviet authorities of late, brought sentences of death to eight persons today in four different criminal cases in various sections of the country.

More than twoscore were sentenced to prison terms on conviction of sabotage in the same cases.

Recently several railroad workers were given severe punishment for similar crimes, and only last May the supreme court designated "carelessness" as a crime, and all district courts throughout the soviet union were ordered to conduct their trials accordingly.

At Voroshilovsk today the leader of a gang of 33 charged with systematic looting of the Central Workers' Co-operative supplies for five years, was sentenced to death, and the others drew prison terms ranging from 1 to 10 years.

The racketeers were charged with stealing manufactured goods and then selling them on the private market.

The head of a group of robbers found guilty of stealing railroad freight cargoes in the Rostov-on-Don district got the extreme penalty, and three others were given 10 years' imprisonment.

The Sverdlovsk district court today sentenced three men to be shot and 45 others to prison terms for "attempting to reduce the city to starvation by stealing from workers their supply of foodstuffs.

At Leningrad three others, including two members of the presidium of the Timber Transport Trust, were sentenced to be shot "for sabotage" within the organization.

CRAMER PAPERS FOUND AT SEA

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, March 19.—(AP)—A Dutch trawler pounding along through the north Atlantic stopped long enough to fish a package out of the sea and today when it was turned over to the American consulate it was found to contain papers belonging to Parker D. Cramer, American flier lost last August in an attempt to fly across the ocean.

Cramer's flying license, a permit for his flight across the Atlantic, a description of his ship, and a letter from his mother were among the papers. The trawler picked them up just east of the Orkney islands.

Cramer started from Detroit secretly and the first the world knew about his flight was last August when he landed in Greenland. It was then disclosed that he was trying to map a route north of the great circle between the United States and Europe.

On August 7 he was forced down off the Faroe islands, but flew back and took off again for Bergen and Copenhagen the next day. A storm drove him back to the Shetland islands, but he resumed the flight and never was heard from afterward. The wreck of the plane was found by a trawler last September.

Guggenheim Spikes Resignation Rumors

HAVANA, March 19.—(AP)—United States Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim today denied the periodical rumor that he intends to resign.

Baychimo, Ghost Ship, Reappears In Icy Waters of the Arctic Sea

POINT BARROW, Alaska, March 19.—(AP)—The ghost-ship Baychimo has reappeared in the ice of the Arctic sea.

The Canadian fur-trading vessel which disappeared twice since last fall when she was frozen in between Point Barrow and Nome, was discovered about 10 miles off Point Barrow when the ice pack broke Thursday.

Natives, fishing about five miles off shore, said the Baychimo loomed up like a ghost from one of the deep gullies.

The vessel, apparently little damaged, was held in the packed ice, which because of its roughness kept the natives from boarding it.

The crew of the Baychimo left her to establish quarters on the shore after she was caught by the ice. Storms caused the pack to drift and the ship disappeared. Men familiar with the ice jams said she would be crushed and sunk.

William Graham, Alaskan airman, and Mrs. Edna Christofferson, Portland sportswoman, are in Alaska now preparing for a flight to salvage furs reportedly left aboard the vessel.

The ship's master and officials of the Hudson Bay Company, however, said all valuables were removed before the Baychimo disappeared.

TOKYO TO OPPOSE EXPECTED ACTION BY UNITED STATES

Recognition of New Manchurian Government in Balance as Nations Dispute China's Rights in Affected Area.

ORIGIN OF REGIME IS BASIS OF ISSUE

Nipponese View Creation of Manchukuo Favorably Because of Interests in New-Born State.

BY MILES W. VAUGHN.

TOKYO, March 19.—(UP)—Japan, viewing sympathetically the new government set up in Manchuria, is determined to resist any efforts by the United States to invoke the nine-power treaty in event of Japanese recognition of the new Manchurian regime.

Reports that Secretary of State Stimson planned to invoke article II of the nine-power pact in event of such recognition, brought an announcement from a government spokesman that resistance would be offered to any such plan.

Article II of the nine-power treaty, of which the United States, Japan and China are signatories, provides none of the contracting parties may enter into an agreement with any power which might impair China's development and maintenance of a stable government.

Japanese authorities contend that the Manchurians themselves created the new Manchurian regime—Manchukuo—and that Manchuria traditionally has been separate from China proper. The government sees no need of immediate recognition of the government established under Henry Pu-yi, since the new regime has assumed responsibilities of former treaties recognizing Japan's position. Pressure of public opinion, the spokesman said, may make such recognition necessary later, however.

Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa, in answering China's protest that Japan had created the new state in Manchuria, not only said that the Manchurians had taken the independent action themselves, but had become disgusted with war-lordism. Japan views the new Manchurian regime sympathetically, he said, because of Japan's extensive interests in the area.

Meanwhile, it was said that the 20,000,000 yen loan which the new regime has urged would be consummated by private Japanese interests if the loan ever is granted.

Sporadic fighting continues in China, according to advices here. One dispatch from Tsitsihar said Chinese troops at Hailar had mutinied and murdered three Japanese.

PROGRESS IS REPORTED IN PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

SHANGHAI, March 19.—(UP)—Highly satisfactory progress has been made toward working out peace between Japanese and Chinese forces in Shanghai, it was announced today after the meeting of the various peace delegates.

The terms of the proposed peace pact were not officially disclosed, pending their submission to Tokio and Nanking.

Meanwhile, authoritative sources understood the peace settlement was based on the following:

1. Hostilities will cease.
2. Chinese will not advance.
3. Japanese will retire to the settlement from settlement border roads.

If all the Japanese forces cannot be accommodated in the Hongkew section they will be billeted temporarily in Chapei. The numbers to be billeted and quartered will be determined by the evacuation commission, composed of Chinese, Japanese, Italian, French and American representatives. These representatives also will supervise withdrawal of troops. Dates for completing the retirement will be determined later.

After completion of the peace plan, a round table will convene to settle all outstanding Chinese and Japanese differences.

British Rails Plan 'Mystery Hikings'

THE HAGUE, March 19.—(AP)—The failure of Anglo-Dutch attempts to frame a rubber restriction scheme was announced today in an official communique.

The announcement recalls that the British and Dutch governments in association with representative growers have been negotiating "to see whether a practical scheme for improvement of the rubber situation can be devised."

"After a careful survey of the situation," the communique said, "the British and Dutch governments have been forced to the conclusion that under present conditions it is impossible to frame and operate an international scheme which would guarantee effective restriction."

SPAIN'S 'PHANTOM MAN' CAPTURED IN SEVILLE

MADRID, March 19.—(UP)—Spain's "phantom man," assassin of Prime Minister Edouardo Dato in 1921, was arrested today in Seville and is being brought with the greatest of precautions back to Madrid.

The phantom man, Ramon Casanelas, killed Dato when the prime minister was attempting to unify the conservative party just after the war. He escaped to Russia, but was convicted of the crime, in absentia, here.

HOOVER ASSURES RAILROADS OF AID

Definite Arrangements Made for Reconstruction Body To Assist.

BY JOHN F. CHESTER.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Holding railroad financial problems to have been unduly magnified in popular belief, President Hoover today reported the government had arranged definitely to aid the nation's carriers meet their obligations.

In a statement, he said a co-ordinated program had been reached by the government and the railways, designed to enable the purchase of new supplies, restore employment on the carriers and elsewhere and re-establish confidence in railroad bonds.

The president inferred that the reconstruction corporation, in co-operation with financial experts of the interstate commerce commission, would provide the federal channels for railroad aid.

Finance Needed.

In this light he included in his statement a thumb-nail analysis of railroad securities. He estimated that between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 would be needed to encompass their obligations for the present year. As much as $60,000,000 will be provided by the Railway Credit Corporation, he said, while many bank loans will be continued.

"Therefore, recourse to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by the railroads," he said, "will be much less than was originally thought, and even the mentioned amounts would be diminished by revival of the bond market and the placing of bond renewals in normal fashion."

All in all, 41 of the nation's railroads have sought from the Reconstruction Corporation, through application to the interstate commerce commission, a total of $297,848,360 in loans. The interstate commerce commission has placed its approval thus far upon 13 of these applications. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in turn, has made actual loans of more than $53,000,000.

Climax to Conferences.

President Hoover's announcement today came as the climax of a series of conferences that have drawn into his office not only the financial leaders and railroad experts of the government, but also the executives of a majority of the country's largest lines. Fifteen rail chiefs came to the White House in a single group late yesterday in answer to his summons.

Repeatedly during the present session of congress, Mr. Hoover has spoken for the railroad. He brought it forward first in his annual message in connection with the original proposal for the creation of the Reconstruction Corporation.

Today the president resurveyed the aims of railroad aid as follows:

"The problem is to handle the situation as a whole so as to lay the foundations for restored employment on the railways and through their purchases of supplies, and at the same time to establish confidence in the security of the bonds whihch are the reliance of great trustee institutions of the United States, which are in fact the property of the entire people. The end to be attained is, therefore, one of increased employment on one hand and stability in the financial structure of the country on the other."

DUBOIS TO CONCLUDE LECTURES THIS WEEK

Beginning Monday evening and continuing through Friday, Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, of New York, editor of The Crisis magazine, will conclude the series of 10 addresses on "The Economic Status of the Negro" which he began at Atlanta University some days ago. The subjects and dates of the remaining lectures, which the public is cordially invited to attend, will be as follows:

"The Black Peasant, 1860-1880," Monday, 8 p. m., Atlanta University; "The New Serfdom, 1880-1900," Tuesday, 4:30 p. m., Spelman College; "American Imperialism, 1875-1920," Wednesday, 4:30 p. m., Morehouse College; "The Newest South, 1918-1932," Thursday, 8 p. m., Atlanta University; "The Economic Future of Black America," Friday, 8 p. m., Atlanta University.

The first five lectures of the series, sketching the negro's economic background from the earliest times, were heard by large and appreciative audiences. The interest, it is expected, will be even keener as the discussion reaches present-day conditions and looks toward the future.

LEWIS P. SKIDMORE WILL LECTURE TODAY

Lewis P. Skidmore, director of the High Museum of Art, will lecture at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon on the "Four Great Periods in Sculpture." The talk will be illustrated and representative examples of Egyptian, Greek, Roman and Gothic sculpture will be shown. There is no admission charge to the museum or to the Sunday afternoon lectures and the general public is invited to attend.

Benjamin E. Shute and Robert S. Rogers, instructors at the museum, have just concluded a month's exhibition of oil paintings at Columbia, S. C., and reports from that city declare the showing was most successful. The exhibit was held under the auspices of the Columbia Art Association.

Yo-Yo Calls for Practice, Say These Girls at the Fox

Practice makes perfect in yo-yo as in everything else, these members of the Fanchon and Marco's "All at Sea" act at the Fox theater, declare after taking a spin with the tops. The girls are Mildred Unger, Ethyl Lankel and Theda Zona.

"Can you do the spinner?"

That's a popular greeting these days, and unless you are conversant with the mysteries of yo-yo, the Philippine disc-top, a mysterious greeting.

To the initiates in the yo-yo fraternity, however, the question, "Can you do the spinner?" means, "Can you throw your yo-yo so it stays at the end of the cord, revolving at a dizzy speed until you flip it back to your hand?"

If you have a real yo-yo and practice faithfully, you'll be able to do the spinner along with the round-the-world, and walking-the-dog tricks. Better start in on a beginner's yo-yo though, one of those two-piece tops that bounce up and down and were not made for trick yo-yoing.

But after you've tried the beginners' top a couple of times, and found out the rhythm that makes the little top keep traveling up and down the cord, it's time for you to graduate to the double string, one-piece yo-yo, and learn those tricks that make yo-yo the fascinating game it is.

Maybe you've seen Amy Subria and some of his experts in the downtown show windows, flipping the yo-yo in a series of unusual spins and twirls that seem easy but—believe the yo-yoers—aren't.

"It's practice, that's all," Amby explained as he made his yo-yo whizz through a program of stunts. "Everybody starts by learning the rhythm of yo-yo throwing and goes on from there.

"No yo-yo thrower was born a good spinner—it always develops. Just keep practicing."

And practicing is just what thousands of children are doing today—practicing how to throw a yo-yo in the approved manner. The strings may tangle and snarl, the yo-yo may turn on its side and wobble wearily, but a stick-to-it policy always breaks down the opposition. And then—gangway for the spinner, the walk-the-dog and the rest of those yo-yo stunts.

Democratic Senate Control Is Predicted by Next Year

Border States' Elections Expected To Rob Republicans of Present One-Vote Lead.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Looking beyond the presidential election, which will hold the center of the stage and into the 30-odd senatorial contests coming along at the same time this year, democrats, it seems safe to predict, are certain to capture control of the upper chamber when the nation goes to the polls next November.

An analysis of the vacancies occurring this year shows the democrats to occupy such a favored position, in fact, that it is possible for the party to lose both the presidency and the lower house and still elect a majority of the senate. Only a republican landslide of the most unexpected proportions can prevent a democratic senatorial victory, it appears.

Democratic advantage lies in the fact that of the 32 senators who come up for election this year, 17 are republicans, some eight or nine of whom are from pivotal states, whereas the 15 democratic members whose terms expire are, practically all of them from states which are either normally democratic or states in which the incumbent is strongly entrenched politically. The one outstanding exception on the democratic side is Kansas, where Senator George McGill, the first democratic member from the Sunflower state in years, must stand for re-election in a republican stronghold. His election to the unexpired term of Vice President Curtis came as one of the upsets of the 1930 contest.

Expectations of a democratic victory are based on the fact that only a single seat now divides the strength of the two major parties in the senate, the present lineup being 48 republicans, 47 democrats and one farmer-laborite, Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota. Thus, a net gain of one seat would make it possible for the minority party to wrest control from the republicans, unless, of course, the lone farmer-laborite casts his lot with the republicans, which would bring about a tie and open the way for a republican vice president, if one is elected, to throw the deciding vote to his party.

The 17 republicans coming up this year and whose terms expire on March 3, 1933, are Bingham, of Connecticut; Blaine, of Wisconsin; Brookhart, of Iowa; Dale, of Vermont; Davis, of Pennsylvania; Glenn, of Illinois; Jones, of Washington; Moses, of New Hampshire; Norbeck, of South Dakota; Nye, of North Dakota; Oddie, of Nevada; Shortridge, of California; Smoot, of Utah; Steiwer, of Oregon; Thomas, of Idaho; Waterman, of Colorado, and Watson, of Indiana.

The 15 democratic members similarly situated are Barkley, of Kentucky; Black, of Alabama; Broussard, of Louisiana; Bulkley, of Ohio; Mrs. Caraway, of Arkansas; Fletcher, of Florida; George, of Georgia; Hawes, of Missouri; Hayden, of Arizona; McGill, of Kansas; Morrison, of North Carolina; Smith, of South Carolina; Thomas, of Oklahoma; Tydings, of Maryland, and Wagner, of New York.

Taking up the democratic group first, it is obvious that democrats will be elected without question in seven of the 15 states involved. These include the normally democratic states of the south, Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina. The three border states of Missouri, Oklahoma and Kentucky might well be added to the list. Of the remaining five, Maryland and Arizona have formed a habit of going democratic more regularly than republican, and there is no present prospect that the two sitting democratic senators from these commonwealths will be unseated.

The three remaining democratic seats offer little encouragement to the republicans, excepting, of course, Kansas, previously referred to. Senator Wagner seems well entrenched in New York, while Senator Bulkley won an impressive victory last time in Ohio.

Contrasted with this situation, the republicans might lose easily any one of the following states: Indiana, Colorado, Oregon, Utah, Nevada, Washington, Illinois and Connecticut, in each of which republican senators come up. In at least six of these eight states, democrats now have either a United States senator or a governor or both. Some democratic leaders extend the list to include the two Dakotas, Iowa, Idaho and even California. Certain it is, however, that in all of these, republican incumbents will meet with vigorous opposition from democratic contenders.

Only in three states is it conceded at this time that republican incumbents or their republican successors will be elected without a serious democratic challenge. These are Pennsylvania, Vermont and Wisconsin. Even in New Hampshire, democrats are planning to challenge Senator Moses, although there is no present indication that the versatile and volatile irreconcilable will be defeated.

Just by way of completing the picture, seven of the 32 members coming up this year are serving unexpired terms, having been appointed by their governors or elected in special elections following the death of a member. These are Senators Bulkley, Morrison, Caraway and McGill, democrats, and Thomas (Idaho), Glenn and Davis, republicans.

The framers of the constitution having intended that the senate be made a continuing body, only a third of its membership comes up for re-election every two years, of course, as con election of the full house membership trasted with the requirement for the every second year.

SIX ARE MENTIONED FOR HARRELSON POST

Half a dozen veteran members of the Atlanta board of education Saturday were mentioned prominently as probable successors to J. Ira Harrelson as president of the board. Harrelson resigned Friday, effective at the next meeting, April 12.

Any caucuses at this time are considered premature, because of the absence from the city of Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, ex-officio member of the board by virtue of his position as chairman of the schools committee of council.

Those mentioned prominently as possible successors to Harrelson, who quit as president in the interest of harmony, are:

Dr. H. J. Penn, fifth ward, and now first vice president of the board; Dr. Noah W. Baird, seventh ward, who was nominated for the post at the January meeting at which Harrelson emerged the victor by a two-vote margin; Dr. Paul A. Whitehead, thirteenth ward; Mrs. A. E. Wilson, twelfth ward; E. H. Sweat, tenth ward, and W. C. Slate, second ward.

MAN STRUCK DOWN BY HIT-AND-RUN AUTO

Injured when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver at Cain and Butler streets, C. Abraham, 26, of 317 Central avenue, was carried to Grady hospital for treatment early Saturday morning. According to witnesses, Abraham was crossing the street when he was hit by a speeding car. The driver, believed to have been a negro, looked back at the unconscious man but did not stop, it was said. Abraham was released after X-rays showed no fracture of the skull. Police were furnished with the license number of the car by W. C. Jackson, who was with Abraham.

Irish Turn Tables On Tardy Mayor

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—The Irish kept Mayor James J. Walker waiting for 25 minutes this afternoon to ride as marshal in the postponed St. Patrick's Day parade.

The mayor, whose belated appearances at public functions have tried the patience of thousands, had promised Parade Chairman Roderick J. Kennedy he would be on time to the minute.

He was, but the 165th infantry, the old 69th, straggled in late. Then they led proudly up Fifth Avenue, as Irish groups fell in turn into the long line.

The mayor sat in a comfortable sedan, which he had chosen instead of the marshal's horse, "because he wanted to sit down tomorrow."

'Hunger Striker' Enters Hospital To Prove He Is Not Taking Food

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(UP) Doubt and skepticism dogged the path of Dr. Frederick F. Wolter today. Angered by accusations that his "hunger strike" for a job was nothing more than a somewhat rigorous diet, the German-born scholar consented to enter a hospital for observation.

"There they will be able to see for themselves that I am not eating anything," Wolter said.

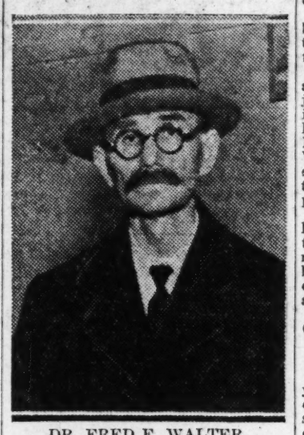

According to Wolter's own claims, given a degree of authenticity by his emaciated appearance, he has not eaten for 20 days except for a peanut taken in a moment of careless abandon. He is 57, tall, lean and gaunt. He has three high scholastic degrees. He maintains that, "like an unwanted cat or dog," he is unable to find a suitable place in society.

"They put unwanted animals out of the way humanely," he said. "Why can't they leave me alone and let me starve myself to death?"

The suggestion that Wolter's "fast" was a fake came from physicians at George Washington University hospital. Dr. Oscar Hunter, of the university medical school, said that a thorough examination showed Wolter had taken small quantities of food recently.

"He shows evidence of some starvation," Dr. Hunter said, "but there is evidence that he has eaten some starchy food, probably either a cracker or bread, and also some form of vegetable food."

"The report is ridiculous," stormed

DR. FRED F. WALTER.

Wolter, who still has strength enough to walk about the city each day. "Does the doctor think I would be fool enough to eat a cracker if I were going to eat? I would take some concentrated food like milk chocolate."

Wolter's indignation gradually subsided as he considered what would be best to do about it. The idea of entering Gallinger hospital, maintained by the District of Columbia for charity cases, was mentioned.

"I'll do it," said Wolter. "It will be an exact test. They will see for themselves that I am not eating anything."

District welfare workers have been attempting to find some way to subject Wolter to forcible feeding. There is no law covering such a case unless insanity is charged and proved. Examinations have been made but Wolter has been cleared of any insanity allegations and until he entered Gallinger hospital officials were powerless to act.

Now that Wolter is at Gallinger, he probably will be kept there to determine the outcome of his case. He may either find suitable employment, become dangerously ill from refusal to eat, or abandon the whole thing as an unprofitable enterprise.

CRIMINOLOGIST DECLARES WOLTER VERY FOOLISH

BALTIMORE, Md., March 19.—(UP)—Dr. Frederick F. Wolter, 57-year-old scholar and holder of three college degrees, now on a hunger strike in Washington, was classed today as highly educated but foolish by James M. Hepbron, Baltimore criminologist and director of the community fund.

SCHLEY HOWARD BACKS ROOSEVELT

Governor Is Only Hope of Nation, Noted Lawyer Says at Greenville.

William Schley Howard, Atlanta attorney and former congressman, told a Roosevelt-for-President rally at Greenville, Ga., Saturday that "The people of this nation in every state are focusing their hopes of salvation from this distressing and chaotic situation upon one man only"—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

He said the New York governor, who is a candidate in the Georgia presidential primary March 23, has "been faithful, true and honest in every trust reposed in him in every political office he ever held. Honesty and efficiency in government has been the lode-star guiding him throughout his public life."

Howard said that after Mr. Roosevelt served as assistant secretary of the navy, he "left Washington respected and loved by officials and men of the navy and marine corps and by those of us in all walks of official life. Since that time he has steadily risen step by step until today no star shines with more brilliance in the firmament of statesmen than does this son of New York, its distinguished and able governor."

The Atlanta attorney, speaking in Meriwether, which formed one of the first Roosevelt-for-President clubs in the nation, charged that "the masses are impoverished by a damnable and indefensible system of government promulgated by the republican party, and the hogs of privilege have become strangled on their own swill. The Hoover administration was ushered in amid all the pomp, splendor and jubilation of the tariff barons and the exclusive billionaire class."

The speech of Mr. Howard was made at a rally here celebrating "Roosevelt Day" in Georgia. The New York governor has a vacation cottage at near-by Warm Springs.

WHITES CONTROL G. O. P. IN COUNTY

collector of internal revenue and state chairman, was brushed aside.

Arnold estimated that at least 95 per cent of the counties picked white county leaders. Among the counties which elected white officers were Elbert, Clarke, Walton, Washington, Jefferson, Troup, Seminole, Pulaski, Jackson, Morgan, DeKalb and Fulton, Arnold said.

Ben J. Davis, negro, former national committeeman and former state secretary, assisted in putting through the program at the Fulton convention in Judge Jesse M. Wood's courtroom. Davis resigned as state secretary recently to become a representative of the national party in the field.

The Chatham convention recognized as "regular" the call issued by the old district chairman for the district convention at Savannah on April 8. In contradiction, the Fulton followed the lead of the state central committee in declaring that the old district organizations were abolished when Georgia was redistricted and the number of congressmen reduced from 12 to 10. The state committee said that new party machinery must be set up in the districts, the delegation of 16 to the Chicago convention June 14 to be based on the new districting of the state.

DeKalb county re-elected its white officers, the county convention of 50 persons including only four negroes. All of the DeKalb delegates to the district meeting are white.

Georgia republicans began to realize their hopes of white leadership with the selection of Arnold as chairman to succeed Davis, who failed to obtain the national committeemanship at the last national convention and with the election of Rose as state chairman after a bitter fight which at one time plunged a convention in the Fulton courthouse into a wrangle which led to two rival organizations, each claiming control.

H. A. Allen, prominent attorney, committee as chairman, W. H. Parheads the Fulton county executive rish, of old Milton county, and Paul S. Barrett, of old Campbell county, were elected vice chairmen, and Joseph H. Read was elected secretary. Authority to name the other 50 members of the county executive committee was conferred on the officers by the convention.

Jackson McHenry was Fulton chairman for the last four years, with T. W. Holmes, negro, as vice chairman, and W. J. Shaw, negro, as secretary. Ben J. Davis, negro, former secretary of the state central committee, said that to his recollection over a period of 25 years, chairmen of the party in Fulton county up to the retirement of McHenry Saturday have been negroes, with the exception of Dr. Joseph Jacobs, who served in 1922-24.

Delegates to the state and district conventions are the same, and were announced to include the following white men: Ed L. Humphreys, R. A. Waters, T. B. Harper, C. W. Hager, E. K. Large and Henry C. Davis. White alternates are M. C. Bishop, V. C. Rainwater, A. J. Slatten, Earl F. Scott, B. F. Whitney and Ed M. Claughton.

Negro delegates to the state and district conventions were announced as B. J. Davis, A. T. Walden, T. W. Holmes, Herbert Swanson and W. J. Sewell, and their alternates are R. L. Craddock, L. J. Harrison, Jackson McHenry, L. M. Hill and L. D. Milton.

Josiah T. Rose, collector of internal revenue and chairman of the state central committee, served as chairman of the Fulton county convention, succeeding McHenry, who told newspapermen that he voted for Grant in 1868 and has voted the republican ticket ever since that time. He is said to be the oldest republican in the state.

Indications that the republicans may enter independent tickets for local and state offices were seen in questions and statements. R. L. Craddock, negro, asked Chairman Rose if the party plans to place a ticket in the field in Fulton county.

"Even the democrats believe that Georgia will be better off with two militant parties," Rose said. "I suppose that I might say that we contemplate local tickets—but then, like everyone else, I contemplate death."

T. W. Holmes, negro attorney, declared that "ostracism has kept good men under cover in large numbers in the south in the past, and I am glad that this is no longer true." Holmes said that the south "needs two parties," that the "negroes have held aloft the banner of the republicans as best they could, and we look for the brighter dawn of a better day with white leadership."

McHenry said that "we are giving the white folks the leadership, now, so that they may build up the party. We want to see what they will do. I want to see us elect a congressman—the first republican congressman from this district since 1875."

Although the meeting started off with a bit of pep, as if fireworks were about to burst, the spirit of rivalry cooled down as the meeting progressed and the republicans adjourned the county convention in harmony. Promise of a fight over the chairmanship died abruptly just as a vote was being taken when Dr. L. M. Hill, negro, withdrew his name in favor of Collector Rose, who was named temporary chairman for the meeting.

For the space of a few minutes, the air was electric with an interchange between Ben J. Davis, negro editor who recently resigned as state secretary of the party, and E. L. Collier, negro attorney, who sought "information" which, retiring Chairman McHenry told him, he did not have. W. J. Shaw, negro, served as secretary of the meeting.

Members of the nominating committee, which suggested names for officers and delegates, were E. K. Large, C. Victor, Joseph H. Read, Ed Claughton, all white, and the following negroes: A. T. Walden, B. J. Davis and Jackson McHenry.

Wilson Williams, new secretary of the state central committee, informed the convention that wires from all sections of the state told of harmonious meetings in the various counties.

Resolutions indorsing President Hoover's administration and recommending his nomination for re-election were adopted by the Fulton and DeKalb convention and by conventions in numerous other counties.

DeKalb republicans re-elected the following white officers who have served for the last four years: E. C. Talbot, of Avondale, chairman; C. F. Harrison, of Clarkston, vice chairman, and T. E. Watson, of Lithonia, secretary. DeKalb's delegates to the state convention are Talbot, Harrison, W. R. Watson, of Lithonia, and George H. Mew, of Atlanta, and their alternates are E. H. Kelly, of Atlanta; Donald Donaldson, of Decatur, and H. Roberts. DeKalb republicans elected Joe Griffin, of Stone Mountain; M. A. Stephenson, of Decatur; T. W. Jones, of Chamblee, and Talbot as delegates to the district convention, with the following alternates: T. J. Barfield, of Atlanta; M. A. St. John, of Lithonia, and I. M. Starr, of Lithonia.

There will be 261 delegates to the state convention, which will elect four delegates at large from Georgia to the national convention. The district delegates will be elected by district conventions. Each district will have one delegate, except the seventh and ninth, which will have two each on the basis of their vote for Hoover in 1928.

NEGROES ARE CHOSEN TO REPRESENT BIBB

MACON, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Bibb county's negro republicans met Saturday afternoon at the courthouse here, indorsed the Hoover administration, and elected delegates and alternates to the state and district conventions.

Delegates to the state convention in Atlanta are Sol C. Clemons, A. W. Barrow, L. J. May and W. A. Davis; alternates are J. T. Saxon, Walter Johnson, Bessie Capel and W. T. Reid.

The same delegates were elected to the district convention to be held April 1 in Milledgeville. The alternats elected were Johnson, Reid, C. W. Dyer, and Z. C. Benton.

Barrow was re-elected chairman of the group and R. L. Smith was re-elected secretary. More than 100 negroes were present. Two white men sat in on the proceedings, but their identity was not made known to the party leaders, it was said.

NO HOOVER APPROVAL GIVEN BY WILCOX BODY

ABBEVILLE, Ga., March 19.—(AP) Republicans of Wilcox county this afternoon elected the following officers for the next two years:

H. A. Statham, president; James H. Crummey, vice chairman; M. C. Lasseter, secretary. All are from Rochelle, Ga.

I. N. McAllister, Pitts, Ga., was appointed delegate to the state convention in Atlanta next week. Max E. Lasseter, alternate.

While both delegates favor Hoover for president, the convention did not indorse him, nor was the present administration indorsed.

W. T. Miller, Rochelle, is retiring chairman.

DANDRUFF Ends Overnight!

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy never fails.—(adv.)

J. T. ROSE IS SNUBBED BY SAVANNAH GROUP

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 19.—(AP) By adopting a resolution repudiating as "irregular" all reference to a proposed district convention to be held in Metter on March 28, and recognizing as "regular" the call for a district convention in Savannah on April 8, the Chatham county republican convention this afternoon gently but forcibly "snubbed" State Chairman J. T. Rose and voiced the sentiment that his message of friendship and goodwill, conveyed to the convention through his emissary, George B. Merritt, came "too late" and adopted a motion that it be "received as information." The county convention then proceeded to elect delegates to the district convention in Savannah April 8 and the state convention in Atlanta March 26. About 90 per cent of the 150 men and women in attendance were negroes and about 10 per cent were white.

J. G. Lemon, who presided, was elected permanent chairman of the county organization, and L. B. Toomer was elected permanent secretary. Mamie Williams, republican national committeewoman, was seated on the platform in the courtroom at the side of Chairman Lemon.

A full hour was consumed in the reading of the calls for the national, state, district and county conventions. After a motion had been adopted authorizing the striking out of all reference to the so-called "lily-white" convention in Metter, Merritt succeeded in announcing that he had been authorized in a telephone conversation today by Mr. Rose to state that the state chairman is "your friend" and desired to see the convention proceed harmoniously and without any interference from the state organization.

Delegates and alternates were elected as follows:

To the state convention—Delegates, J. G. Lemon, L. B. Toomer, William McKelvey Ophelia Lee McIver, Charles Donnelly, J. F. Bowman, E. O. Powell and S. A. Jones; alternates, T. J. Hopkins, Peter Jackson, F. M. Callen, D. J. Scott, G. A. Fields, Jesse Brinson, B. H. Deloach and W. H. Saffold.

The following delegates and alternates were elected to the district convention in Savannah: L. B. Toomer, Mamie Williams, S. A. Jones, J. G. Lemon, Walter S. Scott, Peter Jackson, Charles E. Donnelly and B. H. Deloach; alternates, J. M. Washington, Ophelia Lee McIver, Alex Cummings, Nathan Roberts, James E. Zealy, L. W. Sales and J. L. Bowman.

Mamie Williams was appointed chairman of a committee to report on the state of the republican party in the nation. S. H. Jones was appointed chairman of a committee to report on the condition of the party in Georgia. Walter Scott was appointed chairman of the reorganization committee. William McKelvey was named chairman of the committee on selection of delegates, and T. J. Hopkins Jr. was appointed chairman of the committee on instruction of delegates.

After the selection of delegates, the meeting was given over to a flow of oratory in which renewed party loyalty was pledged and "lily-whiteism" was decried.

JUDGE CORNETT HEADS CLARKE COUNTY G. O. P.

ATHENS, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Judge Walter G. Cornett was elected chairman of the Clarke county republican organization today at a meeting attended by about 100 white members of the party and 25 negroes. Judge Cornett succeeds Dr. W. H. Harris, negro.

The chairman and J. W. Arnold, Georgia national committeeman, were named delegates to the state convention, with Dr. W. H. Burson and Harris as alternates.

The district convention will be held here April 4. The delegates selected for the state convention will also attend the district meeting except that of J. P. McCall was named in the place of Harris.

NEGRO CHIEFTAINS OUSTED IN JEFFERSON

LOUISVILLE, March 19.—The most hectic republican county convention seen in years here met this afternoon and organized for the coming two years. The biggest crowd that has been seen here for such a convention was in the courthouse. It was composed of both white and negro citizens. The lily whites perfected the organization by displacing the colored officials of the republican organization and putting in a white chairman and other officers.

Fred Jackson, the negro chairman, who has headed the county republican committee in this county for nearly the past 50 years, was succeeded by Thomas F. Rhodes as permanent chairman. Frank Moxley, of Wadley, was named secretary, succeeding Jim Williams, colored. George Williams, of Bartow, was named vice chairman. Eben Smith was named treasurer. Burrell Brown was named delegate to the state convention, and Rev. E. P. Drake, of Bartow, alternate. Rufus Sheppard, of Wrens, was named delegate to the sixth district convention, and R. L. Beckworth, of Louisville, his alternate. Besides these elections a county executive committee composed altogether of white republicans was named.

NEGROES IN CONTROL IN RICHMOND COUNTY

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Richmond county republicans, who carried every precinct in the 1928 presidential race, today elected negroes to all offices at a county organization meeting.

Clarence S. Wigfall, negro, was elected chairman over Postmaster E. Ryan Johnson. Johnson claimed some of the negroes had violated a gentlemen's agreement to elect a white chairman after the postmaster promised not to pack the meeting with whites.

Negroes outnumbered whites two to one at the meeting but named several white men as delegates to the state convention.

Russia in Transition

luxury goods prove that the individual spirit has not been crushed.

The government's virtual monopoly of trade gives it a unique power over the supply of goods. This applies not only to goods per se, but also to entertainments, information and sports. Thus, through the drama, the cinema, books, periodicals and sports equipment the present leaders are trying to direct the current of thought throughout the union. They apparently are having some success with the young generations, the pioneers and the young communists. How long this will last is problematical.

Land Hunger Still Persists.

Likewise the government has been able to overcome, temporarily at least, the inherent desire of the peasants for land. Despite the increasing number of peasants joining the collective farms, the writer is convinced that the peasants would prefer to operate individual farms, and believes that if the soviet government were overthrown in the near future—which it won't be—the collectivists would demand the return of their small farms. The fact that collective farming is proving more efficient than individual cultivation would soon be forgotten.

Public demand is gradually forcing the government to change its industrial policy. There was an ill-conceived split among the bolshevik leaders over the question of concentrating on heavy, basic industries rather than on the "light" industries producing consumer goods. Stalin won out with his basic industry policy but the people are now demanding consumer goods with such vehemence that Stalin has been forced to announce that favorites for canning and meat packing will be started in the near future. A similar change in policy was forced when the masses demanded vodka. The government repealed its ban against the high-powered beverage.

Propaganda Is Maintained.

The government as yet has made no move to abandon its propaganda activities within the country. It is inconceivable that even the enthusiastic young communist is not irked at the censorship of ideas. Art for art's sake is under a communistic tabu. Art, whether it is drama, ballet, painting, sculpturing, music, must be along communistic lines or more precisely, for the glorification of the proletarian state. Newspapers, magazines and books contain more communistic doctrines than facts. The propaganda motion pictures produced in Russia are very good in their way, yet people prefer to see old films of Charlie Chaplin and Harold Lloyd. An American engineer said that he did not believe any group of people could enjoy themselves so much as did a crowd of workmen and their wives at an old Lloyd comedy. Despite the evident demand, the government frowns on comedy. Bolshevism is a serious proposition.

Many Russians, particularly the more backward of the peasants, would be happy if they had a roof over their heads, plenty of simple food and enough vodka for an occasional spree. Whether they would want the church services back is highly doubtful. The women folk of this class might want the church back, but they would prefer new clothes.

Yearning for Luxuries.

The city workers have a wider range of desire, because they have had wider experience. At present they would like to have more varied food, several suits of clothes, several pairs of shoes and better living quarters. Later perhaps they will want electric appliances, radios strong enough to get capitalistic programs, individual automobiles, and their own cabins for the summer in the country. The women want stylish apparel, silk stockings, rouge, lipstick and permanent waves. Both want more sports and entertainments, free from propaganda.

The government is forcing the backward peasants to a higher standard of living. It is reluctantly yielding to the pressure of the industrial workers. It may frown on syncopated music, it may try to imprison the arts, it may censor the books and periodicals, and it may train the children to scorn bourgeois pastimes. At the same time it is trying to raise the comfort standards of the Russian people to the standards of the American and German middle classes. Yet the contacts which the writer made with the ordinary Russians convinced him that they wanted and would eventually get those important non-essentials which were not in the intellectually planned "perfect state."

proceed Monday into the dense jungle in search of the man he claims is Fawcett.

The explorer's sister, Mrs. M. E. Isacke, in London, gave to the United Press a description of her brother. This compared favorably with the description given by Rattin. The two follow:

Mrs. Isacke.	Rattin.
Height—6 ft. 1 in.	5 ft. 11 in.
Weight—170 lbs.	170 pounds.
Eyes—Blue with yellowish tinge.	Blue with yellowish tinge.
High forehead.	High forehead.
Not an aquiline nose.	Aquiline nose.
Several gold-filled teeth.	Several gold-filled teeth.

In addition, Rattin told of two jeweled rings the man wore, one with a figure of a lion engraved upon it. Mrs. Isacke said her brother wore a signet ring on his little finger, on which was the family crest, a dolphin.

Rattin, trapper, trader, guide and explorer, is ordinarily quiet and unassuming, but he has a quick and vivid temper. General Candido Rondon, an explorer, told Rattin he did not believe Rattin had found Fawcett. Rattin became enraged and said Rondon had made an extensive search for Fawcett and failed. He said he had accidentally stumbled across the noted British explorer.

"I am discouraged by endless talks," Rattin said today as he prepared to leave for Sao Paulo.

Meanwhile, Fawcett's wife, now at Montreux, Switzerland, has expressed herself as "overjoyed and confident" at Rattin's disclosures.

Rattin sent the following message today to Fawcett's wife in Switzerland:

"Await with confidence my return with Colonel Fawcett if he is alive. If he has died during this time I will bring back the remains, identifying the ring and everything I find. But I am confident I will bring him back alive."

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(UP)—President Hoover, Babe Ruth and E. F. Creekmore, of the American Cotton Co-operative Association, were named before a senate agriculture subcommittee today as the only Americans worth every cent of the $75,000 salary each gets a year.

U. B. Blalock, Raleigh, N. C., Cotton Co-operative Association member, was the witness who told the committee why these three men really earn their "board and keep."

He spoke in opposition to a proposal of Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, that salaries paid under provision of the agricultural marketing act be limited to $15,000 a year.

U. S. HIGHWAY FUNDS ABOVE BILLION MARK

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(UP)—Funds available for public roads and bridge construction during the current year amounted to $1,353,000,000, the department of agriculture estimated today.

The information was collected from road officials of the various states, the total including sums to be spent by federal and state governments and by local authorities.

Figures on actual road construction last year are not complete, but the estimated 1932 total is 19 per cent under the road expenditure of $1,680,000,000 in 1930.

State highway funds have declined considerably less than local funds, as the former are derived in large part from automobile and gasoline taxes, which have fallen but little.

The total estimated expenditure by state highway departments is divided as follows: Construction of roads and bridges, $568,000,000; reconstruction and maintenance, $197,000,000; interest on highway bonds, $64,000,000; miscellaneous, $53,000,000—a grand total of $882,000,000.

BY WILLIAM O. KEY JR.

Next Friday patriotic Greeks all over the world will celebrate the century anniversary of complete Hellenic independence from Turkish oppression. In Atlanta, which probably has the largest Greek colony in the southeast, the observance will be marked by religious and patriotic exercises eclipsing in fervor and enthusiasm all other anniversaries in the Greek calendar. Incidentally, the date will mark the 110th anniversary since the outbreak of the historic insurrection, which began on March 25, 1821.

Officers of the Pan-Hellenic Society of Atlanta have arranged for the local observances. Heading the list is Charles Economy, president, who is assisted by Nick Carusos, vice president; Nick E. Poolos, secretary; Angel Marinos, treasurer; George Pefines, Jerry Vlass and John Campbell, trustees.

Poem Portrayed Situation.

It was almost a hundred years ago that the American poet, Fitz-Greene Halleck, immortalized the desperate straits in which Greece found herself, in the heroic poem entitled "Marco Bozzaris," the opening stanza of which portrays the situation dramatically:

At midnight, in his guarded tent,
The Turk was dreaming of the hour
When Greece, her knee in suppliance bent,
Should tremble at his power:
In dreams, through camp and court he bore
The trophies of a conqueror;
In dreams, his song of triumph heard;
Then wore his monarch's signet ring;
Then pressed that monarch's throne—a king;
As wild his thoughts and gay of wing,
As Eden's garden bird.

Marco Bozzaris (Markos Botsaris) never lived to see the independence which his heroism won for his native land; nor yet to fully comprehend, perhaps, the political intrigue which the insurrection of 1821 stirred in the capitals of Europe. It was a seven-year struggle between the valiant armed bands of leaders such as Bozzaris and the fierce, black-bearded generals of the all-powerful Divan of the Levant, and for a while threatened to involve central Europe in what later threw the world in a death struggle.

History of Involvements.

Few people today can recall the political involvements of Greece's bid for freedom from the Ottoman yoke. In a brief history, prepared in connection with the celebration next Friday, Mr. Economy sets forth that a majority of European governments at first condemned the outbreak, and the English government was opposed to it because it threatened the very existence of the Ottoman empire, and, in the British viewpoint, the very security of the Indian empire depended on Turkey's preservation. But, says Mr. Economy:

"By 1826, public opinion in Europe and the United States had become irresistible in favor of the Hellenes. All liberal Europe and America espoused a cause heroically maintained for national independence and religion. Sympathy was excited, even among the conservatives, by that magic name of Greece, by the struggle of Christians against Mussulmans. In France the finger of scorn would have stigmatized anyone who did not applaud the exploits of Odysseus, Botsaris, Canaris and Miaoulis, the audacious chieftains who led their palikaria (heroes) into the thickest ranks of the janissaries (enemy invaders) . . ."

All the great poets of the era came forward and ranged their pens along with the blades of the Hellenes. Spain was wary of Italy because of Austrian influence on the Romans; England grew uneasy, then outright suspicious at the actions of Russia. The rich trade of the Levant was at stake, were a major power to throw its weight into the Greco-Turkish fight, on either side. Great Britain was determined not to allow the Romanoffs to dominate Constantinople or other important ports as the Hapsburgs were dominating Naples, Rome and Milan, or as were the Bourbons swaying control at Madrid.

The upshot of this intricate diplomatic affair was the historic treaty of London, signed July 6, 1827, by France, Russia and England, the declaration of war by Russia against the sultan of Turkey, the destruction of the Turkish fleet, the capture by the Russians of Silistria, Erzeroum and Adrianople. Finally, with the support of Austria, France and England imposed peace upon the czar, resulting in the treaty of Adrianople, which brought independence to Greece on January 22, 1830, and the freed country was converted into a monarchy the following year.

'Little Red Riding Hood' Sad Over Disappearance of 'Wolf'

SONNY AND SCAMP IN A RECENT POSE.

The "wolf" is gone and "Little Red Riding Hood" is disconsolate.

When Scamp, a four-year-old Boston terrier, disappeared Friday from the home of Miss Marie Parker, at 520 West Walker avenue, College Park, the sun went behind a cloud for little "Sonny," the four-year-old junior of G. T. Glasco.

Scamp and "Sonny" were inseparable pals—as closely allied as salt and pepper or ham and eggs. Scamp, a highly intelligent animal, was trained by Miss Parker to play the piano and sing, and to do other tricks at amateur shows. His best stunt, though, was the game of "Red Riding Hood" he played with "Sonny."

In this game, Scamp would hide in a closet and "Sonny," as "Red Riding Hood," tapped on the door. Out would come the "wolf" and poor little "Red Riding Hood" would be devoured whole at one tremendous gulp.

Scamp has unusual markings, lacking the black eye common to Boston terriers. He has white on his right front paw. A reward is offered for Scamp's return. Anyone having information concerning the dog is requested to call Calhoun 2944.

BARKER DENIES COUNCIL CHARGES

Ben S. Barker, president of the Taxpayers' Service Agency, Inc., and formerly executive vice president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Saturday branded as false any reports that he or any other authorized employe of the firm has ever represented that unless citizens became members of the association they could not obtain tax reductions.

Barker's statement followed charges of a "tax reduction racket" brought Friday before the tax committee of council and which the committee plans to ask council to score at its regular session Monday afternoon.

Councilman Claude Barnwell, of the sixth ward, said Saturday night that he desired that it be made known that the charges against Mr. Barker's concern were not made by him but were filed by taxpayers.

"I know nothing of the basis of these charges," Councilman Barnwell said. "The charges were made in affidavit form by taxpayers of the city of Atlanta."

Barker in his statement said:

"For 25 years I have been a resident of the city of Atlanta and have been signally honored by its citizens. For 10 years I held the position of executive vice president and secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. During the other portion of that time, I was an official of the Southern Railway system. In this capacity, it has been my privilege to participate in practically every civic enterprise which the city promoted during that time. I could not have performed my duties in these connections unless I had had the confidence and respect of the people of Atlanta. That I retain today.

"During my service with the Chamber of Commerce I was afforded an opportunity to study every phase of Atlanta's business life, and especially industrial developments, and property values. This study disclosed that there were inequalities in tax assessments. Inequalities that could only be corrected by intelligent and expert information.

"When I severed my connection with the Chamber of Commerce and with this thought in mind I determined to engage in an effort to assist the taxpayers of this city in equalizing tax values, all of whom had been so kind to me. I was fully cognizant of the effort of our citizens to organize a taxpayers' league and they have had, have now, and will continue to have my wholehearted support. Their prime object apparently, however, was to correct injustices at the ballot box. Every citizen should vote, but with the impossibility of our tax assessors making personal inspection of the numbers of properties located in the city, it occurred to me that something further than balloting should be done. So it was that with a number of my friends we organized the Taxpayers' Service Agency, a corporation authorized by the superior court of this city to do business, and licensed by the city of Atlanta.

"John N. Malone served the city of Atlanta well and faithfully as one of its tax assessors for more than 25 years. His fairness, his honesty and his integrity cannot be attacked by any human being. He has established a reputation for fair dealing and enjoys the utmost confidence of the public, including the present tax assessors and the present members of the tax committee of council. He is chairman of the board of appraisers of the Taxpayers' Service Agency, and inspects and appraises each piece of property placed in the hands of the agency.

"No statement has ever been made by me which would reflect upon the honor and integrity of any member of the tax committee of council or of the assessors, and I do not believe that any such statement has been made by anyone connected with the Taxpayers' Service Agency. Our employes are high-type and high-class men and experts in their line, making a sincere effort to assist the taxpayers, the tax assessors, and the tax committee of council, who on account of the physical impossibilities of the situation cannot see every piece of property that is taxed in the city of Atlanta. We do not undertake to represent any taxpayer whose property is assessed for less than $7,500. Numbered amongst our clientele are the following citizens and taxpayers of the city of Atlanta:

"Ivan Allen, Dr. Troy Bivings, R. A. Burnett, Norman Cooledge, Dr. Thomas Collier, C. T. Nunnally, Robert H. Jones Jr., J. N. Hirsch, S. S. Selig, Dr. H. C. Saul, W. L. Randall, Ernest L. Rhodes, R. L. Foreman, Floyd McRae, Eugene V. Haynes, F. O. Stone, McCrory Stores, Inc., W. R. Hoyt, Whitehead Realty Company and many others.

"The assessments against the property of our clientele is 2 per cent of the total assessments of the city of Atlanta. The clientele composes outstanding men in Atlanta's civic and business life. Is it not a reflection upon their intelligence to say that they would participate in any hold-up or 'racket game,' or join us in any unethical practices? Would any one of these men listen to me for a second if I had told them that we had a special contact with the assessors or with members of council by which they were to obtain, and the only way by which they could obtain, fair and just treatment?

"We claim no monopoly on representing taxpayers before the board of tax assessors or before tax committee of council. It is their privilege to represent themselves in person or by attorney, and we believe by an agency if they so desire.

"We invite the fullest investigation of the Taxpayers' Service Agency, not only by employes of the counperson and citizen of Atlanta who may become interested."

Roosevelt and Hoover Lead In Selection of Delegates

North Dakota Primary, With Record Vote, Chief Political Development of Week.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—The American electorate is saying it with ballots these days as President Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt gather in most of the delegates who choose the presidential nominees.

The past week gave ample demonstration of this in national and local political tussles and President Hoover was asked to encourage the vote-conscious movement in getting out 50,000,000 votes in November.

The North Dakota primary, which brought a rain of 80,000 ballots in the democratic preference race, or six times the previous record, furnished the only big political development of the week.

Delegates were voted on individually. Unofficial but nearly complete returns showed among the Roosevelt delegates the highest had received 40,960 votes and the lowest 31,091. The only Murray delegate received 33,139.

In the republican contest 50,997 votes was the highest among the delegates favorable to President Hoover and 40,596 the lowest. Two delegates not favorable to the president received 42,170 and 39,355 votes.

Roosevelt's capture of the democratic preference vote and nine out of the ten delegates in that agricultural state shared interest with the big ballot.

Atlanta and Milwaukee municipal voting also brought bulging ballot boxes, while Chicago registration books added 231,000 names to the voting lists.

All of which may indicate a trend toward an avalanche of votes on November 8 to top the all-time record of 36,000,000 in 1928.

The disaffection among republicans in North Dakota, where many of them went to the polls in the democratic primary, may or may not be regarded as significant in this connection. But the democrats are confident that any increased balloting in the fall elections will embrace a protest vote against President Hoover just as the big vote four yearsagofor Hoover included a protest against Alfred E. Smith.

The pledge of Hoover's nine North Dakota delegates was challenged today by Senator Frazier, republican independent, of that state. He claimed the primary law makes it mandatory on the delegation to support the candidate getting a majority in the preference voting, who, in this instance, was Joseph I. France, of Maryland. Mr. Hoover was not entered for the preference vote, but nine of the eleven delegates elected have indorsd him.

Frazier, in a statement, quoted the North Dakota law and said in justice to his state "it should be understood that the popular vote of the party in favor of a presidential candidate is mandatory upon the delegates elected in the primary."

This is a point for the state officials to decide. Calvin Coolidge won North Dakota's preference vote in 1924, but supporters of the late Robert M. LaFollette elected six of its delegates and they supported the Wisconsin independent to the last at the Cleveland convention. These six and 28 from Wisconsin refused to make the decision unanimous for Coolidge.

State Attorney-Gneral James Morris, at Bismarck, refused to rule on the question raised by Frazier.

Mayor Curley's invitation to two republicans to join the Roosevelt-pledged slate of delegates in Massachusetts is perhaps part of the democratic drive for opposition as well as party support which in North Dakota was carried on not so openly as the Boston mayor's effort.

Hoover managers continue to express confidence in his re-election.

His renomination is taken for granted by them. Of the 68 republican delegates chosen to date the president has 66 from Kansas, New Hampshire, Louisiana, Virginia and North Dakota instructed, pledged or claimed for him. The other two, in North Dakota, are uninstructed but favor a "progressive."

Of the even 100 democratic delegates selected, Roosevelt has 57 instructed and pledged for him from Washington state, New Hampshire, Minnesota and North Dakota. Governor Murray, of Oklahoma, has 22 from Oklahoma and one from North Dakota, and the remaining 20 are uninstructed from Louisiana.

Next week's calendar calls for selection of 50 more republican delegates by the convention method—16 from Georgia and 9 from New Mexico on Saturday and 25 from Iowa on Tuesday.

Senator Dickinson, of Iowa, expressed the view today that his state's 25 would be either "instructed for or friendly to Hoover."

No democratic delegates will be chosen next week, although the Georgia primary on Wednesday will show how the delegation to be named at a state convention April 6 will line up. A Roosevelt victory is conceded generally there.

Governor Murray's defeat in North Dakota apparently has not dimmed the hopes of "Alfalfa Bill." He said today he would control the democratic national convention and "name the president."

ROOSEVELT UNDECIDED ON SERVING AS DELEGATE

ALBANY, N. Y., March 19.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt's success in the democratic presidential primaries of two states has failed to date to bring the New York governor to a decision on the question of attending the Chicago democratic national convention as a delegate at large.

Some of his political friends have advised him that she should go to Chicago next June in the capacity of a delegate, which would enable him to promote his candidacy for the presidential nomination from the floor, rather than merely direct it from offstage.

The New York governor is described as desiring to hold his decision in abeyance until state party figures gather here for a big committee meeting on April 20, or, at least, until after the state primaries on April 5. His friends had believed his recent successes in the primaries of New Hampshire and North Dakota might prompt him to make an immediate decision.

A possibility exists that both Mr. Roosevelt and former Governor Alfred E. Smith, also a candidate for the nomination, will appear on the Chicago convention floor.

RIGHTS OF DELEGATES STILL UNDETERMINED

BISMARCK, N. D., March 19.—(AP)—The assertion of Senator Frazier, republican, North Dakota, that the state's republican national convention delegates must support Joseph I. France for president remained unanswered officially tonight.

Senator Frazier in his Washington statement said the popular vote of a party for a presidential preference primary candidate is mandatory upon the party's convention delegates.

The republicans Tuesday picked nine delegates pledged to President Hoover and two to a "progressive" candidate.

James Morris, state attorney general, declined comment except to say by precedent the result of presidential balloting does not require the delegates to vote for the winning candidate. By precedent, instructions given the delegates at party conventions are the determining factor.

Morris said the state law is ambiguous and never has been tested. It says each delegate shall take an oath he will "to the best of his judgment and ability faithfully carry out the wishes of his political party as expressed by the voters."

CALIFORNIA DELEGATES ARE PLEDGED TO GARNER

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—(AP)—A petition signed by 2,400 citizens, placing in nomination a ticket of delegates to the democratic national convention pledged to the support of Speaker John N. Garner for president, was filed here today.

The ticket is headed by William Gibbs McAdoo, California lawyer and former secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson.

WILL NAME PRESIDENT, "ALFALFA BILL" AVERS

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 19.—(UP)—Governor W. H. Murray left tonight on a campaign speaking tour of the old south.

To democratic opponents for the presidency, he sounded a defiant challenge.

"They will find, when it is all over, that I will name the next president and write the democratic platform," he said while pausing 11 hours at the Oklahoma capital between campaign trips.

"I haven't any ambition to hold the office. I would rather have a man in the place who would do right than be president myself.

"They may lock the convention on me, but I will get a majority of votes before they get through and I will be the controlling factor. They don't know yet that I am making a fight for the public interest."

CHICAGOAN URGES U. S. TO FIGHT GANGS AT POLLS

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Senator Borah today refused an appeal from a Chicago citizen that he ask for federal intervention to prevent gangsters from controlling the primary in the Illinois city April 12.

Charging a "bold and arrogant" attempt by "Capone lieutenants" to prevent an honest election, Richard Prendergast, who has long been active in Chicago politics, urged Borah to take the matter up with Attorney General Mitchell.

The Idaho senator replied he did not see how he or any other senator could initiate proceedings.

RECORD VOTE SEEN FOR STATE PRIMARY

rence S. Camp, democratic state chairman, before the Fulton county Roosevelt club at its luncheon celebration of Roosevelt day, made a militant plea for a record primary vote Wednesday "lest something happen in this county on that day that will make us all ashamed when Franklin D. Roosevelt is inaugurated president next March."

A similar warning to democrats to bestir themselves in Fulton was sounded by Major Cohen, democratic national committeeman, while Clark Howell, former committee member, flatly predicted that Roosevelt will be nominated for the presidency on the second ballot at Chicago and elected president in November by the greatest number of electoral votes given a democrat in the last 50 years.

An appeal to women not to be stampeded "by trickery" into voting for Judge G. H. Howard, opposition candidate in Georgia, on the hope that his "Hearst-made proxy" is dry, was made by Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, president of the Fulton county club. Bond Almand presided over the luncheon meeting at the Biltmore.

"Strange to say," Mrs. Peterson told the gathering, composed of as many Fulton county women as men, "the man who put him in this campaign has, through his newspapers, done all in his power to bring about the repeal of the prohibition amendment and who is known as the most notorious wet in the country.

"Speaker Garner," she said, "is regarded in Washington as a 'moderate wet.' He voted against the eighteenth amendment. A few days after the Texas democrats held their meeting at San Antonio and put him out as a favorite son, the president of the Texas W. C. T. U. wrote him a letter in which she said that before her organization could or would indorse his candidacy it wanted to know his position on the prohibition issue.

"Speaker Garner replied to that letter—but he hasn't yet told the W. C. T. U. of his home state how he stands on prohibition. He did say that he was not a candidate and that he was not discussing any controversial questions not immediately before the congress."

Among those who, unable to attend the luncheon celebration, sent pledges of active work for Roosevelt were Miss Ira A. Jarrell, secretary of the Atlanta Teachers' Association.

Charging that former Governor Alfred E. Smith "was deliberately put up by the eastern interests to stop Roosevelt," Major Cohen, addressing the club, asserted that every loyal democrat is now interested in stopping Smith in order to prevent a bitter fight at the Chicago convention.

Governor Murray, Major Cohen said, was simply a stalking horse for the power trust.

"I say it reverently," he declared, "but I think it was somewhat providential that Governor Roosevelt entered the North Dakota primary and stopped 'Alfalfa Bill' Murray."

As for the appeal to support Garner because he is a southerner, the Georgia member of the national committee said:

"There are mighty fine people in Texas. Most of them went there from Georgia. But about all she has done to help us was to keep down the price of cotton.

"John Garner is a fine type of man, a little too old though to be considered as a candidate for the presidency. He is no bigger man than Charlie Crisp, of Americus; Bill Wright, of Newnan; Eugene Cox, of Camilla, nor Bob Ramspeck, of Atlanta."

Recounting how an examination of specialists had resulted in Governor Roosevelt getting $500,000 of insurance through the big companies, Mr. Howell said that every Georgian should remember that every penny of this half million dollars has been made payable to the Warm Springs Foundation which he founded.

"That examination for insurance nailed the canard, started about six months ago, that he was physically unfit for the presidency. It disclosed that he is as sound as any man of his age."

Mr. Howell, like Major Cohen, touched upon the activity of former Governor Smith in the fight on Roosevelt and, after relating how Roosevelt had three times nominated Smith for the presidency, said:

"The American people will forgive anything but base ingratitude. I don't understand Al Smith, but if he persists in his recent tactics the public will never forgive him."

Vigorously assailing the past and present administrations of the republican party, State Chairman Camp said that "since they have taken credit for the sunshine, they must now take the responsibility for the clouds and the rain. And I say to you that the clouds are hanging heavier over America today than ever before.

"The right to vote," Camp said, "is one of the few remaining principles of Jeffersonian democracy and I am unable to imagine anyone not so thoroughly conscious of conditions in this country today as to appreciate the high importance of voting to remedy these conditions."

Camp charged that the administration prior to that of the incumbent seethed with graft and corruption upon which the republican party, in 1928, placed its stamp of approval. Mr. Hoover, he reminded, had been called by his own republican colleagues in Washington "the most expensive luxury ever fastened on the American people."

Letter From Spalding.

The letter from Colonel Spalding to Page follows:

"As I am unable to see you personally and render any aid I might be able to furnish in behalf of the nomination of Governor Roosevelt, I am writing you some thoughts that occurred to me.

"For some time it has been evident that there is a combination in existence to nominate a candidate by the democratic party who will be controlled by the same financial and favored interests that control President Hoover. If Governor Roosevelt can be defeated and such a candidate put upon the democratic party, then these interests are perfectly indifferent as to which is elected. If, on the other hand, a genuine democrat like Governor Roosevelt is nominated, they will carry the fight on into the November election and put up piles of money to elect Hoover.

"This movement has become increasingly evident as the convention approaches, and in my opinion a lot of money is being spent all over the country in this behalf. I am pretty certain it is going on in Georgia and in Florida, but I believe it will be without success, as Governor Roosevelt ought to and, in my opinion, will carry both states.

"It is very important in selecting delegates, after he has carried these states, to see that such men are chosen as will not play into the hands of these sinister interests in case any disaster overtakes Governor Roosevelt's candidacy. We want men who will stand loyal to democracy and not let these interests that have wrecked the country under Hoover, get in position to handle things for another four years.

"I am very much surprised and disappointed to see the last democratic candidate take the position he does against Governor Roosevelt. I would have much more respect for him if he came out square-toed with the proposition that he wanted the nomination, than play the role he is now enacting in connection with blocking Governor Roosevelt's nomination. I may attach too much importance to gratitude and it may be that this does not obtain in politics.

"When I was president of the Atlanta Bar Association some years ago, Governor Roosevelt honored us by making the annual address at the Capital City Country Club, and in company with Mr. Cam Dorsey, I drove down to Warm Springs and had the honor of bringing Governor Roosevelt up to Mr. Dorsey's home for this occasion. Personally, he is a lovable gentleman, and politically he is a Simon-pure, outstanding democrat, away ahead of anything else now before the people.

"I am glad to hear the fine reports about the able manner in which you are handling this campaign in Georgia, and trust you will follow it up by aiding in getting a delegation that will stand to him as long as there is a glimmer of hope.

"JACK J. SPALDING."

Memory of Dr. Hinman Honored

The unveiling followed a program by prominent dentists and doctors honoring the memory of Dr. Hinman and his work in the field of dentistry and medicie. Dr. M. D. Huff, well-known Atlantan, who was chairman of the clinic, and Dr. Joseph D. Eby, noted New York dentist, were the principal speakers at the exercises, which were attended by many Georgians. Lewis Gregg, widely-known Atlanta artist, painted the portrait.

ROOSEVELT SUPPORTERS IN WILKES ASSEMBLE

WASHINGTON, Ga., March 19.—Wilkes county friends of Governor Roosevelt convened at the courthouse here today in a county-wide meet, called by the Roosevelt-for-President Club.

From different sections of the county reports were heard to the effect that the New York governor would have practically no opposition in this county. Arrangements were perfected for having polls open at every county precinct. Warning was sounded by Chairman B. W. Fortson against overconfidence, urging voters not to allow their political interest to wane with the completion of the vote for county officers on March 22, but to do the unusual by going to the polls the next day and registering their choice for president.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS GATHERING AT NEWNAN

NEWNAN, Ga., March 19.—The Roosevelt-for-president rally held in the courthouse here this afternoon drew a large crowd and a great deal of enthusiasm was shown. Judge W. L. Stallings, president of the Coweta County Roosevelt-for-President Club, presided.

Among those giving five-minute speeches were A. H. Freeman, former member state democratic executive commission; O. M. Jones, prominent lawyer and former member of the legislature; Stanford Arnold, solicitor of the city court of Newnan; S. H. Dyer, prominent attorney; M. E. Spraggin, member of city council; O. W. Passavant, editor of The Newman Herald; Roger S. Bryant, chairman of the Coweta county democratic executive committee; E. L. Osborn, Coweta county's original Roosevelt-for-president leader, and others.

All the voting precincts in Coweta county will be opened next Wednesday.

OVERWHELMING VOTE SEEN IN BARTOW COUNTY

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., March 19. Shirley Boykin, of Carrollton, speaking here Saturday afternoon at a Roosevelt rally, said all reports agreed that the New York governor would sweep Georgia in the preferential primary next Wednesday.

William S. Peebles, president of the Roosevelt Club in this county, said all the precincts would be open throughout Bartow county next Wednesday and that Roosevelt would carry the county by an overwhelming vote. "As a matter of fact," he said, "I have heard of but one man in Bartow county who plans to vote for Judge Howard, and I believe we can get him to change his mind between now and Wednesday."

LUCIUS GROVES HEADS LINCOLN ROOSEVELT CLUB

LINCOLNTON, Ga., March 19.—Furthering the effort to make Lincoln county safe for Roosevelt next Wednesday, a Roosevelt-for-President Club was organized here this week, with Lucius C. Groves, the leading candidate for legislative honors in the primary of March 15, as chairman, and C. W. Harnesberger, secretary.

While it appears that Judge G. H. Howard has no supporters in Lincoln, a primary will be held, with as many precincts open as possible, according to D. H. Pope, chairman of the county democratic executive committee.

Widow Asks That Judge Luke Be Ousted as Will Executor

Mrs. A.M. Watson Charges Mismanagement of Estate Left by Husband.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Through attorneys, Mrs. A. M. Watson and her only child, Gloria Watson, a minor, sole beneficiaries, who claim to have received no settlement from the estate of A. M. Watson who died in February, 1928, leaving the Bank of Thomasville as executor of his will, have filed a petition in the office of the ordinary of Thomas county asking that the bank be removed as executor, and that Judge Roscoe Luke, who succeeded the bank in that capacity, show cause why his appointment should not be vacated.

In the January, 1932, term of the court of ordinary they allege, the bank resigned and designated Judge Luke as a suitable successor, both proposals were accepted and bond for Judge Luke was fixed at $250,000.

Petitioners claim the order accepting the bank's resignation and appointing Luke is void because statutory provisions pertaining to such proceedings were not complied with. It is further alleged in the petition that "the bank has grossly mismanaged the estate," that it invested $177,707 in its own time certificates, invested $54,659 in notes secured by real estate, $16,000 in bank stock, and $10,000 in common stock of the corporation; further, that the bank largely delivered the assets of the estate to Judge Luke to be administered by him, though as alleged there was no authority in him to receive them.

They further say that Judge Luke is not satisfactory to the petitioners in the capacity of executor, and has mismanaged the assets delivered to him, and that he was on notice that the Bank of Thomasville was in a failing condition.

It is also alleged that among the assets turned over to Judge Luke was $88,500 in state, county, municipal and United States bonds, and that he claims to have converted these into cash and deposited the cash in the Citizens Building and Loan Company, of which he is the president, and which is largely controlled by him. Petitioners fix the value of the estate at $400,000.

The petitioners are represented in this action by Attorneys Wilcox, Connell and Wilcox, and by Jones, Jones, Johnston and Russell. The Bank of Thomasville was closed on January 28, 1932, and is now in the hands of the state banking department.

Bridge Tourney Lures Long List of Entries

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19.—(AP) Limitation of entries to amateurs only has materially increased the number of persons planning to compete in the second annual South Atlantic and state bridge tournaments to be held here beginning March 29, officials in charge said. Scores of entries already have been filed. Sir Derrick Warner, vice president of the American Bridge League, will conduct the tournament.

Four trophies are offered. The Vanderbilt trophy for teams of four, play to begin March 29; the Byron B. Taggart trophy for pairs, starting March 30; the Augusta Country Club trophy for mixed pairs, opening April 1; and the Walton H. Marshall trophy for pairs, starting April 2.

FARMER IN TREUTLEN IS KILLED BY COUSIN

SOPERTON, Ga., March 19.—(AP) Vernon Phillips, 24, farmer living in the Phillips settlement of this county, was shot to death near the Gillis Springs school house Friday night and his brother, Theron Phillips, 19, was wounded.

Seebie Phillips, a cousin living on a farm in the same locality, surrendered to Sheriff Oscar Collins, who said he claimed self-defense.

Vernon Phillips died soon after being taken to a hospital at Swainsboro but physicians expected Theron to recover.

Sheriff Collins said Seebie Phillips told him the brothers fired first after driving around his automobile as they went to an entertainment at the school house.

At the last term of court Seebie Phillips prosecuted Vernon and Theron Phillips on charges of burning woods, but they were acquitted.

The sheriff said the circumstances of the case had led to bitterness between the cousins.

SAVANNAH EXCHANGE OPPOSES HYDE PLAN

Cotton Group Urges Agricultural Secretary To Abandon Program.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 19.—(AP) The Savannah Cotton Exchange, at a special meeting Saturday, passed resolutions requesting Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to abandon a reported program to have the United States put in an intensive sales campaign to place some of the country's wheat and cotton surplus in European and other countries, possibly using some of the farm loan fund in this effort.

The Savannah exchange took the position that the farm relief money was voted to relieve the farmers and not the farm board and its affiliates, that such a sales campaign would have a bad effect on the market and would be discriminatory.

The resolution said "the proposal would result in killing the sale of all cotton and wheat owned by the farmers until the farm board stocks had first supplied all demands equal to farm board stock disposed of."

Copies of the resolution are being sent to other cotton exchanges and spot markets and to the Georgia representatives in congress.

State Deaths And Funerals

WALTER W. COPELAND.

GRANTVILLE, Ga., March 19.—Walter W. Copeland, 48, died at his residence here this morning. He is survived by his wife and four sons, Billy, Joe, Jim and Charles; two daughters, Clara and Zell, and his mother, Mrs. B. F. Copeland, of Nashville, Tenn.; one sister, Mrs. J. A. Shackleford, of Nashville; one half-brother, Kit Copeland, of Atlanta, and one half-sister, Mrs. Ruth Hearst, of Atlanta.

Mr. Copeland came to Grantville about 20 years ago from LaGrange, where he operated a large farm. Since coming to Grantville he was superintendent of the Grantville Oil Mill garage and later owner and operator of the Copeland garage. He had been city electrician for a number of years. He was a member of the Methodist church, a Shriner and an Elk.

Shanghai 'Adventure' Unpopular With Nippons' People, Asserts Jap

AMERICUS, Ga., March 19.—The Japanese adventure in Manchuria and at Shanghai is a movement originated and supported wholly by the military party in Japan. The Japanese people are whole-heartedly opposed to both operations and if the nations of the world let the militarists alone they will soon run their course. This was the opinion expressed here today by Yone Saturo Kishi.

Kishi, a former Emory College student, is the only Japanese resident in Americus.

"While the Japanese people are opposed to the military conquests now being undertaken by the army," he said, "any interference upon the part of the world powers most probably would operate to unify the entire Japanese people behind the nation's warriors.

"The Japanese militarists covet the vast mineral deposits in Manchuria and the commanding position of Shanghai at the mouth of the Yangtze and Whangpoo rivers. Japan is rapidly becoming a great industrial nation. But the nation is short on raw materials and the cost of these raw materials is embarrassing the Japanese in their fight for world markets. The Japanese workman is both rapid and intelligent. He works long hours for small pay and should Japan succeed in holding Manchuria and Shanghai Japanese industrialists will become most powerful in all parts of the world."

Augusta News, Views, Reviews

BY J. C. McAULIFFE.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19.—Another chapter in the graphic story revolving around Rev. J. M. Williams, former pastor of Rochelle, Ga., who is in jail here, under life sentence on a charge of killing his son, Grady Raiford Williams, a young sailor, near here, last August, is being written. The last of the voluminous record of the long trial is being completed and within a short time it is expected that hearing for a new trial will be held by Judge A. L. Franklin, of the Richmond county superior court.

The case attracted national attention, following the arrest of the pastor at his church on Sunday morning, last September, just a month after his son had been found dead about nine miles out of Augusta. The first trial resulted in a mistrial, but within a couple of months another trial was held and the minister found guilty and recommendation for life imprisonment was made. Many sensational features characterized the case, including speculative activities of the defendant prior to the crime.

During all the time Williams has remained in the Richmond county jail and it will probably be several weeks before a decision is reached in the application for a new trial. More than a hundred witnesses for the state and defense were presented in the first trial, but not quite such a large number in the second hearing. It is the transcript of all this testimony that has taken months to prepare and which is now reported to be nearly ready for presentation to the court.

MILK PRICES STAY LOW AS "WAR" CONTINUES

With Augusta still enjoying 10-cents-a-quart milk from standard dairies, the cheapest in years, with other sources of supply furnishing it at even half that price, Augusta's milk war continues. In the meantime wholesale and retail dairy producers are proceeding to organize a co-operative creamery to handle the production of milk, butter and cream in this section. More than a hundred dairymen are included in the group of sponsors of the new enterprise.

If the situation reaches a more acute stage the dairy products concerns in Augusta, of which there are three, operated by two companies, may be forced to resort to introduction of milk from outside sources to supply their needs, it is stated, as the producers prepare to handle their own supplies through the co-operative creamery. Dairying has increased extensively in this area during the past decade.

HEALTH BOARD TIE-UP REMAINS UNSETTLED

The tangled situation that has revolved around the health boards of this city and Richmond county since attempted organization of the city-county board of health, reached a climax this week when Dr. Charles Vivian Akin, of the federal public health service, came upon the scene in an effort to solve the problem. Conferences upon conferences have been held, but in the meantime the salaries of employes have been held up since the first of the year. Employes received January salaries Saturday, but February remains unpaid.

The complex features of the new organization began when the first draft of the bill was presented in the legislature last summer, seeking to supplant the city board of health and the county health organization by substituting the new city-county board. Finally, it was rewritten, but on a basis objectionable to the original promoters. However, it was adopted as a law. By the terms of the law Dr. Eugene E. Murphey, for a quarter of a century head of the city board, was retained as head of the new board, with a deputy commissioner to be selected. Members of the county health board under the Ellis act were retained also as members of the new board. No deputy commissioner has been selected.

HEATED RACE STAGED FOR SHERIFF'S OFFICE

With Richmond county's primary only about three weeks off, candidates for the various county offices in which there are contests are redoubling their efforts to win the support of the voters. The biggest office in the campaign is that of sheriff, now held by Mark Gary Whittle, formerly chief deputy under the late Sheriff J. T. Plunkett, serving an unexpired term. He is being opposed by D. F. Kuhlke, former city councilman, and candidate for county commissioner a couple of years ago. Intense interest centers in the contest.

Two other notable contests are the ones being waged for county commissioner, in which J. Marvin Wolfe, chairman of the county commission, and reported leader of a faction in city and county politics, is being opposed by M. B. Edwards, retired businessman, who has been put forth by opposing forces to those represented by Wolfe, and the other is the contest raging around Frank H. Turner, dean of the county commissioners, and ex-president of the state association of county commissioners, who is being opposed by R. H. Burckhalter and H. H. Bredenberg, the former a farmer and the latter a cotton man. A warm campaign is promised for these places before the final roundup.

Treasurer J. N. Robinson, also filling an unexpired term, is being opposed by A. R. Peters. Coroner R. E. Elliott is opposed by Foster E. Gibson. J. Roy Cooper is opposing C. A. Steed for county tax receiver. Other positions are without contestants.

The date set for the primary is April 13 and it is expected that one of the largest votes ever polled in a county primary will be recorded, as there has been but little interest manifested in county affairs in a general way in several years.

Highlights of Week in Savannah

BY W. G. SUTLIVE.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 18.—The Hibernian Society of Savannah at its 120th annual meeting here on St. Patrick's Day, in electing Richard M. Charlton, city editor of the Savannah Morning News, vice president, has honored the fourth generation of the Charlton family to be represented in the society. The society is composed of men who have Irish blood in their veins, this being the requirement for membership, but Dick Charlton comes of a family not Irish but who were sympathizers with the Irish cause. Through that sympathetic affiliation with Irishmen, Thomas U. P. Charlton, great-grandfather of Dick Charlton, became one of the founders of the society and its vice president 120 years ago. His descent was English, but when the Hibernian Society was organized of native-born Irishmen, the sons of Irishmen, and those in sympathy with the Irish he eminently qualified under the latter classification.

His son, Robert M. Charlton, followed him as a member of the society, and he was in turn followed by the late Judge Walter G. Charlton, of Chatham superior court, father of Richard M. Charlton. The society was organized for philanthrophic purposes, to assist Irishmen who came to Georgia and to give help to those in need in the mother country. It has expended large sums of money in carrying out its charitable purposes. Judge James P. Houlihan, member of the Chatham county commissioners and president of the Liberty National Bank & Trust Company, was elected president.

AUDIT OF SAVANNAH CITY ACCOUNTS BEGUN

The awaited and much discussed audit of the books of the city of Savannah by certified public accountants began this week. Several years ago when Thomas M. Hoynes retired after his first service as mayor he recommended that a yearly C. P. A. audit should be made of the city books. Nothing was done about the recommendation. Mayor Hoynes, who had returned to office again, at the end of his first calendar year in this term made it again and council adopted it. The audit is to be not only an audit in the sense of a checking up but recommendations are to be included.

The last audit of the city's books was made in 1913 when the late Richard Davant as mayor of the city had the audit made when he first assumed office.

The Real Estate Taxpayers' Association of Savannah during the past several months has been having a survey made of the city, this necessitating a check of the books by their accountant. During the time the C. P. A. audit is being made council has decreed that the survey of the taxpayers association must cease in so far as work on the city books is concerned so that the auditors may proceed without interference. This has caused some discussion locally, the taxpayers association not relishing it.

NEW TRIAL FOR PAIR CONVICTED OF MURDER

Supreme Court Voids Life Sentences of Mrs. Edwards and Basknight.

SPRINGFIELD, Ga., March 19. (AP)—Under a decision handed down by the supreme court, the life sentences of Mrs. Lulu Edwards and William Basknight, convicted of the murder of Daniel Edwards, the woman's husband, here last year, have been set aside and a new trial ordered.

Judge Strange sent the case to the supreme court with the expressed desire that they pass upon the merits of the evidence. Attorneys, however, presented evidence to show that one of the jurors was related to the deceased. It was upon this ground that the new trial was granted and not upon the merits of the evidence.

Judge Strange stated today he would try the case in April. The Edwards case drew considerable attention here last year. Mrs. Edwards and Basknight, a roomer, were charged with beating the elderly man to death. The defense maintained Edwards died a natural death. The state charged Mrs. Edwards and Basknight had been friendly.

Railroad Prosperity Vital To All Industry, Says Editor

Tin Can Hoard Report Attracts "Relatives"

DECATUR, Ala., March 19.—(AP)—Leroy Robertson, railroad employe who was caused by illness to reveal a hoard of $27,336 buried around his little cottage here, was reported improved Saturday under the care of a relative, Mrs. Ava Baxter, of Griffin, Ga.

When he was stricken, Robertson said Mrs. Baxter was his only immediate relative. Several others appeared Saturday, however, and claimed relationship.

Several weeks ago, when he first became ill, Robertson entrusted to a friend a tin can containing $10,000. When his condition became worse he told of a can and a jar hidden under his back porch which were found to contain $17,336 more.

Brunswick Publisher Declares State Government Based on Rail Success.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 19.—In a front-page editorial in his newspaper, the Independent Ledger, published here, J. T. Abrams declares "the time has come for every thinking American to lend his heart and support to the foundation of American enterprise, the railroad industry."

"Our state government is based upon the success of railroad industry," Mr. Abrams continues. "Georgia's richest possession, the W. & A. railroad, is state-owned; our largest state taxpayer is a railroad; they pay for our city improvement; they pay for the very essentials of life's guarantee, the salaries of the police."

The lack of patronage given the railroads can and must lead to one ultimate end bankruptcy, in the opinion of the Brunswick editor.

"The federal government in its wisdom has seen the handwriting on the wall and has rushed temporary relief through the reconstruction corporation in the form of loans," he says. "But what good are loans and temporary relief if the core of the trouble is not reached? Of what use will present-day funds to pay current bills be if future months are but to pile up the ever-increasing deficit?"

"When we, as a nation, devise supplemental means of bootleg transportation of our products, carriers who pay nothing for the support of our government other than a license tag to operate a truck—are we not robbing Peter to pay Paul?"

Editor Abrams, in concluding his editorial, gives a table of figures, which he says, "discloses an amazing lack of patronage for the railroad that serves as our most dependable commercial link with the outside world."

MANCHESTER RETRIAL MOTION BEFORE JUDGE

MACON, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Judge Louis L. Brown, of Bibb superior court, today took under advisement an extraordinary motion for new trial by which Earl Manchester, condemned slayer of James W. Parks, hopes to get before a second jury a new version of the crime and thus escape death in the electric chair.

Hearing of the motion began Thursday. It ended shortly after noon Saturday after R. Douglas Feagin, attorney for the youth, had completed his closing argument. Judge Brown gave no indication of when he would decide the case.

The motion came as Manchester's final effort to escape the death penalty. Convicted in June, 1929, on his own confession, Manchester now contends he was not the actual slayer, but only aided in the disposition of Parks' body.

He said he was not at home on the night of the murder, but arrived there (the apartment of Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Powers) shortly after the slaying occurred. He described a "stranger" as the actual slayer.

Photographic identification of the "stranger" as Lee H. Tharpe, Mrs. Powers' son-in-law, was about to prove the most sensational development in the case Thursday, but when Mr. Tharpe was carried in person before Manchester, the youth said, "No, he's not the man."

Bebe Haggarty, road showman, is Manchester's principal witness in his appeal for new trial. With Haggarty, Manchester expects to establish his alibi. The showman has sworn to an affidavit that he was with Manchester on the night of the murder, and were in a local theater, where the witness was playing, when the murder is said to have taken place.

Solicitor Charles H. Garrett made a vigorous counter showing on every one of Mr. Feagin's grounds for new trial.

REFUSAL OF RATE CUT AIDS TRUCK SHIPMENT

VALDOSTA, Ga., March 19.—South Georgia vegetable plant growers, it is understood, will continue to develop the movement of plants by truck, despite the gesture just made by express companies in granting a reduction in rates to certain points.

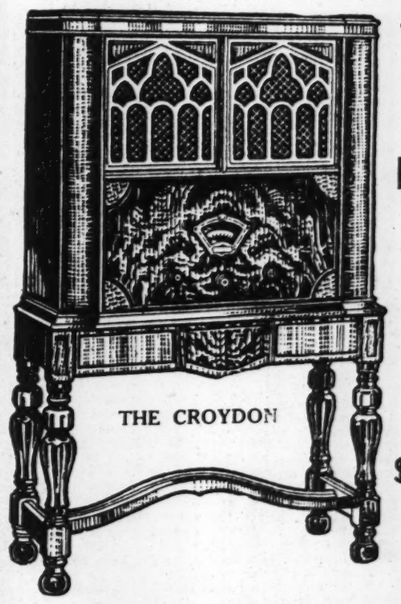

The growers asked for a nation-wide reduction on a 40 per cent basis, and the advance information was to the effect that the reduction was granted except in certain nearby states. Official information received by the Chamber of Commerce today shows that a 20 per cent reduction was granted to a few states, the old rates being maintained as a general thing, so that the reduction is regarded as of little value.

Support of Roosevelt by Women Urged in Speech by Mrs. Peterson

Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, vice president of Fulton County Roosevelt-for-President Club, made a forceful address at the luncheon meeting Friday at the Piedmont hotel. Mrs. Peterson, an ardent supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt as the democratic nominee for the 1932 presidential campaign, expressed the hope that Fulton county women not be misled by statements involving political trickery when casting their vote in Wednesday's primary.

She asserted that Mr. Roosevelt's vision is matched only by the breadth of the plains; that he is comparable to the mountains in his loftiness of ideals, and that he has built an empire in the hearts of the women of Georgia. Mrs. Peterson is confident that his election to the presidency of the United States will mean a return of peace, prosperity and happiness.

Mrs. Peterson has known Mr. Roosevelt since 1924, and has followed closely his demonstrated ability as a leader. She has been a staunch democrat all her life, but, only after being married 28 years to Mr. Peterson, has she converted him from the republican to democratic principles. She told her hearers Friday that for the first time in almost 30 years political harmony reigns in the household.

Mrs. Peterson's remarks were brought to a conclusion with the statement that "the prohibition issue should not be injected into the presidential campaign as a dominant matter, but it should be referred to the states for decision. Economic conditions should be the dominant thought in the democratic platform."

Among those active in the Fulton County Roosevelt Club attending the luncheon were Mesdames George Price, M. L. Cox, T. D. Albright, O. E. Clotfelter, L. M. Ahern, Z. V. Peterson, H. M. Albright, Misses Rose Moran, I. Bellah and Sarah Tuck, and Mrs. R. L. Shipp, of Miami, Fla.

RELIEF WORK POLICY OUTLINED BY MOSS

Permanent Aid Is Aim of Unit, Chest Executive Says in Survey.

Human relief having become under existing conditions the community's major interest and obligation, according to a statement Saturday by Louis H. Moss, chairman of the executive committee of the Atlanta Community Chest, an outline of policies that govern the work of relief has been prepared for public information.

The statement was a review of the situation pointing need of more prompt and generous public support.

Mr. Moss pointed out that the big idea in the Atlanta program is to apply a sort of intelligent and studied relief that looks to permanent benefit instead of creating a habit of dependence and begging.

"In times such as these," he said, "a very sharp distinction should be made between relief work that really relieves and relief work that tends further to impoverish and pauperize the applicant."

Work of unemployment relief has been the greatest factor in increasing the needs and burdens of the organization, Mr. Moss pointed out, revealing figures of activities in this field. In the period of January 1 to February 20 the Family Welfare Society handled a total of 13,505 cases, involving unemployment problems, of which 809 were new cases, the others recurrent. The 809 involved 4,079 individuals, of whom 1,823 were adults and 2,256 children. The Salvation Army handled 179 unemployment relief cases in that seven weeks and the Travelers' Aid Society 34, the total cost of this service by the three agencies being $36,892.69.

In the week of February 15-20, the Family Welfare Society handled 62 new and 2,171 recurrent cases arising from unemployment alone, giving 1,984 grocery orders, 347 coal orders and paying 30 rents at cost of $6,398.53.

Johnny Dobbs Expected To Sign With Washington Today as Scout

CRACKERS SEND NINE PLAYERS TO COLUMBUS

DOBBS EXPECTED TO SIGN TODAY WITH SENATORS

Former Cracker Manager To Confer With Clark Griffith.

Johnny Dobbs is expected to be appointed a scout for the Washington baseball club at a meeting today with Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington club, it was learned yesterday.

Griffith, when reached at Mobile, where the Senators played an exhibition game, said that he and Dobbs had reached no definite agreement at a Saturday meeting in that city but they would hold another conference Sunday.

Johnny Dobbs, who was recently deposed as manager of the Crackers after two years at the helm, would make an acceptable scout and it would not be surprising were the Washington officials to sign him.

ONE SCOUT.

The Senators have had but one scout for the past several seasons and that one, of course, is Cousin Joe Engel, the owner and front man for Griffith at Chattanooga.

Engel has worked wonders as a scout but his duties at Chattanoga make it impossible for him to give the job the attention it deserves. Engel has been competing with the two and three scouts which other major league clubs have.

VALUE SEEN.

Dobbs, once signed as a Washington scout, could also do some scouting for the Chattanooga Lookouts and become a very valuable man to the Washington interests at both points.

If Dobbs is signed by the Senators it will set at rest all reports that he is going to Judge Landis with his claims against the Atlanta baseball club. The local baseball club indignantly denied that there was a rift between them and Dobbs and claimed in its stead complete harmony.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable led in the highest number nominated with six, while Edward R. Bradley entered four, as did C. V. Whitney.

Other outstanding three-year-olds in the list are Burning Blaze, Tick On, and Osculator, with Top Flight the leading two-year-old money winners of 1931; Laughing Queen and Polonaise. Hygro, Princess Camelia, Evening, Monk's First, Bahamas, Air Pilot, Gold Check, Proteus and Universe.

Georgia Poloists Beat 'Gators, 9-3

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—The University of Georgia made a clean sweep of their two-game polo series with the University of Florida here this afternoon by winning the second game, 9 to 3.

The Georgians rode beautifully, hit their shots cleanly and played heads-up ball. Florida held a 2-1 lead at the end of the second chukker, but the Bulldogs put on a great third-chukker march to tally four times and pile up an overwhelming lead.

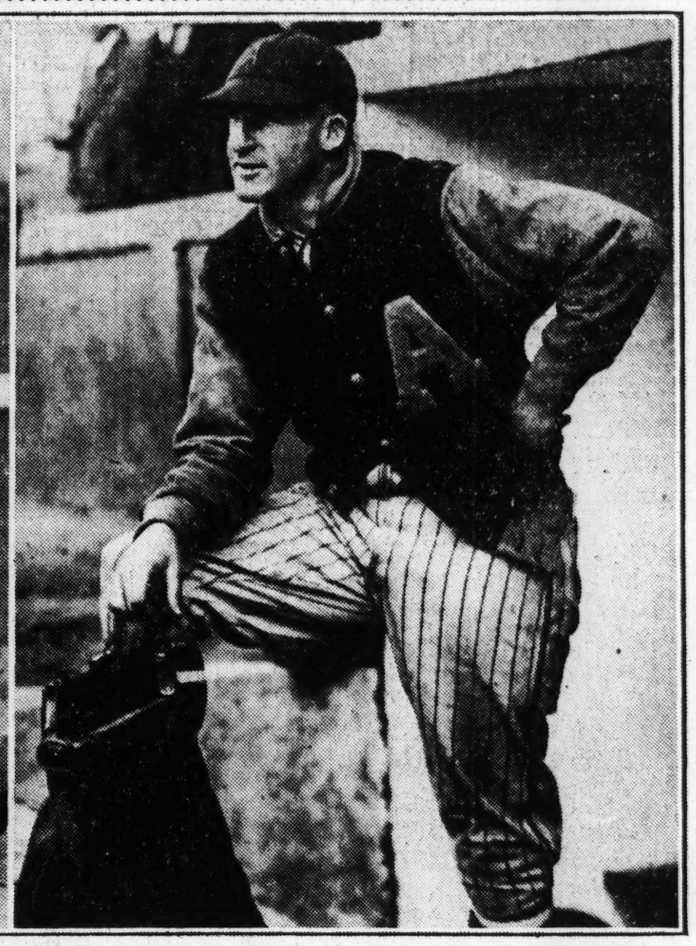

Jim McIntyre, with four goals, led the Georgia offense with Bill Wooten second, but the brilliant field generalship of Crozier Woods brought him great applause.

Score by chukkers:

Georgia	1	0	4	2	1	1	—9
Florida	1	1	0	1	0	0	—3

A First-Hand Lesson for New Columbus Club Owner---And 'The Thinker'

At the left we see T. G. Reeves, the owner and president of the Columbus (Ga.) baseball team, getting a personal lesson in how to get his diamond in shape. "Who, me?" he seems to be asking. Left to right, with the brooms, Jack Sheehan, who will manage the Columbus outfit, and Chick Roos, business manager of the Crackers, showing what all a business manager has to do. And at the right is a new photographic study of David Irenus (The Original Red) Barron. It is almost the pose of Rodin's "Thinker." And Red Barron is no doubt thinking about his "A" and "B" men. He said Saturday he talked about them in his sleep. Constitution staff photos.

CLAUDE HERRIN AND M'GAUGHEY ARE INCLUDED

Others Are Polvogt, Rich, Bader, Macy, Baxter, Sington, Beasley.

Jack Sheehan, manager of the Columbus Foxes of the Southeastern league, will leave the city today with nine ball players from the squad of the Atlanta Crackers in tow.

Following a conference between officials of the Atlanta club, Sheehan and his president, T. G. Reeves, the announcement was made that the following men would go along:

Fred Polvogt, catcher; Leo Bader and Russell Macy, second basemen; Cliff McGaughey, Tommy Rich and Ed Baxter, shortstops; Claude Herrin, third baseman; Freddie Sington and Hoke Beasley, outfielders.

No pitchers were in the list, because Manager Barron wants to keep all his young hurlers for batting practice and to help pitch a hard exhibition schedule.

Business Manager "Chick" Roos explained that this did not necessarily mean that this was a final cut from the Atlanta squad.

NOT LAST CUT.

"These players are merely sent to Columbus to finish training to relieve the congestion here. After they have finished work at Columbus the final awarding of players will be made," Roos stated.

He explained that Columbus may need other players still on the squad here or may not be able to use all of those sent.

Meanwhile Manager Red Barron has a problem of his own on his hands in getting his squad within the Class A limit of 12 and still retain the players needed. A complicated situation has arisen in the fact that Johnny O'Connell, counted on for first-string catcher, is Class A, as are all four of the infielders—Chapman, Goff, Roetz and Bejin. Si Rosenthal, the other first base candidate, also is Class A and so are Barron, Barnes and Carlyle, the outfielders.

CLASS A PROBLEM.

"I would like very much to carry five Class A pitchers, but if I do that I'll have to squeeze a "B" man in the infield," Barron stated.

Danny Lynch, second baseman, and Lenny Mock, third baseman, are the only "B" infield candidates now. Johnny Chapman is favored as the regular third-sacker and Roetz has a slight edge on Lynch at second because of his hitting. Lynch seems to be a fine fielder.

Manager Barron himself makes the thirteenth man on the club and he intends playing some. The problem would be solved automatically if the Crackers could land a hard-hitting Class B first-sacker, but this far they have not been successful in that quest.

Hal Bejin is a great fielder and has hit well in exhibitions but unfortunately he is Class A also.

Barron is so well pleased with his pitching staff that he doesn't care to disrupt it. Climax Blethen won 20 games last year. Bunny Hearn won 15 and Andy Messenger 14. This trio accounted for 49 victories on a weak club. They are certain to be retained.

CHICK HOWARD.

Chick Howard won nine games for Reading last year and Lou Garland nine for Dallas. Both are Class A right-handers. There's five right there, not to mention Johnny Morrison, counted on as a relief ace, and Morris Bream, who won seven games for St. Paul in AA last year.

The Class B category presents Wilbur Wedhe, right-hander, and Johnny Carrithers, left-hander—a couple of sure-fire prospects. Young Carrithers looks like he is in for a big year and Wedhe has the stuff to make a winner.

It's a real problem for David Irenus Barron and the Southern league certainly wished a lot of grief on him when it declared a limit of 12 Class A men when it used to be 13.

ATLANTA GIRLS DEFEATED, 25-24

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 19.—Atlanta's girls team lost to Nashville by one point here tonight in the finals of the Epworth league basketball tournament. The score was 25-24. After trailing all the way, the Georgians tied the score in the last minute of play, only to lose on a field goal by Miss Armistead, Nashville center. It marked the third time the Nashville girls have won the title.

In the boys' consolation, Atlanta lost to Birmingham, 31 to 22.

WINS TOURNEY.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 19. (AP)—Mrs. C. F. Rowley, of Brookline, Mass., won the Bermuda women's golf championship today, defeating Mrs. H. von Rhau, of Greenwich, Conn., 5 and 4, in the final round.

BREAK of the DAY!

By Ralph McGill

"He shot it out." That's a great epitaph for an officer of the law in these days when the hands of the underworld are throttling organized society. I doubt if there could be a better epitaph. "He shot it out." And that is why The Constitution is offering an opportunity to be included in the "Courage Fund" for Frank (Red) Foster, who reached for a gun instead of the ceiling when the bandits called for hands up Wednesday night. And it occurred to me that the golfers might do something for the courage fund today; that the foursomes and the twosomes might arrange it so that when night comes more checks will be in the mails to The Constitution's courage fund for the widow of the officer who kept the faith and his oath and shot it out even though it meant his life.

A DERBY DREAM.

This is exactly the way the dream went: It was Derby eve and raining hard in Louisville. It always is. There were no rooms to be had, so we were sleeping on cots in the corridors on the fifth floor. And then there was someone shaking me and saying it was time to go out to the track. So we went out and couldn't find our press badges and missed the Derby. But when we did get in we met a lot of people coming out who said that Tick On came from fifth place to win. And then I woke up and it was time to come to the office.

So there it is, boys and girls, for what it's worth. It seemed very real. Tick On's name was first on the boards and the next name was blurred. It may have been Top Flight. Come to think of it, that must have been it. It seemed a little surprising.

It was Tick On who gave Top Flight her greatest scare during the 2-year-old season when the Whitney filly was winning her championship. This brown son of On Watch-Sox, by imported Donnacona, is a dangerous candidate for the fifth race on May 7 at the Downs.

It was in the Pimlico Futurity that Tick On, carrying 119

Miss Robert Breaks Mark at Washington

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Louisa Robert, of Atlanta, tonight showed the way to Washington's fastest girl swimmers in the 100-yard backstroke event of the District of Columbia A. A. U. indoor swimming meet, clipping one second from the District record and finishing in 1:19.

In the 100-yard free-style match, the only other event in which she participated, she placed second. The victor, Rite Augusterfer, of Washington, lowered the District record from 1:16 3-5 to 1:14 2-5, with Miss Robert's time 1:16 2-5.

The Atlanta swimmer was invited to participate in the meet by the local committee in charge, and her total of nine points ranked among the highest.

As a guest she was not eligible for medals or other official recognition, but Lenore Taube, of Washington, who was second in the backstroke event, and was awarded the first place medal, presented it to her.

MANGIN UPSETS FRANK SHIELDS

Newark Star Takes Three of Four Sets in Finals.

By Henry McLemore,

United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(UP)—Displaying a splendid scorn for his rival's exalted position as a Davis-cupper and the country's third ranking player, Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., trounced Frank Shields, of New York, 10-8, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, in the final round of the national indoor tennis singles championship here today.

It is difficult to say which was the more surprised at Mangin's triumph—the crowd of more than 3,000 who went there to see Shields smother the Jersey boy, or Shields, who went there for that express purpose. But that doesn't matter. The thing that counts is the fact that Mangin, ranked outside the big ten, catapulted himself right into the middle of the Davis Cup eligibles in one fell swoop. His elimination of George Lott yesterday, coupled with his defeat of Shields today, stamps him as a player who must be given every consideration.

Mangin asked no consideration of Shields today. All he asked was a swing at the ball. Playing with a deadly seriousness, yet with an abandon that moved him to try any shot once, Mangin raked Shields' court with a hurricane of bullet drives, smashes and rapier volleys.

PLENTY SPEED.

Save on those occasions when a soft shot was the proper one, he hit with lighting speed, and with a crispness and accuracy that sent dozens of his returns whistling into the far reaches of his opponent's court for placements.

Mangin's victory was made all the more satisfactory by his stirring rally in the first set—a rally, that, judging from what followed—put a serious crimp in Shield's morale and game. The strapping New Yorker, fresh from his brilliant defeat of Berkeley Bell in the semi-finals, opened the match at a breathless pace, twice breaking through Mangin's service to run up a lead of 5-2. Knocked back on his heels by the intensity of Shield's play, but still game, Mangin rallied to crack the Davis-cupper's tremendous service in the eighth game.

ENCOURAGED.

Encouraged by the break, Mangin lifted his game and won four of the next five games to move out front 5-6. Shaken by Mangin's rally Shields managed to hang on until the eighteenth game when the stocky Jersey boy again cracked his opponent's delivery to take the set.

Exhausted by his first set surge, Mangin slumped in the second set and Shields ran it out in eight minutes flat; but this was his last stand. Mangin won the first game of the third set on service, and smashed Shields' service in the second. Even when Shields was taking the next two, Mangin looked the winner. He again took Shields' service in the eighth set to lead 5-3, and after losing the ninth at love, took the tenth for set with the loss of but one point.

REST PERIOD.

They rested 10 minutes and then

New Rules Work Fine In Jacket Scrimmage

Tech Squad Holds First Full-Time Game With Pleasing Results.

By Ralph McGill.

There was no evidence of any interference in blocking and tackling by the new football rules as the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets went through their first complete scrimmage of the spring season Saturday at the Rose Bowl field.

The boys went right after each other for four quarters of fifteen minutes each. They tackled and blocked with considerable ardor and arwwardness, but the new rules did not halt them any.

There was one splendid example of the value of one of the new rules—that which makes the runner down when he falls to the ground.

One of the Tech backs came off tackle and gained 5 yards but fell as a wild tackle struck one leg. He went to his hands and knees. In that position he was helpless. Under the old rules the tackles would have piled on him, putting great stress and force on his back and neck.

Two or three of the defensive team started to leap for him but someone recalled the new rules and yelled in time to prevent it. This rule is sure to do its part in reducing injuries, something some of the blood-thirsty writers and football fans apparently don't want.

USE HANDS.

The linemen used their hands, keeping them out in front and employing them to push, pull and fend off. The blockers and tacklers, who are not used to leaving feet until the instant before contact, went along as usual as the new rules provide.

Coach W. A. Alexander did not employ the new kick-off rule, starting the practice from scrimmage.

The scrimmage displayed some glaring faults and some promising prospects. Jack Phillips, the graduate freshman fullback, showed some of the makings of a good backer-up of a line. If Phillips devotes himself assiduously to his job he should develop into a good sophomore player in the fall.

GOODING GOOD.

Hugh Gooding looked rather acceptable in the quarterback position for one of the teams, handling a lateral pass once that went for a touchdown with Sid Williams on the receiving end of the pass.

Coach W. A. Alexander permitted just one touchdown although three were scored. Two others were called back by Jack Cannon, line coach and referee, who looked like a very poor official.

The coaches were not at all satisfied with the scrimmage which was the first complete one, having been preceded by a couple of modified affairs.

ENDS SECOND WEEK.

The practice closed the second week of work but was really the only one in which any progress was made. Bad weather interfered with the other.

The practice will continue next week. Roy McArthur and Sam Cain, out with light touches of influenza, are expected back at work.

If you care to see a football lineup in the spring, here goes.

Leach Is Sold To Boston Braves

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Fred Leach, regular left fielder of the New York Giants for three years, today was sold to the Boston Braves for an unannounced cash sum, it was announced by the Giants home office.

Leach came to the Giants from Philadelphia in 1928 for Frank (Lefty) O'Doul and an unannounced sum. He was a holdout for several weeks this spring but finally signed and is at the Giants training camp in Los Angeles. The Giants office understood he would leave immediately for Florida to join the Braves.

Fred came up to the big leagues from Waterloo of the Mississippi Valley league in 1923, being purchased by Philadelphia.

His best year was 1926 when he played 129 games with the Phillies, batting for an average of .329 and scoring 73 runs. His batting average for nine years in the big leagues is .311.

Leach's sale to Boston was interpreted as meaning Leonard Koenecke, purchased last fall from Indianapolis, had definitely won the left field post with the Giants. Manager John McGraw announced sometime ago that Koenecke looked like a regular to him.

Leach's sale leaves the Giants with Koenecke, Freddie Lindstrom, Melvin Ott, Chick Fullis and Ethan Allen as leading outfield candidates. Lindstrom may be moved to second base if Hughie Critz's ailing arm keeps him out of play.

Meeting Called For Southeastern

MACON, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Roy G. Williams, president of the Southeastern league, Friday said he has called a meeting of directors of the loop for Montgomery at 11 a. m. Sunday.

The league schedule has been drawn up and it will be presented for ratification. No other important business will be discussed.

The meeting will be the last one before the league begins play April 19.

CRACKERS BEAT TORONTO LEAFS

Goff's Triple in Ninth Gives Atlanta 6-5 Win.

By Jimmy Jones.

That "baseball today" sign was hung out at Ponce de Leon park in fresh new paint yesterday and the Crackers took the measure of the Toronto Maple Leafs in their first spring exhibition appearance, 6 to 5.

A well-hit drive by Bobby Goff in the ninth inning with the score tied at 5-all and two men out, scored Amos Martin from first base and won for the Crackers.

Goff was given credit for a three-bagger under the scoring rules, as the winning run had to score from first.

The blow that won the game came off young Glenn Liebhart, son of the famous pitcher, and Goff leaned onto the ball with such gusto that it soared over the head of Arthur McHenry, Toronto centerfielder, and bounced out of his outstretched glove.

Amos Martin, who had reached first when Harry Davis missed the bag on Michaels' peg from third, scampered home and the game was over.

It was not a bang-up game, but fair enough as exhibitions go. And there was a punch in the last inning when little Goff shellacked the ball.

Lou Garland, the Tall Texan with the singing fast ball, pitched the first five innings for the Crackers and looked extremely good, allowing only one run and three hits. The big fellow did not issue a single base on balls. He struck out three men, mostly on fast balls.

Bunny Hearn relieved him in the sixth. Bunny chunked a brace of scoreless innings and then got into trouble in the eighth. Hearn, who is not yet in shape, grew wild, walked a couple, uncorked a wild pitch, allowed McHenry and Hughes to double and the Leafs had four runs.

It was up to the Crackers to win, which they did in the ninth after Liebhart had fanned Williams and Manager Barron.

The Toronto pitchers, Guy Cantrell, former Detroit right-hander, and Liebhart, held the Crackers to eight hits, which was the same number allowed by Garland and Hearn.

"Red" Barnes, with three hits, was the star hitter for the Crackers. Barnes seems to be in for a good year.

The Crackers' play afield was a

THREE-WAY TIE FEATURES PLAY IN MIAMI OPEN

Sarazen, Runyan and Mangrum Deadlocked at Halfway Mark.

MIAMI BILTMORE GOLF COURSE, CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—A three-way tie by sharp shooting professionals who counted 143 strokes for their 36-hole play over the difficult Miami Biltmore golf course marked the half-way distance of the $10,000 Coral Gables-Miami Biltmore open golf tournament.

Gene Sarazen, former national open champion, divided 36-hole honors with Paul Runyan, New York, and Ray Mangrum, New York.

With more than 100 of the nation's best professional and amateur golfers seeking a place among the low 60 professionals and low 10 amateurs and ties who were listed tonight as qualifiers, Harry Cooper, Chicago, stole individual honors for the day with a sterling 32-36—68, to tie the course record, held jointly by Walter Hagen, Detroit, and Henry Ciuci, New York.

Cooper missed a two-foot putt on the 18th green that would have given him a new course record of 67. His outbound 32 is the lowest ever scored for the first 9 holes of the canal-crossed course.

Ralph Redmond, St. Petersburg, Fla., with a 147 for his two days' play, was low amateur, with Gus Novotny, Chicago, scoring a 150 to stand second.

Among the professionals, Johnny Farrell, another former national open champion, was in second place, with two 72's for a 144. One stroke behind him were Archie Hambrick, Zanesville, Ohio, Harry Cooper, and Walter Hagen.

Frank Ball, former East Lake Country Club professional, was far down the list with 159 strokes at the halfway mark.

LIVERPOOL, England, March 19.—(AP)—There apparently is some mystery about the number or identity of the horses that finished the Grand National steeplechase race at Aintree yesterday.

STARS OF GRID PERFORM ON MAT TUESDAY NIGHT

Wycoff-Middlekauff Bout Features; Lumpkin Meets Marshall.

Three fullbacks who used to rip the enemy's lines for old alma mater are featured on Henry Weber's wrestling card Tuesday night in the auditorium.

They are boys who won esteem on both southern and northern gridirons as collegians. As they won fame then and later in professional ball, so now are they becoming recognized as top-notchers in the grappling business.

Roy (Father) Lumpkin, the old Tech star, and Floyd Marshall, the big Californian, have been matched in the semi-windup, supporting the main event in which Doug Wycoff, who scattered the enemy's tackles for Tech before Lumpkin's time, meets Bill Middlekauf, who was a power-house fullback for the University of Florida.

Lumpkin and Marshall collide in a one-hour bout, while the Middlekauf-Wycoff engagement is to be for two hours.

Collegians have been making great progress in wrestling and not the least promising of the present-day group are Wycoff, Lumpkin and Middlekauf. Fact is, they are reconized around the country as "comers."

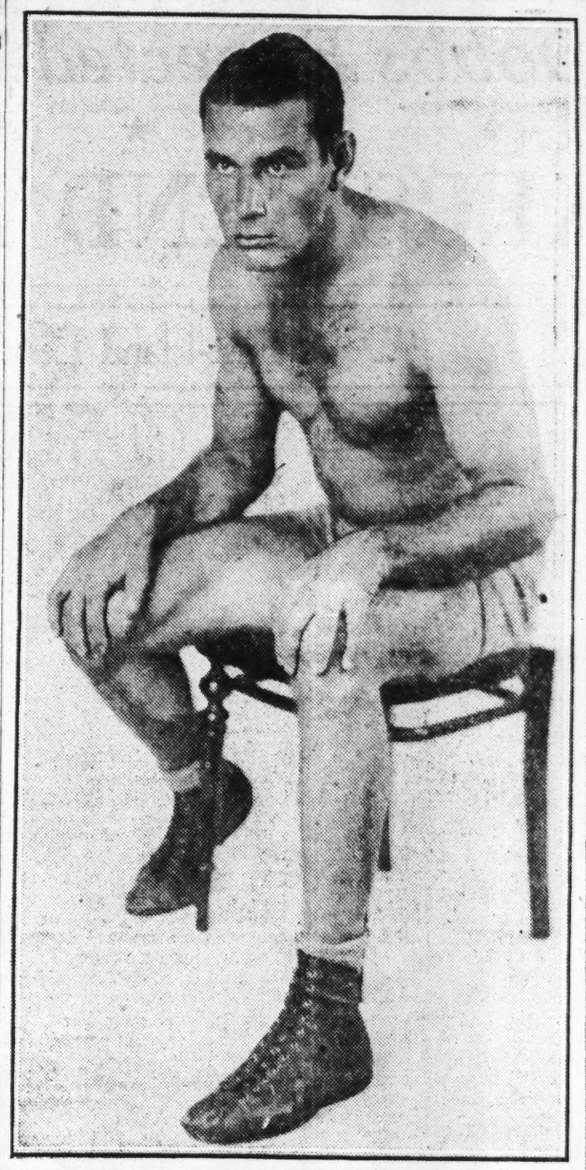

They are, as the boys say, "three must-get-theirs."

Tickets are on sale at Davison-Paxon and at Piedmont Hatters. Ladies will be admitted to any seat for 75 cents.

ONE OLD RECORD.

Though the records for other distances have been broken again and again no runner seems able to beat the mark of Maxey Long who, in 1900, ran the quarter-mile on a straightway course in 47 seconds flat.

Wrestles Tuesday

Bill Middlekauff, former University of Florida football star, will meet Doug Wycoff, former Georgia Tech baseball and football hero, in a wrestling match Tuesday night at the auditorium. Roy (Father) Lumpkin, another Tech player, will meet Floyd Marshall, huge Californian. It is Wycoff's first appearance here since he entered the mat game.

BARON MANAGER DIRECTS DRILLS FROM SICK BED

Kidney Ailment Confines Leader; Starting Lineup Named.

By Jack House.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 19. From his sick bed in a local hotel room, Clyde Milan is being forced to direct the progress of pruning his 1932 Southern league championship aspiring squad and selecting the men who will try to give Birmingham a repeater. The iron-clad heart that has enabled him to fight through so many winning baseball battles is pulling Milan through the most severe kidney stone attack he has ever suffered and his first attack was suffered back in the days when he was the speed demon of baseball with Washington.

Fate has frowned on the veteran Baronial manager at the most costly moment to his team. The strenuous efforts of Milan to round his team into a smooth-working combination in the first two weeks of spring training had just begun to bear fruit when Milan suffered his second kidney stone attack in two years. During the past week, since his first attack this year, Milan has suffered four major attacks and he was unable to supervise his team's play during the week other than to attend one practice game between the regulars and yannigans.

But, like many a great organization, Milan has his team schooled to go on with or without him, and the Barons got in a lively week of practice. Daily reports of Bill Pierre, Baron scout who has been in charge of the training in Milan's absence, have kept Milan well aware of everything that was going on at Rickwood and the starting Baron team of April is much nearer a solution now than it was last week. But the utility problem is a deeper, much deeper, puzzle.

THE LINEUP.

As it now stands, barring injury or some unexpected sale or purchase, the Barons will open the season April 12 at New Orleans with the following lineup:

Outfield—Joe Prerost, Andy Moore and Woodley Abernathy.
Infield—Art Hord, Shine Cortazzo, Billy Bancroft and Pete Susko.
Catcher—Bill Eisemann or Ellis Taylor, according to who pitches.
Pitcher—Ray Caldwell or Bob Hasty.

Caldwell, the 44-year-old veteran, probably will draw the opening assignment at New Orleans and if such is the case Eisemann probably will catch.

Of the nine men to start in the lineup, only two were not regulars on the 1931 championship team at the close of the season and all nine were regulars at one time or another last year. Hord was regular third baseman for awhile, until Charley Gooch was purchased, while Woodley Abernathy occupied the first base regularly while Susko was injured, and Joe Prerost was regular right fielder when Abernathy was in right.

LEADS ROOKIES.

Hord has just about beat out the rookies for his job at third. His showing in regular-yannigan games caused Pierre to start selecting an infield utility man from the rookies instead of searching for a third baseman. Stanley Tutaj and Tom Kane, third base aspirants, were given a strong race for even the utility role during the week when Louie Andrews, youthful local sandlot product, attracted the eye of Pierre. Andrews, weighing around 190 pounds and standing close to six feet, was knocking the ball over the lot and snagging them up at third for the regulars when Hord was not in the lineup. The scramble for the outfield utility berth also is far from settled, with five youngsters seeking the honor.

Adell (Abe) White, the Atlanta boy, and Millard Campbell are expected to be carried as rookie moundsmen. Henry Shoaf, last year's find, is likely to be given a regular turn this year and in case any one of the veteran moundsmen fail, White and Campbell will be retained.

Sammy Strang Ended Giants--Phil Hoodoo

Passing of Chattanoogan Revives Yarn of Nicklin and Telegraph Ruse.

By Jimmy Jones.

The passing of Strang Nicklin in Chattanooga last week added to the toll that the Grim Reaper has taken of baseball's illustrious men and revived an echo of the great old days when ball players brought their fellows to justice with their spikes and there was no Landis to punish them for their misdemeanors.

There are many stories about Sammy Strang, the name he went by as John McGraw's ace pinch hitter.

One of the best, to our mind, was that related by Richard (Rube) Marquard, who played with Strang on the old Giants and knew him as few men did.

From the fund of the Rube's rich reminiscences comes this yarn of Sammy Strang:

For many years the old Giants, great as they were, had a hoodoo in the National league. That club was the Phillies.

In those days the Phils had a southpaw who was plain poison to the Giants. He was Harry Coveleskie, and he had to but toss his glove out in the infield, as ball players say, and the Giants were a beaten ball club.

"Ball players were shrewd and unscrupulous in those days and the Phils had a foxy pair in Otto Knabe and Mickey Doolan," said the Rube.

"We never could win a game in Philadelphia, but when the Phillies came to the Polo Grounds, our own back yard, we would give them a shellacking.

"This was all very strange and John McGraw fumed and raged, but he couldn't figure out what was wrong. Finally it dawned on us that the Phillies always knew our signals in Philadelphia."

GRAB SIGNALS.

One day the Giants went to Philadelphia, expecting, as usual, the worst. And, as usual, the Phillies grabbed the signals in a jiffy and went merrily on their way of winning the game.

Sammy Strang was coaching on third base. It had been raining and the ground was soft. So, ever so often, Sammy would paw the ground with his spikes to kick the mud out. He kept this up sort of unconscious-like for several innings. Finally Sammy Strang's spikes grated against a board while he was kicking around.

Curious, he lifted the board up and there beneath, cleverly concealed, was a complete telegraph apparatus and a ticker.

"SPY."

"This led to the discovery that the Phillies had a "spy" planted out in centerfield with a powerful set of glasses; he had a sending instrument out there with him and when his side was at bat he would catch our catcher's signals and begin tapping the wires; the Philly coach stationed on the third base line knew the code and immediately signalled to the batter what was coming."

For instance, if the Giant catcher had signalled a curve to the pitcher, the Philly coach would wig-wag what to expect from the tapping beneath his feet. Consequently the Philly hitters would get all set to murder the ball.

McGraw naturally raised a big howl, but nothing ever came of his protest, saving that the telegraph instrument—the grapevine by which the Phillies had snatched the signs—was ripped out. The Phils never got the Giant signals again. Their little playhouse was smashed and Sammy Strang was the detective.

MORE TRICKS.

But that was not the last trick of Otto Knabe and Mickey Doolan. Their telegraph plans gone awry, the artful pair began applying their talented minds elsewhere.

The Giants had a great spitball pitcher at the time named Jeff Tesrau. He was singled out as the next victim by Knabe and Doolan.

The next time they were to play the Giants they went out and purchased a bottle of fiery mixture called capsicle vaseline. They smeared some of it in the palm of their gloves. When the time came to change sides, either Knabe or Doolan would call for the ball and rub it around in their gloves. Then they would toss it over to the pitching mound.

NOT UNUSUAL.

There was nothing unusual about this procedure, saving that poor Jeff Tesrau naturally had to moisten his pitching fingers with his lips very often, for he was a spitball hurler.

Along about the fifth inning Tesrau's lips were swollen the size of an overripe tomato and were as raw as a piece of beefsteak. The fiery vaseline from the surface of the ball had done its work. McGraw had to take him out of the game. The Phillies had triumphed again.

"And that was nothing," said Rube Marquard. "When we had our war with the Cubs, we used to enter the park and see them filing their spikes to a fine edge so they would be sharp."

A youngster these days has a picnic breaking into the big league. But in the days of Doolan, Knabe and others it was anything but a picnic.

Shaughnessy Considered By Gophers

NEW ORLEANS, March 19.—(AP) Clark D. Shaughnessy, head coach at Loyola University, was expected to consult officials of the University of Wisconsin at Madison during the week-end on an offer to coach Wisconsin.

Shaugnessy left for Madison after talking with Major Griffith, head of the Big Ten conference, over the long distance telephone.

Previously Shaughnessy had turned down invitations to discuss coaching berths at Iowa and Wisconsin and before he left, he said he would remain at Loyola if he followed his personal wishes.

Shaughnessy is regarded as one of the most brilliant of southern coaches, famous for trick plays and fast men. Before going to Loyola he coached at Tulane. He came out of the football school of Minnesota and built his game around the Minnesota shift.

Birney Bierman, who was Shaughnessy's assistant at Tulane and followed him as head coach for the Green Wave, quit Tulane this year to become head coach at Minnesota, where he graduated a few years after Shaughnessy.

State Amateur To Be Held Here; Southern Tourney Sought for 1933

PLANS SETTLED FOR MEET HERE AT CAPITAL CITY

Tourney Dates Are Set for June 5 Through June 9.

By Roy White.

Lowry Arnold, president of the Georgia Amateur Golf Association, announced Saturday that the state amateur golf tourney will be held this year in Atlanta over the Capital City Country Club course. The dates for the tournament have been set for June 5-9. Arnold's announcement bears out a prediction made in The Constitution several weeks ago that Atlanta would be selected as the tourney site, after reports had stated that three other Georgia towns were bidding for the meet.

It has been the custom since the state amateur was organized in 1916 to revert the tournament to Atlanta every two years and the board of directors again favored the old custom. It has been rumored, however, that starting this year the event will be held in other cities two years and returned here every three years.

FOLLOWS SOUTHERN.

The Georgia tourney will follow the Southern amateur scheduled for Birmingham, by two weeks, as has been the case during the past few years. Exact dates for the Southern have not been set, but they are expected to be the third week in June, it was learned Saturday.

According to present plans, qualifying rounds at Capital City will be played on Tuesday, July 5, with first round match play slated for Wednesday. Quarter and semi-finals will be played Friday and finls will be played Saturday.

The low 32 players in the qualifying will compose the championship division and the 16 winners and losers in Wednesday's play will form the championship and first flights. As many other divisions as necessary will be formed to take care of every entry and each group will continue play as in the championship division.

PLENTY OF GOLF.

In that way every player who enters the event is sure of at least four rounds of 18 holes each, since a practice round will be permitted on Monday.

The course will be open for tournament entrants on Sunday, giving two days of practice before the qualifying and it is likely that three days' practice will be granted.

Final details pertaining to the tournament will be left to members of the tournament committee of the Capital City Country Club.

J. C. Brown Scores Ace at Druid Hills.

J. C. Brown, with an ace on the 145-yard, par 3, 15th hole at Druid Hills, provided the feature as more than 1,200 golfers gathered Saturday afternoon on the various private and municipal courses, in what promises to set another record for week-end play during the winter season.

Brown was playing with A. H. Davis, Dr. J. Rowan and A. C. Bromberg and used a mashie from the tee. His drive hit a few feet from the pin and rolled on into the cup for the dodo.

Dana Belser, with a gross of 75, won class honor in a one-day ball sweepstakes tournament at Druid Hills. Major E. V. Ely and Homer Bartee, with scores of 70, divided net honors.

In Class B, Bromberg, who played with Brown when an ace was made, won gross honor with an 88, while Fred Snook won net honor with a 64.

New golfers sprang into prominence at East Lake Saturday afternoon in a blind bogey tournament, the first of a series of weekly events leading up to the major tourneys during the summer.

Berrien Moore Sr. and Milton Hall divided first honor with scores of 80, while Charles Wynne and Jack Fisher shared second place with 81. P. D. Yates and H. A. Hoffman split third place with scores of 82.

Charlie Yates Jr., Georgia and Atlanta amateur champion, won low gross honor for the afternoon at East Lake with a 75. He was playing with L. R. Hunter, Lee Fowler and Scott Hudson Jr.

Dave Black, former Georgia amateur champion, set the pace Saturday afternoon on the Capital City course when he scored a 72, which equalled par. Dave was closely followed by Charlie Black Jr., John Grant Jr., Clarence Knowles and Hugh Carter.

In a "grudge" foursome, J. C. Malone and Dr. W. C. Warren Jr. defeated Hugh and Charlie Nunnally, 1 up, at Capital City.

Mangin started anew at the same blistering pace. He won the first three games with the loss of but five points. He was still hitting with cyclonic force at the finish, ending with an overhand smash that bounded so high even the lanky Shields made no attempt to reach it.

Shields fought grimly to the finish, but you could tell from the expression on his face soon after the start of the third set, that he knew he was opposed to a player whose weapons, beautifully attuned, were too powerful for him to withstand.

Seminary To Stage Field Day Exercises

With the entire student body scheduled to take part, Washington Seminary will stage its annual field day exercises Tuesday afternoon on the school campus.

Indian club drills, pyramid building and tumbling will feature the exercises, which are to start at 12:30 o'clock.

Crackers Face Busy Week Here

The Atlanta Crackers have a busy week ahead of them.

They will play the Toronto club on Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Ponce de Leon park.

For this reason, Red Barron has retained all his pitchers. There was not a single hurler sent to Columbus in the first cut yesterday.

"We're going to need all the young pitchers for batting practice and to pitch the games," Barron explained.

JACKETS LOSE TO YANNIGANS

Cracker Nine Bombards Tech To Take 21-4 Victory.

By Jack Troy.

In a weird game of baseball that ended disconsolately in the eighth inning, with shadows cast by the grand stand and bleachers lengthening over the field, Jack Sheehan's Cracker Yannigans made it two straight over Georgia Tech Saturday afternoon. The score was 21 to 4.

Each team used three pitchers. The Cracker trio labored with considerably more success than that of the Jackets. It should be added that the Yannigan moundsmen were accorded better support, too.

There was nothing about the performance of either team to draw exclamations from anyone concerned, unless it was the fielding and hitting of a few individual members of both clubs.

The contest was dotted with good and bad baseball.

Bobby Dodd's Jackets started auspiciously enough, grabbing a four-run lead in the first inning after holding the Yannigans scoreless in their half of the stanza. The Jackets stepped out and got four straight hits off Carter, but thereafter they failed to put as many as two hits together in any one inning.

The Yannigans started a bombardment of base hits in the second that continued ceaselessly until the very end. They took the lead away from the Jackets with a six-run scoring spree and the game henceforth was just a matter of how many hits or runs they might score.

Freddie Sington, the ex-Alabama star, had a perfect day at bat, with four hits and five runs out of four times up. He walked once. Two doubles and a triple were included in his blows.

Maxey, second baseman, who played a spectacular game afield, secured four hits out of six trips, one a triple.

Waldrep, promising Jacket first baseman, had a perfect day with four for four.

Beasley and Hammond, of the Yannigans, came through with two hits apiece.

Afield, Spratlin made a couple of sensational running catches in center for Tech, while Herrin was good at third for the Yannigans.

A crowd composed mostly of Tech rooters attended.

Oxford Beaten By Rival Crew

PUTNEY-ON-THAMES, England, March 19.—(AP)—The eight-oared crew of Cambridge University, rowing strongly and smoothly, today swept to victory over Oxford on the Thames by five full lengths to make it nine straight victories and 43 for the Light Blues in the century-old series.

The eighty-fourth renewal of the ancient rivalry, begun in 1829, found Cambridge a vastly better crew and provided little real opposition for the estimated three-quarters of a million persons who thronged the banks of the river for four miles on either side.

Away easily and trailing Oxford for the first mile, Cambridge went out there to break the heart of an outclassed but gallant boatload of Axonians and row the shortened four-mile course from Putney bridge to Mortlake brewery in 19 minutes 11 seconds. At Hammersmith bridge, a mile and a half from the start, they were three-quarters of a length in front, at two miles the margin was two and a half lengths, at Duke's Meadows four and at Barnes bridge, a quarter mile from home, it was almost five.

Outweighed eight pounds to the man, Oxford's men were rowed out at the finish and all but two collapsed over their oars as the air resounded with cheers for the victors and a swarm of small boats surrounded the Cambridge shell.

CRACKERS BEAT TORONTO, 6 TO 5

bit spotty. It was the first effort, however, and Barron looks for improvement next week.

Young Ralph Butler, who caught Garland's smoke ball for five innings, looked like a real Class B receiver. Si Rosenthal played first for five innings and, while he had no difficult chances, did not look at all awkward at the bag.

The Crackers play Toronto Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. Thursday and Friday will be "Ladies' Day."

President L. W. Robert and Vice President Bobby Jones sat in the Cracker dugout for a portion of the game.

HARTFORD CLUB BEATS PETRELS

Eastern League Team Takes Free Hitting Game, 13 to 11.

MACON, Ga., March 19.—Taking advantage of ten bases on balls and four Petrel errors, Hartford's Senators took a wild 13-11 decision from the Oglethorpe collegians here this afternoon to open the season for both clubs and for local fans.

The Petrels garnered 14 singles and two doubles off the shoots of Vickers, Stamey and Engel, Manager Charlie Moore's mound choices, and worked them quite efficiently with two passes and a trio of Hartford errors for their run total. The Eastern leaguers nicked Mitchell, Dixon and Clark for only ten hits, but the Petrel help was enough to put them out in front early and for keeps.

One of the Hartford drives was a home run over the left-field fence by Charley Sheerin, center field rookie.

The wallop came with one man aboard in the fourth frame and put the Senators ahead, 10-0. At that point the Senators had bunched two hits with three passes for a quartet of counters in the second frame and added a like number of runs in the third on two walks, an error, a single and a pair of doubles.

Vickers set the Petrels down easy for his three frames, but Stamey, following, had less success, yielding a run in the fifth to a walk, a single and a long fly, and two in the sixth to an error, three singles and a double.

The Petrels climbed on Engel, third of Moore's musketeers, for a run in the seventh, four in the eighth and three in the ninth, seven singles, a double and a triple fitting with a walk and three errors for the lot, and, but for an epidemic of ball-tossing which hit Dixon, the Petrels might have won. He issued five passes in the eighth inning, and three of them forced Senators across the plate with what proved to be what it took to win.

Both clubs showed well despite the earliness of the season.

Southern L. T. A. Announces Rankings of Netmen for 1931.

NEW ORLEANS, March 19.—(AP) Donald Cram, of Nashville, Tenn., and Anna Koll, of New Orleans, stood at the head of the lists of men's and women's singles in the 1931 rankings of the Southern Lawn Tennis Association.

The rankings, announced today by J. Mills Newton, chairman of the ranking committee, said the selections had the approval of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Some of the south's best players, he said, were not included in the lists because they did not play in southern championships.

Robert Bryan, of Chattanooga, Tenn., stood second to Cram. Mr. Mills said, mainly because of his excellent showing in the national championships where he defeated Hughes, the English Davis cup player.

Kendall Cram, of Nashville, headed the junior singles; Ramsey Potts, of Memphis, the boys' singles; Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., and Judge Beaver, of Gainesville, Ga., the men's doubles; Anna Koll, of New Orleans, and Eliza Coxe, of Asheville, N. C., the ladies' doubles.

The rankings follow:

G.M.A. Drops Claims To Football Titles

Captain Woodward Learns of Player's Ineligibility and Files Forfeit.

Georgia Military Academy, winner of the city title and co-holder of the Georgia Interscholastic Athletic Association football championship, has filed a letter with J. A. Duncan, president of the G. I. A. A., forfeiting both crowns, it was learned Saturday.

A question of the eligibility of one of the Cadet linemen last fall was raised at a recent meeting of the Big Six league and on learning of the matter, G. M. A. investigated and found that the player was over age.

Captain Douglas Woodward, director of athletics at G. M. A., immediately notified Duncan along with S. K. Tanner, secretary, and other members of the executive committee.

In his letter Captain Woodward stated that although the boy was used without the knowledge of his ineligibility, G. M. A. was nevertheless forfeiting all rights to a co-claim with Lanier High for the G. I. A. A. football championship. A forfeit of the G. I. A. A. claim also would automatically give Tech High the city championship, since G. M. A. was awarded a forfeit over the Smithies.

UP TO COMMITTEE.

The letter will be placed in the hands of the executive committee at the regular fall meeting of the G. I. A. A. for disposition of the entire matter.

It will be entirely up to the committee to order the forfeits to Lanier, Tech High and any other teams that they deem necessary because of the playing of the ineligible player, who has since left G. M. A.

It was a magnanimous gesture on the part of officials at G. M. A. and one that is for the betterment of prep athletics in the state.

BARRON TALKS.

In a talk before the student body at G. M. A. Friday morning, Red Barron, Cracker manager, learned of the letter and complimented highly the spirit of G. M. A. He spoke at length and was given a long round of applause by the hundreds of Cadets at chapel meeting. "It is not that you win or lose, but the spirit of play that makes prep athletics in Georgia rank with the best in the country," the Cracker manager said in conclusion.

Tech Tennis Schedule Named

Georgia Tech's 1932 tennis schedule, announced Saturday, includes six meets with southern college teams to be held in Atlanta.

The Jacket netters, coached by Dr. J. B. Crenshaw, meet Florida, Alabama, Furman, Maryville, Sewanee and Vanderbilt here. Fort Benning, Georgia, Chattanooga and Tennessee racketeers—the court kind—are to be met on their respective courts.

Connif, No. 1 man last year; West, Jackson, Morgan, Maynard, Pindar, Robertson and Rivers are the better players on the squad. Election of a captain is to be held later.

The complete schedule:

April 2—Fort Benning in Columbus.
April 9—Florida here.
April 14—Alabama here.
April 16—Georgia in Athens.
April 23—Furman here.
April 27—Maryville here.
April 29—Chattanooga there.
April 30—Tennessee in Knoxville.
May 3—Sewanee here.
May 13—Vanderbilt here.

TOUGHEST OF RACES.

The British grand national steeplechase with its 31 hazardous jumps, is probably the toughest race to win in the world. In 1928 there was no third-place nag—only two out of 42 starters finishing.

ATHLETIC CLUB MAKING STRONG BID FOR MEET

Scott Hudson To Lead Delegation to Issue Personal Bid.

By Roy White.

Atlanta Athletic Club's efforts to sponsor the 1933 southern amateur golf championship will be redoubled and a delegation will be present at the Birmingham tournament in June to personally invite the event here for next year, it was learned Saturday. It is believed they are assured of success.

Scott Hudson Sr., president of the Atlanta Athletic Club, has filed application with Lowry Arnold, president of the Southern Amateur Golf Association, and members of the executive committee, asking that the 1933 event be awarded this city. That letter will be followed by others, in addition to the personal appeal, it was learned Saturday.

Atlanta Athletic Club is the only golf club in the south except Birmingham Country Club that operates two courses and with the new plan of 36 holes for qualifying in force, East Lake would be the ideal place to hold the 1933 event.

Atlanta is the most centrally located of all golfing towns in the south and players from the local clubs have dominated southern golf for the past several years and it was for that reason that the city will make every effort possible to bring the 1933 event here.

Watts Gunn was the last Atlantan to win the Southern and that was several years ago when it was held in Dallas, Texas.

It has been more than a dozen years since the biggest golfing event in the south was held in Atlanta and with so many of the youngsters rapidly coming to the front and with ideal conditions prevailing here, East Lake is expected to be awarded the event.

John Shibe, Athletic President, Picks Club To Win; Sees Close Race

YANKEES, NATS AND CLEVELAND RANKED AT TOP

Philadelphia Magnate Calls Foxx Hardest Hitter in Game.

By Walter Trumbull.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 10.—John Shibe, of Philadelphia, is here and believes that the Athletics will have another sunny season, but he also thinks there will be a good race in the American league and admits that it can not be too close to suit him.

"There is more excitement for the fans in a close race," says the Philadelphia magnate, "and certainly there is more money in it for the club owners."

Mr. Shibe picks the Athletics, Washington, the Yankees and Cleveland as the clubs which should fight it out, and says that Chicago should be stronger. He probably got that idea from Connie Mack, who each season picks Chicago as the dark horse.

When you ask either of these men the reason for such a prediction, he always tells you that the White Sox have good pitchers. This doubtless is true, but even good pitchers need some hitting behind them to win.

RESPECTS FOXX.

Mr. Shibe has a great respect for the batting ability of Foxx. "There is a great hitter," he says. "A pitcher may fool him with a ball in a certain place sometime, but then he will pitch another in the same spot and Foxx will knock it out of the lot. All great hitters are like that. I believe Foxx can hit a ball as far as anybody living.

"A ball he hit in the World's Series cleared the roof of our left field stand without coming within feet of touching it, and I saw him hit a ball in the first game over here in Miami which went over that fence in center field. You know a ball hit there is a home run, even when it doesn't go out of the park. I never would have believed that any many could hit a ball so far.

"Nobody can drive a ball further than Foxx," continued Mr. Shibe, "and that goes for Ruth. Did I ever tell you about the first time I saw Ruth? No?

"Well, the Athletics were on the way north and stopped off in Wilmington to play Jack Dunn's Baltimore team. Ruth was pitching for Baltimore and they drafted me to umpire the game.

BABE GETS MAD.

"I stood behind the pitcher and, when Frank Baker came up, Ruth asked me how to pitch to him. I told him he had better pitch outside. He did, and Baker hit the ball over the fence. Ruth thought that I had crossed him and was mad as a hornet. He was still grumbling when he went in to the bench and stopped to complain to Jack Dunn. Dunn had a high, carrying voice and I could hear him say, 'He told you right.'

"But Ruth wasn't satisfied. The next time Baker came to bat the Babe gave him a ball inside, and Frank poled it over the other fence. Ruth turned to me and said, 'I wish I could hit like that guy.'

"The Babe has done pretty well, at that," said Mr. Shibe. "And a lot of persons don't realize that he would have been a great ball player if he never had hit over .300. You can put Ruth down among the great fielders, base runners, throwers and smart ball players of the game.

SOFT-HEARTED MACK.

"Philadelphia would have had Ruth if Connie had not been soft-hearted. Under our arrangements with Baltimore we were entitled to him, but Jack Dunn had been in hard luck and Connie Mack told him to go out and sell Ruth for all he could get, and we took a pitcher, Shires, instead.

"No, I don't know much yet concerning our new men. Two or three of them appear to be all ready for the big show, but you can't tell what youngsters will do in the summer by the manner in which they perform in the spring. But the veterans are all right. Cochrane's nerves are in shape again, Haas' wrist has recovered, and Simmons' legs are in condition. He will be in there hitting. It should be a tight race, but our team will be ready for it."

John Shibe was himself an athlete. He played baseball, football, and ran on the track team at Haverford College and it wasn't so many years ago that he used to put on a suit and take part in the play games of the Athletics. He still plays tennis and golf, but his most recent sport is motorboat racing. A boat he owns finished second in the Gold Cup races last year.

City League Teams To Meet This Week

Baseball teams desiring to play ball this summer in the City league are requested to meet at Trammell Scott's store Monday night at 7:30. Five teams have lined up for this league, which is recognized as the strongest amateur league in Atlanta, and one more team is needed to make it a six-club league. Most of the teams play employes only, but a broad policy of eligibility is usually observed.

Four teams have signed up to play in the Trammell Scott league so far, and two more are desired before the schedule is drawn up. This league will meet at Trammell Scott's store on Wednesday night at 7:30.

Any amateur team in or around Atlanta desiring to play league ball should have someone present at this meeting. The cost of supporting a team is considerably reduced this year and players are plentiful.

Inter-City League To Meet Tuesday

A schedule for the Inter-City amateur baseball league, sponsored by A. G. Spalding's will be adopted at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night at a meeting of the representatives, at 74 North Broad street.

It is planned to open the schedule April 16 and play two rounds during the spring and summer months.

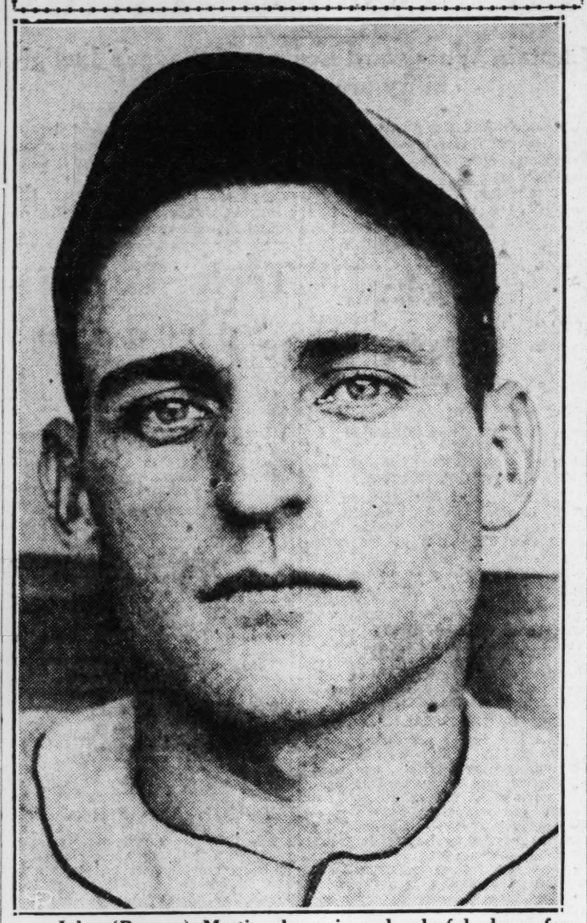

Those teams already included in the league are Federal Prison, Fisher Bodies, Fulton Bag and the City Hall. One other team is desired to make it a six-club organization.

Following the complete organization of the league, it will be turned over to its own officers for the remainder

SHORTEST FLIGHT.

Al Foreman's knockout of Ruby Levine in England in 11 1-2 seconds, including the count, is the world's record for the shortest bout. Next is Battling Nelson's 12-second finish of Willie Rossler in 1902.

Plays Here Soon

John (Pepper) Martin, dynamic and colorful player for the St. Louis Cardinals, whose daring play featured the 1931 World Series, is coming here with the world champions for an exhibition series with the Crackers April 1 and 2. Pepper stopped in Atlanta recently en route to the training camp at Bradenton, Fla.

PEPPER THRILLS BASEBALL FANS

Popular and Dynamic Cardinal Star Plays Here April 1-2.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 19.—It isn't difficult to say who is the most popular player in baseball today. It isn't Babe Ruth or Al Simmons or Bill Terry. The fans have a new hero—John Leonard Martin, known the world over as "Pepper." Pepper won his fame through his sensational play for the Cardinals in the 1931 World Series, which Manager John J. McGraw, of the New York Giants, characterized as the greatest individual performance in the history of the World Series. He will appear in Atlanta, April 1 and 2, against the Crackers.

Before the World Series few persons paid any attention to Martin. He had had several trials with the Cardinals but neither the players nor the fans had ever taken him seriously. Last year he won Douthit's job as center fielder for the Redbirds, but still the fans paid more attention to the older players—Frisch, Wilson, Bottomley and all the rest.

Martin's season performance was not extraordinary. He batted just .300, and stole 17 bases. But when the World Series started it was a different story. In the first game Martin led the attack on Lefty Grove with three hits, one of them a double, and stole a base. The following day he made a single and a double off Earnshaw, stole a base and scored the only two runs of the game, the Cards winning, 2 to 0.

In the third contest Martin led the attack with a single and a double and scored two of the Cardinals' five runs. In the fourth game he continued his slugging with a double and a single, and stole a base. Then, in his fifth contest he made a home run and two singles and drove in four runs. He wound up the series with a batting average of .500.

Overnight Martin was acclaimed throughout the country. His dash, his spontaneity, his flashy, confident play made him a hero. Fans showered him with gifts and congratulations. Newspapermen wrote column after column about the boy from Oklahoma who hit the pitching of Lefty Grove and Earnshaw to all corners of the lot. He was featured on the radios and feted at every turn.

With all this acclaim, Martin remained the same plain fellow he was when he was just a busher with the Greenville club in the East Texas league. No sham, no pretense, no swell-headedness for Pepper. He stood the test of prosperity and despite all the hero-worship is still a "regular fellow." Many another player would have lost his head.

Atlanta Horse Show Plans Move Ahead

Herbert Oliver, president of the Atlanta Horse Show Association, said today plans for this year's exhibition May 20-21 already are under way. The show, held annually for several years, has grown steadily in interest and quality of mounts.

Oliver succeeded Hunt Chipley as president. Other officers are Robert W. Woodruff, vice president; Walter Candler, secretary; Captain Theodore Goulsby, treasurer; Colonel Fitzhugh Lee, executive manager, and Major General E. L. King, chairman of the executive committee.

WOMEN GOLFERS PLAN MEETING

Election of Officers To Feature Session at Athletic Club.

Election of officers for the ensuing year and a discussion of plans for the various spring and summer tournaments, will feature the annual meeting of the Atlanta Woman's Golf Association at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Several other matters of importance to every woman golfer in the city, and particularly those who desire to become members of the Atlanta association, will be discussed Wednesday.

Mrs. O. B. Keeler is president of the association and will be in charge of the meeting until a new president is selected. Other officers are Mrs. M. S. Mentzer, vice president; Mrs. W. D. Doak, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. J. C. Wright, chairman of the tournament committee.

In a notice to all members of the association, Mrs. Keeler asked assistance be given in the adjusting of handicaps for the coming year. Each member is requested to save at least five cards on her home course, to be handed in to the committee before April 15. These cards, together with the records of last season, will enable the committee to reach a satisfactory adjustment of handicaps.

Representatives from the various clubs also will be appointed at Wednesday's meeting. Those for last year were: Mrs. Roy Burns, East Lake; Miss Mary Warren, Capital City; Mrs. Clarence Bradley, Druid Hills; Mrs. C. C. Clower, Ansley Park; Mrs. Robert Schwab, Ingleside; Mrs. Albert Jones, West End, and Mrs. S. J. Gillard, municipal courses.

Myers Manages Greensboro Club

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 19. (AP)—Fred Myers, infielder with the Rochester club last year, has been named manager of the Greensboro Patriots, Piedmont league farm of the St. Louis Cardinals.

BRUIN MANAGER SEEKING SPEED TO BOOST CLUB

Bill Killefer, St. Louis Pilot, Believes in Team Spirit.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—Without making any notable shifts in the cast of St. Louis Browns that finished fifth last year, Manager Bill Killefer looks for more speed, aggressiveness and consistent punch to make his club a factor in this season's American league race.

Killefer isn't a college coach, but he believes the old fighting spirit has much to do with any ball club's success. He satisfied himself last year, on at least one notable occasion when his charges outfought the Athletics, that he can produce winning results with the proper "fighting talk." The Browns may not have to "die for dear old St. Louis" but they will be obliged to scrap the opposition from the outset this year, if they want to keep their jobs.

The Browns discarded the "bonus" system, blamed for some loss of morale last season, but they have had a number of star holdouts to worry about. At one time the entire regular outfield for 1932 was at loggerheads with the management over salaries, but the capitulation of Fred Schulte and Goose Goslin eliminated two-thirds of this trouble. Now all Killifer needs to complete the outer patrol is Ralph Kress, the versatile performer who has sung his last number with the infield quartet and is slated to occupy right field regularly.

KRESS TO IMPROVE.

"Kress will play better ball if not shifted around so much," said Killefer. "He will assure us plenty of outfield punch."

The club has at least five .300 clouters, with Rick Ferrell, catcher, and Oscar Melillo, a second baseman, able to wield the stick in support of the outfield trio. Ferrell also has been a stubborn holdout.

To take advantage of these hitting prospects, Killerfer has drilled his men in base-running to a greater extent than any other manager in Florida. The Browns' sliding pit is almost a novelty in the grapefruit belt, where the world champion Cardinals are the only other club making the most of old-fashioned stealing tactics.

The Browns' pitching staff won't look natural until Walter (Lefty) Stewart, one of the league's best southpaws, gets into shape after his annual holdout session. Stewart has had better years than 1931, but he still represents about 35 per cent of the club's pitching strength.

MOUND SUPPORT.

To support him Killefer counts on much improved work by Sam Gray, the veteran right-hander, and Dick Coffman, who apparently hit his real stride late last year when he scored a rare shutout triumph over Robert Moses Grove. George Blaeholder and Wally Hebert, 22-year-old southpaw, will get the other starting jobs. Chad Kimsey, Americo Polli and Bob Cooney all will be kept, unless Rip Collins signs in time to make himself more useful than one of these men.

The infield will stand or fall on the showing of the erstwhile Wichita Falls stars, Buns, Levey and Storti, who have had a year's testing and figure to show improvement. Burns, at first, is the most promising. Levy has promised to avoid the "bright lights." Storti has a rival at third in Jimmy McLaughlin, former Sacramento star.

Behind the bat, the veteran Benny Bengough is supplying his customary pepper, pending the arrival of Ferrell, and will get a share of regular work.

Freshmen Begin Work at Auburn

AUBURN, Ala., March 19.—Freshman baseball practice at Alabama Polytechnic Institute was inaugurated during the past week with 125 candidates reporting to Coach Earl McFaden for the initial practice. This is one of the largest squads ever to report for the opening workout.

While it takes at least two afternoons for every member of Auburn's brigade of plebe baseballers to engage in batting practice, McFaden does not intend to reduce his squad until every hopeful has been given a thorough trial at both the plate and in the field, and then it is doubtful if many will suffer from the cut. McFaden plans to carry as large a squad as possible during the season.

It is too early to determine the caliber of the players out for the team, but McFaden is satisfied with the group and believes that the yearlings will have a creditable nine. The Cubs' chieftain has already looked at several of the hopefuls with a favorable eye.

AUBURN TIGERS HOPE TO START GAMES MONDAY

Inclement Weather Hampers Baseball Drills During Past Week.

AUBURN, Ala., March 19.—Prevented from practicing outdoors but twice during the past week on account of cold weather and snow, the 50 odd candidates for Auburn's 1932 baseball team are anxious to resume practice on the diamond, which Coach Sam McAllister hopes will be Monday.

As soon as the weather permits, Coach McAllister will stage daily practice games in an effort to determine the caliber of the large number of newcomers out for the team. After watching the candidates in several practice contests and in batting and fielding practice, McAllister probably will reduce his squad to around 25.

Although the opening Dixie league series will not be played here with Georgia until April 8 and 9, the Tigers, 1931 Dixie league and Southern conference champions, will play several exhibition tilts, and McAllister will work his charges at a fast clip for these games when a break occurs in the weather. Fort Benning, Bowdon State College, Lindale and Minneapolis are the likely opponents for the Plainsmen before Georgia is encountered on Drake field.

While it is too early to forecast a prediction on where this year's team will finish in the Dixie league and conference race, on paper, it looks like the defending champs will be weak on the mound and in the outfield.

ONLY REGULAR.

Captain Clifford Smith, senior, All-American pitcher, is the only regular back for a place on the hurling staff. He is expected to annex his share of victories, but will need assistance if McAllister produces another outstanding club. Smith won nine and lost only one game as a junior, and is slated to enter professional baseball when he graduates in May.

Ripper Williams, ace of the 1931 freshman staff, is the most promising of the sophomore candidates. Other hurling possibilities are Soprano Talley, Slow Death Payne, Lefty West, Herbert Benson and Robert Brackin.

Before the 1932 campaign starts, the Tigers' taciturn mentor must replace an entire outfield, losing the following fly chasers from his last year's team: Joe Burt, leading hitter in the Dixie league who belongs to the Birmingham Barons; Frock Pate, Phil Hodges and Pete Harris, all capable players.

FIGHT FOR BERTHS.

Competing for the vacant outfield berths are Porter Grant, Juicy Wood, Bill O'Barr, Sterling Dupree, Ralph Jordan, Sam Mason and George Jenkins. O'Barr, Wood and Grant have the best throwing arms, but the regular fly chasers will be chosen from the leading hitters. This is a free-for-all race at present.

McAllister, who tutored one of the heaviest hitting college teams in the country his initial year at the cornerstone in 1931, stresses power at the plate. If his team has to be weak, he would rather for it to be defensively.

This year's infield will list four veterans, Harry Lloyd at first, Duck Riley at second, Jimmie Hitchcock at short and Ike Lewis at third. Charles Kaley will be the first-string receiver, understudied by the reliable Aubrey Lewis. Lloyd, Riley and Kaley made the all-Dixie league team last season, standing out with the best college players in America. Each, along with the Lewis brothers, are seniors and are being counted upon for some brilliant work their final year wearing the Orange and Blue.

Babe Hoiman's Homers Came at Wrong Moment

PRIMA DONNA'S SWATS EARNED ONLY JEERS

By Jack Cuddy,
United Press Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(UP)—Babe Herman, funniest of last year's "Funny Boys of Flatbush," was punished for his antics when the Brooklyn Dodgers traded him off to Cincinnati.

Babe, the Dodgers' slugging outfielder, was not only one of the world's great hitters, but he also was becoming an aggrevated pain in the neck for officials of the Brooklyn club. While Brooklyn fans had regarded the Babe for five years as a sort of idol and a worthwhile clown, last year they began to turn against him.

It seems the Babe had an unhappy knack of hitting home runs when no one was on base, and then blowing up in the emergencies. In one game, for example, the fans actually jeered Mr. Herman as he circled the bases for a home run, because he had failed to deliver in an earlier inning when the bases were loaded.

Moreover, baseball men close to the Brooklyn club knew that, despite the pamperings and pettings bestowed by former Manager Wilbert Robinson, the club officials were tiring of the annual hurly-burly in the spring, when officials were forced to journey hither and yon to obtain the Babe's signature.

This prima donna complex found no favor with Manager Max Carey, who let it be known early in the season that he would demand discipline, above all else, in his team. Carey, and other officials, felt that Herman's annual salary wrangle and late arrival for training were not conducive to the Dodgers' morale.

Herman was justly proud of his .336 batting average with Brooklyn, but Flatbush officials felt he was too proud of it, particularly when he usually failed to deliver against Brooklyn's mortal enemies, the New York Giants. The Giants usually saved their left-handed pitchers, Hubbell, Walker, Mitchell or Mooney for the Brooklyn games, with unfortunate results for Floyd C. Herman.

But, with the acquisition of Hack Wilson, Stripp, Cuccinello, and Wright on the job, Brooklyn officials felt that Herman's services no longer were desperately needed, because these four were dependable right-handed batters, men who could take care of the Giants' left-handers.

Victories at Ebbets field over the Giants, the officials believe, will prove far more popular with Flatbush fans than any antics which Herman might perform.

In the trade, wherein Herman, Wally Gilbert and Ernie Lombardi went to Cincinnati for Koe Stripp, Tony Cuccinello and Clyde Sukeforth, Brooklyn officials feel they have traded one .300 hitter, Herman, for two .300 hitters, Stripp and Cuccinello, and they are well satisfied.

THE SPORTLIGHT

Tales of a Wayside Tee.

(An Open Champion's Viewpoint.)

(Copyright, 1932, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

With spring stepping along over the highway, only a mashie shot away, the time is again at hand when some three million or more golfers will be wondering how they are going to cut off anywhere from 5 to 15 strokes before another late autumn brings its winds from the barren lands.

With this idea in mind we put a few queries up to Bill Burke, open golf champion of the United States. Bill is one of golf's rare exceptions. He spent most of his time as a club instructor, at Round Hill, before leading the big parade at Inverness. A club instructor rarely has time to get ready for any big test, being at a big disadvantage against the traveling tournament player who keeps his steel well sharpened all along the route.

One of the features of Burke's play has been consistency from tee to cup. His tee shots are straight, his iron play is high-class, he is a good chip-shot player, and a dependable putter. And he keeps his eyes open for the smaller details that can help. For example, playing with Burke one afternoon, your correspondent jabbed a chip shot at the first green with no very pleasing results.

"I'll give you a tip that may help," Burke said. "At the start of any match almost every golfer is inclined to tighten up through the first few holes. It is at this time that I always make sure of taking my club back a trifle farther and a trifle more loosely on chip shots or short pitches. This prevents the hurried, jabbing stroke that may result before one has got a chance to warm up and find one's timing.

"Just take it a little easier at the start. And that will also help on every stroke. On the first few holes don't try to hit the ball too far. Just make a point of swinging more easily at the start."

Golfing Faults.

Asked what was the hardest thing for a golfer to learn in order to become a good player and scorer, Burke said:

"The normal development of a golfer is from a whiffer to a slicer to a hooker, and, in rare cases, a straight hitter. From the start he won't whiff every ball he tries to hit, and as he moves up the ladder he won't either slice every one or hook every one. But when he errs the error will be of these three varieties, usually in this order."

Burke at once took up the matter of a persistent low hook.

"Oftentimes it isn't a real roundhouse hook, but a low, scudding ball that gets off the line and spoils the player's game," he said. "In many cases these men, being good athletes, have kept up their exercise through the winter by playing squash or handball, and when they come out on the course in the spring they can't stop using their right hand and right side too much. That's the cause of the hooking. Having swung a racket all winter or played one-handed games, they can't break down the domination of the right hand.

"In such cases I always advocate using the two-finger overlap grip for a while, which will do much to kill the control of the right hand."

Through the last year Burke's reputation has taken a tremendous spurt, due only partly to his winning the national championship. Yet he is an equally fine teacher, with a keen sense of bringing out the normal playing style of his pupils rather than inducing them to copy his own.

In the matter of the grip Burke rarely advocates the use of the grip he plays.

"In my own case," he says, "my grip developed from the necessity of my playing almost two years without the aid of my left hand in gripping the club. Now I can grip it firmly with the left, but probably use more right hand than any other of the pros."

The Toughest Job.

But while Billy seems to be guilty of the fault he is speaking of correcting, he has a much firmer body movement and continually guards against overpivoting. It is the combination of too much right hand and an attempt to pivot in copying the experts that results in the ruinous hook.

"You will notice," says Billy, "that most chronic hookers finish with their club far over their left shoulder, and the hands knocking close against the chest. To overcome this I ask my pupils to swing as far away from the body, on the follow through, as possible. Sometimes I have them aim at an objective far to the right of the real goal.

"The hardest thing for an instructor in golf to get across is making the pupil hit with the left side. Yet good golf shots are made only by hitting against this left side—bracing against it."

A sound pivot brings the full body mechanism into the shot and secures distance, but an uncontrolled pivot ruins accuracy, says Burke. A player is well on the road to proficiency when he begins to understand the pivot, and hits from the inside out with a smoother arc. Then he's graduating into the occasional hooker class. It's a real step up.

So don't be too discouraged when the old slice backtracks into a hook. Bring the left heel down firmly instead of twisting on the left toe, and ease the right-hand grip.

MRS. HILL WINS AT AUGUSTA, 2-1

Maureen Orcutt Beaten in Finals of Second Annual Tournament.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Opal S. Hill, a golfing mother from Kansas City who never swung a club until she was past 35, today defeated Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., 2 and 1, for the second annual Augusta women's invitation tournament here.

Off the fairways but once during a week of play here, Mrs. Hill came back on the last nine today to beat the Englewood star after being 1 down at the turn.

The victory was especially sweet to Mrs. Hill for Miss Orcutt beat her in a close match last spring for the north and south event at Pinehurst, N. C., and since Miss Orcutt generally was recognized as the big winner in the south's winter tournaments after her victories at Palm Beach and St. Augustine.

Behind at the halfway mark, Mrs. Hill squared the match on the eleventh hole and quickly took the lead on the thirteenth with a 5 as Miss Orcutt found trouble. After halting the fourteenth Mrs. Hill increased her advantage by winning the fifteenth with another 5.

Miss Orcutt gained a hole at the sixteenth as Mrs. Hill missed her drive, but the midwesterner ended the match on the seventeenth with a 4 as Miss Orcutt was over the green and needed a 5.

It was only a few years ago that Mrs. Hill, the mother of a young boy, took up golf at her physicians orders. Her health and her game improved simultaneously and three seasons later she was good enough to qualify and win three matches in the national women's championship at St. Louis. Since then she has won many titles, including the trans-Mississippi and the western.

Miss Orcutt was runner-up in the Augusta event last year and both probably will play later in the Pinehurst tournament where Miss Orcutt will defend her honors.

CUBS LIKE.

Rogers Hornsby, according to reports, would like to add Chick Hafey, St. Louis left fielder, to his Chicago Cubs. Hornsby saw Hafey's bat help him win a world's championship—and that's enough.

PHAR LAP LIKED FOR HANDICAP

Australian Thoroughbred Is Favorite in Agua Caliente Today.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 19.—(AP)—Phar Lap, giant Australian thoroughbred, has reached top form for the $50,000 Agua Caliente handicap Sunday and will go into the race the favorite, although he has never raced on a track east of the Pacific.

Billy Elliott, the jockey, brought from the Antipodes to ride Phar Lap, was asked whether he thought his mount would win. Elliott said, "I know he will."

Racing followers crowded around the betting office to take Phar Lap at odds that varied in the future books from 2 to 1 to 8 to 5. The betting was heavy.

Everyone not connected with one of the stables appeared ready to concede the Australian champion, which won as many as 13 consecutive victories in his home land, first place on the strength of his fine condition. Attention turned, as a result, to the hazardous problem of selecting second and third place winner.

Despite the remarkable swing of backing to Phar Lap, owners of the other ten probable starters showed no inclination to do any conceding.

Spanish Play, Cabezo and Reveille Boy found vociferous backers in their own camps.

Dr. Freeland, Bennie Creech's star performer, slipped far from the favorite's position he once held over Phar Lap. His odds were quoted at 8 to 1 today.

Joe Flowers, owned by S. H. Lee, and hailed as the best of western three-year olds earlier this year, regained some of his following today with a beautiful workout.

N. G. I. C. To Meet Monday Afternoon

A regular spring meeting of the North Georgia Interscholastic conference will be held at 5:30 o'clock Monday afternoon in the office of Joe Bean at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Adoption of a baseball and the selection of umpires along with the discussion of plans for other spring sports will feature the meeting.

Danny Lynch's Girls In National Tourney

Danny Lynch, Atlanta Cracker second baseman, has more than a passing interest in the National A. A. U. girls' basketball tournament at Shreveport, La.

In the wintertime Danny is coach of the Golden Cyclones, crack girls' team of the Employes Casualty Company, of Dallas. Last year his team won the national championship, beating Wichita.

It is with this team that Babe Didrickson, famous Dallas girl athletic star, plays.

"She is a better athlete than many men and can throw a baseball 300 feet," Lynch declared.

Lynch had to give up coaching the team in order to report to the Crackers. And the Golden Cyclones entered the Shreveport tournament without their coach.

YANKEES SERVE NOTICE ON A'S WITH RUTHBACK

Club Looks Great in Spring Training; Bank on Pitching.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—From Mulberry Bend to the Bronx, let the clarion call be sounded: "The Yanks are coming, bigger, better and stronger."

Babe Ruth is back on the job as well as on the dotted line, beginning to ram base hits through the infield with his shorter swing from a less exaggerated stance at the plate. Big Ben Chapman is making two bases on infield outs and otherwise sounding the alarm again for American league catchers.

The new keystone combination of Frank Crosetti and Otto (Jack) Saltzgaver, within the past week, has come along like a house afire. Manager Joe McCarthy seems to have corralled another speedy young outfielder in George Selkirk, Rochester lad who played with Jersey City last season and may contest centerfield with the veteran Kentuckian, Earle Combs.

JOHNSON RECOVERING.

Now, if only one of the three best pitching prospects makes good and Henry Johnson recovers rapidly from the removal of his appendix, the Yankees will consider themselves on at least an even footing with the champion Philadelphia Athletics.

The success of the New York club's attempt this year to oust the three-time American league pennant holders depends on those pitching "ifs." The best trio that McCarthy can muster on the mound, namely, Lefty Gomez, Red Ruffing and George Pipgras, does not class with Connie Mack's great triumvirate of Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg.

The Yankee strategists believe their greater speed and punch will offset the apparent margin of difference between the two clubs in pitching strength.

There is the matter of 13 1-2 games by which the A's led the Yankees at the close of 1931, but they tell you here this is misleading; that, in fact, the Yanks were a stronger club than the champions at end of last season. New York also must contend with the strong Washington club and do something about Cleveland, which was poison to Ruth and company last year.

LIKE CROSETTI.

The more the experts watch 21-year-old Crosetti perform around shortstop and at the plate the more they are convinced the Yankees have picked up the greatest young infielder in a blue moon. Class is stamped all over this San Francisco boy. Those who have watched both say that Crosetti's only rival this spring as a rookie sensation is Stanley Hack, the new Chicago Cub third sacker.

Saltzgaver, too, has improved. So qualified an observer as Buck Herzog, looking on from the sidelines, says Saltzgaver will do. It seems certain now he will get the call over Lazzeri at second.

Lyn Lary, after giving way to Crosetti at short, has taken to third like a duck to water. Lou Gehrig, the iron man on first, who passed his 1,000th consecutive game last season, thinks the second thousand will be the easiest. Joe Sewell and Eddie Farrell, as well as Lazzeri, are destined for utility jobs, although Tony will be traded any time the Yanks can get a reliable pitcher for him.

ALLEN AND BROWN.

Of the hurling recruits, John Allen and 220-pound Walter Brown, from Jersey City, and Johnny Murphy, from St. Paul, look the best. They are getting every chance to make good, in the hope of taking some of the burden off the brilliant Gomez, the powerful Ruffing and speedy Pipgras. Gordon Rhodes has a chance to come through. Herb Pennock and Ed Wells will use their southpaw wiles in opportune spots. Johnson may pitch by May, earlier than at first expected.

Behind the bat Big Bill Dickey will do at least 80 per cent of the work, with Arndt Jorgens and Tom Padden in reserve.

GAME TODAY.

The B. A. C. of the Boys' Athletic Club will engage in a basketball game with the strong Leaders' quintet on the Jewish Alliance court Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Tech Heads List of Local Entries in Southeastern Ring Tourney

LARGEST FIELD TO SEEK TITLES IN MEET HERE

Tech High, Boys' High and G. M. A. Are Also Entered.

Georgia Tech, G. M. A., Boys' High and Tech High will be well represented at the annual Southeastern Amateur Athletic Union boxing championship tournament, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at the city auditorium. The event is being sponsored by the 122d infantry, Georgia national guard.

Tech leads the list of local entries with five, while Tech High, Boys' High and G. M. A. each have three. There is a strong possibility of other local boxers entering later.

There are 58 entries at present and others will be received through 6 o'clock Tuesday night, when the committee will begin the task of assorting the boys in the various classes and arranging for the three programs.

LARGE ENTRY.

It is the largest entry ever to be recorded, and new higher registrations will be recorded before the dead line Tuesday, officials of the national guard stated Saturday, and everything points to one of the most successful of all Southeastern A. A. U. meets.

Advance tickets will be placed on sale Tuesday morning at Marshall & Reynolds and at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Only ringside tickets for $1 will be sold at these places, while 25 and 50-cent tickets will be sold at the gates.

Championship belts for the winners and runners-up are on exhibition in Muse's windows and will remain there until they are awarded Saturday night at the auditorium.

George Clausen, Mobile; Phil Carpenter, Fort Benning, and Homer Sears, Tech High, will defend their 1931 titles against unusually strong fields. Arp, Quillian and Flynn, runners-up last year, have also entered.

LOCAL ENTRIES.

From Tech, Quint Adams, light-heavy; Elmo Freyer, a candidate for the Olympic welterweight title; Marbury, lightweight; Joe Butler, featherweight, and Tarzan Lackey, heavyweight, are entered. Morris Dean, who recently took the Tech heavy crown away from Lackey, may enter later in the week. Mike Chambers will be in charge of the Tech entries.

Coach Shorty Doyal has entered Harvey McWaters, Jack Leathers and Harry Braunstein, from Boys' High, while Irby, Wills and Paget are entered from G. M. A. under the direction of Coach M. C. Bishop. Tech High's entries will include Homer Sears, defending his flyweight crown; Chester Steckel and Frank Killan.

Boxers will be paired according to weights given on the entry blanks, but if on arival and weighing in it is found that the entrant is more than half a pound over the required weight, he shall be transferred to the next heavier weight division.

Captain Frank Kopf is general chairman of the tournament committee and will be assisted by the following: Chairman, Captain Frank A. Kopf; Captain W. B. Elliott, Captain Elbert P. Bill Joyce Is Seen As 'Iron Man' Star

UNIVERSITY, Ala., March 19.—Eastman, Stanford 440 flash, is not the only quarter-miler who is expected to pull the iron man stunt this spring on the track. Bill Joyce, Alabama's sensational junior, is being groomed to run the 100, 200, 440, and a lap of the mile relay.

If necessary Joyce can also run a neat lap on the 880-yard relay team. He will have done more than a day's work, however, if he runs the short dashes, the 440 and anchor man on the mile relay quartet.

Man Refuses Cash At Track, Fears Loss

MIAMI, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—Joe Menis, Hollywood restaurant operator, is "afraid of a holdup in these modern times."

So last night, when he won $530.40 on a $2 bet at the West Flagler Kennel Club race track, Menis declined the proferred cash, and informed track officials he wanted "a check because I'm afraid to carry that much cash." He got the check.

Menis picked the dogs that finished first and second in the ninth race. His selections were King Jimmie and Sydney. He held the only ticket on that combination.

Vol Batting Will Rank High

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 19.—With the first week of practice in the bag, Manager Joe Klugman, of the Nashville Vols, is confident of one thing—that he will have a batting attack second to none in the league.

Sessions with the stick have been a part of each workout in Sulphur Dell and the boards have rattled from the bombardment of the Vols' big guns. Moose Clabaugh, batting leader and home run king of the league last season, has been forced to share the spotlight with Stanley Keyes, Mule Shirley and Zach Smith in the pre-season exercises with the willow.

Keyes came from Des Moines where he led the Western league in everything from hits to runs batted in. Smith set the pace in the Piedmont, and Shirley, a holdover, always has been dangerous in the local park.

Vol officials look for the batting strength to buoy the pitching staff to a high degree of effectiveness. "I think our club will be good for an average of six or seven runs a game," says Klugman. "With any kind of pitching we should be up in there."

The ax was idle during the week and the squad still numbers 25—two catchers, 11 pitchers, 8 infielders and 4 outfielders. It is likely that eight hurlers will be carried for the first 30 days of the season. The excess talent will be sent to Montgomery in the Southeastern loop.

Exhibition games begin next week-end with Clarence Rowland's Reading Keys as the first foes.

Y-Church Meeting Is Slated Monday

The weekly meeting of the Y-Church Athletic Association, slated for 7:30 Monday night at the Y. M. C. A., is expected to see the completion of all leagues to be sponsored the coming season. The Piedmont league reached its quota at last Monday's meeting and teams of this loop will draw for opening game opponents.

The Dixie, Fulton and Sewanee league each needs but one team to be ready for the season's opening.

Any church-sponsored team is invited to join the league.

Patterson, Radcliff On Power Program

Whitie Patterson and Ted Radcliff, popular young Atlanta wrestlers, will head the regular monthly wrestling and boxing card staged by the Athletic and Social Club of the Georgia Power Company Friday night at 36 Piedmont avenue.

Radcliff is one of the most promising wrestlers ever developed in this section, but will meet plenty of opposition in Patterson, who has a reputation for his roughness in the ring.

Other wrestlers on the card are as follows: Young Richard vs. Hugh Winn, in a one-fall 30-minute time limit match. Red Powell will take on Fred Head in a 15-minute one-fall match in the opening match on the wrestling card.

Billy Wilson, of Atlanta, who has a wide experience in the boxing game, will meet a tough youngster in Battling Smity, in the main go on the boxing card. In the preliminaries, Battling Reeves, featherweight champion of the power company will meet Cotton Wilson in a four-round bout.

YOUNG COACHES TO MEET MEHRE FOR FIVE DAYS

First Coaching School To Begin at Athens on June 6.

By Al Smith.

ATHENS, Ga., March 19.—Harry J. Mehre, head coach of Georgia football, who has made the Bulldog grid squad one of the outstanding in the country during the past three years, and Rex Enright, the young man who coached the Georgia basketball team to a Southern conference championship his first year as head man, will tell all to several score athletic coaches of the south when the first Harry Mehre coaching school opens in Athens June 6.

Starting Monday, June 6, the sessions of the school will last through Saturday, June 11, and in that period Coaches Mehre and Eiright will give adequate instruction on coaching football and basketball teams in the art of playing. Johnny Broadnax, head freshman coach of football, basketball and baseball, will assist both coaches.

FIFTY REQUESTS.

Fifty cards requesting further information on the coaching school have already been received by Johnny Broadnax, who is in charge of business arrangements for the school. Hundreds of letters have been sent to coaches over the entire southland and several hundred coaches are expected to attend the sessions. Requests for information have come from coaches in Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina and Louisiana.

Actual tuition in the school will cost the students $25. This will also include all equipment; the university swimming pool will also be available free. Clarence W. Jones, University of Georgia trainer, will lecture and demonstrate Georgia's training methods and give instructions on first aid to minor injuries.

The school will be the first ever held in the south featuring the Notre Dame system of football. However, basic plays of every sound system of football will be given, letters sent to the coaches said.

FUNDAMENTALS.

Football lecture periods will be devoted to equipment, training and conditioning. Fundamentals of football, field tactics and the forward pass on defense and offense will be featured in the two-hour lecture period on football. An hour of demonstration will follow. Demonstration will include actual methods of blocking and tackling and individual technique on defense and offense. The famous old Notre Dame shift will be explained and demonstrated.

Returning the kick-off will be explained by the coach whose team has beaten Yale and New York University by that same kick-off return. Offensive and defensive methods of Yale, New York University, Tulane and Southern California will come in for a bit of attention.

The basketball course will also be concerned with lectures and demonstrations. Several famous systems will be explained, including those used by Meanwell, of Wisconsin; Ruby, of Illinois, and Allen, of Kansas.

So Harry Mehre and Rex Enright have gone into the teaching business. Should their success in that be as great as their success in coaching football and basketball teams they will have something to write home about during the warm days when football and basketball equipment are stored away under thick coverings of moth balls.

pounds, the same weight carried by Top Flight, raced the filly to a neck decision.

And what a race the brown colt ran! He was slow getting away. He was in eighth place when the halfway position was reached. And that is pretty far back. Not only that, but he was eighth by two lengths at the three-quarters; sixth by a length and a half at the mile; second by two lengths in the stretch and second by a neck at the finish.

And the colt didn't get a very good ride, according to the chart. Tick On was on the outside and was bumped badly near the half-mile mark.

And so why not Tick On in the Derby? These modern fillies can't work. The only one that ever won was Regret, a daughter of Broomstick. And that was the exception that to date has proved the rule which is that no filly reaches top form early in the spring.

It will be raining on Derby day and the box seat patrons will have umbrellas and newspapers over their heads and Tick On will get away late and catch up and win in the stretch.

WHAT? NO SWEEPSTAKE TICKETS?

There are on my desk six letters, all from out of the city, asking where one may purchase sweepstake tickets on the Kentucky Derby, on the Calcutta Sweepstakes and on the big English races.

I'm sure I don't know. There are mysterious salesmen who appear with them now and then. And the gullible put down money for them with no guarantee at all. Which shows just how eager we all are to make that extra money with a modicum of effort.

And even if one did know where to purchase those tickets it would not be healthy to write someone about them or publish them in the paper. Because there is a very strict law about them. And if they are printed a man wearing a dark suit would come in and put the sleeve on you. Which isn't pleasant.

A VERY UNWISE LAW.

While I would not care to be out in the light of criticizing your Uncle Samuel's agents, it does seem that the law prohibiting publication of the names of the big sweepstake winners was very unwise indeed. They made such grand reading.

There was always the street sweeper in Buffalo who won a million and a half. And there was the baker in Paris who won two million francs. And there was the manicurist in Philadelphia who won a half million and was going to use it to study voice—which study, it seems, had always been one of her suppressed desires.

It was worse than taking hop. One could get the darndest dreams out of a two-dollar Calcutta sweepstake ticket. No matter how tough times were or how pediculous one felt, that little ticket was always good for a wallop. One could see one's name in the headlines and one could picture getting that check for a million and a half dollars. There would be travel, big, shiny automobiles, champagne, steamers, a personal valet and all that sort of thing, more than a million and a half would pay for, but then there was quite a wallop in it.

Taking away those tickets destroyed at least two months of day-dreaming and wrecked no telling how many castles in the air. It may have speeded up office work and all that sort of thing, but it took a lot of joy out of life.

As one who has bought those tickets every year, I know. They were an emotional wallop. And this year I wonder how we'll hear about the man up in Buffalo and the manicurist who was going to study voice?

"SMARTEN UP."

Ball players don't seem to play the ponies as much as they did once upon a time. Which means they are getting smarter. They used to go for them in a big way.

I recall some of the boys on the old Nashville team who played them every day. The old press box at Sulpher Dell was up on the roof. We had some signals arranged. As soon as the race was run a boy in the office would telephone the press box and we'd signal the boys on the field. I've seen a lot of ball games turn on the reports from the tracks. It either made them sad or happy. And when happy they might slug the ball around quite considerable, as the boys say.

There's a lot of fascination around the tracks. Laying it on the line in a cigar store hasn't the same kick, but still there are a lot of them who go for it in a big way.

FLORIDA ENTERS PENN CARNIVAL

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—Among the 352 entries that have already been received for the 38th annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival, on April 29 and 30 on Franklin field, are three that have seldom appeared in athletic meets in this section of the country.

The Universities of Florida, Texas and New Mexico will be represented in the forthcoming games by relay teams and individuals, according to H. Jamison Swarts, manager of the carnival.

Florida will be making its first appearance in the long history of the meet, while Texas and New Mexico were represented once in the past. Some years ago Cy Leland, the Texas sprint star, competed in the 100-yard special, while Mexico had a relay team and several individuals a number of years ago.

Joe Hall, regarded as the greatest all-around track star in the history of Florida, will represent his alma mater in the decathlon, one of the feature events on the first day's program. There is also a possibility that Florida will be represented in the Class B one-mile championship of America.

Neither Texas nor New Mexico has named either teams or individuals, but will do so before the closing date for all entries. It is expected that each will have at least one relay team and several individuals in the meet.

Emory and Furman Golfers Slate Meet

GREENVILLE, S. C., March 19. Furman University is the first South Carolina college to install golf in its athletic program as a regular minor sport, issuing block letters to men earning them in this sport.

Paul "Dizzy" McLeod, head football coach and director of athletics at Furman, in announcing the move on the part of college officials, said it was largely the result of a growing demand on the part of students for more activity in golf.

So great is the activity in golf by students that the school has constructed a six-hole course on the campus for students and faculty to use.

Matches with Emory University, Clemson College and other institutions have been scheduled for this season.

LOUISIANA WON BY LUCKY TOM

NEW ORLEANS, March 19.—(AP) The thunder of the thoroughbreds' hoofs was stilled here today until next Thanksgiving with the running of an eight-race card, featuring the Louisiana Derby, $10,000 added, which was won by Lucky Tom, with Open Hearth second and Prince Hotspur third.

The crowd, largest of this season's meet, mixed cheers with boos at the end of the running of the Derby and Jockey J. Burke, up on Open Hearth, lodged a claim of foul against Jockey A. Pascuma, rider of Lucky Tom, on the claim that he struck Open Hearth in the face near the finish, but the judges disallowed the claim.

A $2 mutuel certificate earned: Lucky Tom $6.60 straight, $5.20 place, $4.80 show; Open Hearth $7.20 place, $5.20 show; Prince Hotspur $3.80 show.

The race was run under a warm sun on a fast track in 1:53 3-5 at a mile and a furlong. It was worth $9,375 to the winning owner, J. J. Robinson.

Pascuma drove his mount to a punishing finish to win by a nose over S. W. Labrot's Open Hearth as he came up to challenge in the home stretch. Prince Hotspur finished third, a length and a half behind the winner, and the favorite, Bertjohn, was fourth.

New York Trap Star Wins at Sea Island

SEA ISLAND BEACH, Ga., March 19.—W. H. Howell, New York, made a perfect score in the Saint Patrick's 50-bird handicap skeet tournament at the Sea Island Gun Club. It was the first perfect record of the season.

The ten top scorers in the holiday vent, which drew a large gallery from the vacationists now wintering at Sea Island, were W. H. Howell, 50; Vassar Cate, Brunswick, 49; Dr. H. L. Akridge, Brunswick, 48; Mrs. A. H. Ballard, Boston, Mass., 47; J. D. Cassels, Bethesda, Md., 46; Ben Ames Williams, Chestnut Hill, Mass., 45; C. A. Blythe, Staten Island, N. Y., 45; Dr. Howard Clute, Boston, Mass., 44; A. H. Ballard, Boston, Mass., 40, and E. W. Lewis Jr., Detroit, Mich., 37.

TEACHES CRABTREE.

Harry Heilmann, a champion batter when he was with the Detroit Tigers, is teaching hitting tricks to Estil Crabtree, brilliant young outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds. Baseball men say that if Crabtree greatly improves his hitting he will be one of the game's best because he scintillates in all other departments of play.

SMALL TEAM WON.

Managers squawking because their rosters have been cut due to bad times should remember the Pittsburgh team of 1901.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 20, 1932.

MOST VOTES, IN THE MOST PLACES IN THE MOST STATES.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose nomination by the democratic national convention is assured, will next Wednesday add another state to his rapidly growing list of enthusiastic adherents. On that day, by a vast majority, Georgia will cast her vote for the New York governor as her choice for the democratic presidential nomination. The indorsement of Georgia, with her 28 delegates, will give Governor Roosevelt a total of approximately 80 votes, won over the combined desperate "stop-Roosevelters," backed by the comfort and good wishes of the republican press.

There has never been the scintilla of a doubt concerning the result of the Georgia primaries. Governor Roosevelt will win by a vote of 20 to 1 and will carry every county in the state. It is for the loyal democrats in Georgia to set the number of votes, and make the victory as overwhelming as possible. For Georgians will be voting not only for the democratic nominee and the next president of the United States but for the foster son of the Empire State of the South.

The victories of Governor Roosevelt in New Hampshire, Minnesota, North Dakota, Washington and Alaska have revealed the strength and popularity of the New York governor. In New Hampshire the "stop-Roosevelt" movement, encouraged by Alfred E. Smith and carried on by his adherents, was a real test of strength. That the losers and their republican sympathizers, who have heartily beat the tom-toms in an effort to unblock the road for Hoover, would have at hand facile, if futile, alibis was obvious. But excuses do not erase facts—the most voters wanted Roosevelt. And significant beyond the emphasis placed on the New Hampshire victory by Roosevelt's friends is the fact that he carried 98 per cent of all the townships and 8 of the 11 cities. Of the other three cities he lost one by 20 votes and another by just over a hundred.

In Minnesota it was Roosevelt all the way. The pressure of those seeking to stop him was insufficient. Then the "stop-Roosevelters" in desperation indulged in the outworn tactics of staging a bolt. The effort was so puny and so stupid that it wilted over-night.

But the fight against Roosevelt in North Dakota, intended by the "stop-Roosevelters" and the various anti-Roosevelt groups as a vital blow to his campaign, served instead to bring out the strength of the New York governor and to emphasize the widespread appeal made by his candidacy. Governor Murray, of Oklahoma, whose brother is a prominent citizen of North Dakota, and whose strength has been marked among the farmers, was selected to "stop Roosevelt." North Dakota seemed an ideal arena for a successful "stop-Roosevelt" campaign, for it was that state which gave Alfred E. Smith in 1928 eight times as many votes as were received by John W. Davis in 1924. The result of the combination of Murray, of Oklahoma, and Murray, of North Dakota, and the "stop-Roosevelters" was a record-breaking vote in the democratic primary—a vote of nearly 80,000, or six times as many as the 13,000 record vote cast in the primary of 1924. With a Roosevelt vote of approximately 48,000 to 30,000 for Murray, the New York governor won 9 delegates out of the 10, the tenth delegate being the brother of the Oklahoman, who is under moral obligation to support Roosevelt by mandate of his state.

Georgia this week will be the scene of another "stop-Roosevelt" debacle. A western publisher, who supported Hoover and bitterly fought the democratic party in 1928, is attempting to dictate democracy's choice of its nominee. The stalking horse selected by the Hoover supporter is Judge Howard, whose insistence in serving as Speaker Garner's proxy brought from the Texan's friends the request that the Georgia judge withdraw. Garner's friends attempted to persuade Judge Howard to show on the Texan's behalf the same fine courtesy exhibited by Governor Roosevelt, who refused to oppose Speaker Garner in the latter's home state.

The slogan of the western publisher, fresh from support of Hoover, has been based on the fact that Speaker Garner is from Texas—"nominate a southern man." This slogan has been echoed by Judge Howard, proxying for the Texan. But while making this plea of "nominate a southern man," the Texan's friends here—if they may be called his friends—failed to remember the attitude of Texas toward the candidacy of Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama.

From the present Texas standpoint, Speaker Garner's state should have joined Georgia in support of Oscar W. Underwood when that noted and able democrat was presented to the convention as the south's candidate. Not one single member of the Texas delegation voted for Underwood. Now comes Garner's proxy pleading that the south give its support to the Texan. Evidently, Judge Howard, in the enthusiasm of his proxying, has forgotten that it is a poor rule which won't work both ways.

The brilliance of Underwood, then chairman of the house ways and means committee and later senator from Alabama, had been recognized by the foremost men of both parties. He was a southerner of southerners, admired and beloved wherever he was known. But all the appeals made to the Texas delegates that they support this southerner fell on deaf ears.

Georgia was among the first—if not the first—to offer the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt to the democrats of the nation. He has served democracy by his faith and his deeds. In every way he measures up to the demands of the high office for which he was proposed and is now candidate. If it be said that other able democrats are eligible, it becomes clear that the one among them who is not only able but who can win must be selected if the government is to be rescued from republican rapacity and inefficiency.

It is not only the part of wisdom but the unquestioned duty of democracy, in selecting its nominee from its list of notable sons, to nominate the man among them who can get the most votes in the most places in the most states. And that man is Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York.

Georgia, next Wednesday, will be placed in the Roosevelt column by the most votes in the most places in the most democratic of states.

A GREEK HERO.

The Greek colony of Atlanta will join next Friday with their nationals all over the world in celebrating the hundredth anniversary of political independence and religious freedom from Turkish domination. Their struggle against the star and crescent is comparable to our own efforts to overthrow the tyranny of George III, of England. But the Greeks fought, not alone for their existence as a nation, but for Christianity as well.

The efforts of the Helenes to overthrow the Ottoman yoke, like similar efforts in the history of every important power, produced its heroes, who live in song and story even today. Chief among the leaders of the Greeks of 1821, when the insurrection first broke out, was Marco Bozzaris (or Markos Botsaris), who beat the gong of nationalism and religious freedom until all Greece was stirred. The news columns of this issue tell the story of the plans of Atlanta Greeks to celebrate independence day. The printed program carries the opening stanza of Fitz-Greene Halleck's great poem, "Marco Bozzaris," which portrays the smug confidence with which Turkish commanders regarded the ultimate outcome of their campaign against the sons of the Spartans. A second stanza better describes Marco Bozzaris' tactics, while the Turks slept:

At midnight, in the forest shades,
Bozzaris ranged his Suliot band;
True as the steel of their tried blades;
Heroes in heart and hand . . .

Then, referring to the valor of the progenitors of the Greeks under Bozzaris when they of an earlier era faced the hordes of Persians, the poem pictures the little bands waiting in the gloom of the forest under their leader against the Turks:

And now there breathed that haunted air
The sons of sires who conquered there;
With arm to strike, and soul to dare,
As quick, as far, as they.

Greece won her independence after a long struggle—a struggle which for years threatened to draw all the mightier powers of the continent into the Greco-Turkish vortex. Bozzaris did not live to see it, but he is remembered by Greeks and lovers of liberty the world over.

WELL-TIMED WARNINGS.

The characterization of the kind of prohibition we have, by Senator Glenn, of Illinois, as one of the "vicious forces which must be driven from our nation," and the warning by Governor George White, of Ohio, to a W. C. T. U. conference in that state that "the time has come for a national referendum," emphasizes the trend of national opinion.

These utterances have added significance in view of the fact that both Senator Glenn and Governor White have been ardent drys and both were elected to their present offices on dry platforms.

At the time of Governor White's election two years ago, the state platforms of both parties in Ohio had stanch dry planks. Now both have reversed their position, the republicans having announced that their delegation to the national convention will work for a modification plank, while Governor White firmly takes the position that congress erred in refusing to allow the people to pass upon the most disturbing problem before the country.

The change in the position of Senator Glenn and Governor White is indicative of what is going on among all classes of our citizens in every section of the country.

It is a change largely attributable to the constant increase in the burden of federal taxation while the bootlegging "business," now one of the largest and most profitable in the country, remains absolutely untaxed and unregulated.

This huge industry has grown to the point where its annual turn over amounts to approximately three billion dollars—and yet not a penny is paid in taxation.

This situation might be put up with without protest if existing laws were serving the purpose for which they were intended, and the cause of temperance was being advanced.

Unfortunately, the contrary is true.

There are more arrests now for drunkenness than the country has ever known; the speakeasies in existence far outnumber the saloons of pre-prohibition days and the number of alcoholic patients in hospitals and sanitariums is growing at an alarming rate.

It is generally known and admitted that liquor can be obtained anywhere, in any quantity, the only difference now being that it costs much more, while much of it is unfit to drink. Where moonshine stills formerly existed only in the mountains of a few states, they have increased in a mushroom growth that has covered the entire country.

Respect for the law has waned to such an extent that our police officers are practically helpless. As a result crime is increasing and a general state of demoralization, growing out of the inability to enforce the prohibition laws, exists all over the country.

Wtih the prospect of still further increases in the already almost unbearable tax burdens — burdens which would not exist if the millions of dollars invested in the bootleg business were carrying their proper share of taxation—it is no wonder that the country is demanding a sane and sensible solution of the problem.

This can be accomplished without the return of the saloon. The abolition of the saloon was the objective on which the Anti-Saloon League was founded, and the whole country now sees the wisdom of that position.

The League should discontinue its blind opposition to all efforts seeking to bring about a sane solution of the present intolerable condition, and join with those who are endeavoring to find some better method to forward the cause of temperance.

In that way the destruction of the illicit traffic which now has the entire country in its grip would be assured, and the tax burdens of the people would be lessened through the turning of the huge profits now lining the pockets of lawbreakers into the federal treasury in the form of taxes.

When such leaders as Senator Glenn and Governor White openly abandon their former positions on the enforcement of the present laws, there can be no doubt of the radi- has taken place among the people.

CLARK, OF MISSOURI.

Colonel Bennett Clark, worthy son of the late democratic leader, Champ Clark, and who for the past decade has been one of the foremost of the democratic wheel horses in Missouri, is a candidate for the United States senate to succeed Senator Harry Hawes, who voluntarily retires.

Far be it from The Constitution to advise the democrats of Missouri as to what they should, or should not, do but as Bennett Clark is a national character we feel it not out of place to say that the nation would applaud the action of Missouri in sending to the senate one so well qualified for the position.

If elected, he will enter congress just 40 years from the time his distinguished father was sent to congress during the Cleveland administration.

Graduating from the University of Missouri, he soon became parliamentarian of the house of representatives, serving in that capacity until his entrance as a captain in the World War. Appointed a lieutenant colonel of a Missouri volunteer regiment he went to France with the famous 35th division. At the close of the war he was a full colonel. Along with young Theodore Roosevelt and other officers of the A. E. F., he was one of the organizers in Paris of the American Legion.

Returning to Missouri he married Miss Mariam Marsh, only daughter of the late Wilbur Marsh, of Iowa, for many years treasurer of the democratic national committee.

So prominent had Colonel Clark become as a party leader, in the national democratic convention in New York eight years ago this young veteran received a large vote for the vice presidency.

Colonel Clark has been identified with Missouri politics for many years, having taken the stump practically in every democratic campaign in that state for the past 25 years.

He has a tremendous following among the American Legion, among ex-service men, and among the old-time friends of his father, whose force and ability he inherits.

Occupying a prominent position at the Missouri bar, he is an author of note, his recently published biography of John Quincy Adams receiving first award among the biographies submitted in the Atlantic Monthly contest a year ago.

Colonel Clark is intimately acquainted with national leaders of the party in Washington and throughout the country, and has received from them expressions of keen interest concerning his candidacy.

If elected he will not have to undergo the long apprenticeship served by the average new senator, for by long residence in Washington, and by service as house parliamentarian, his affiliation has been such as to put him abreast of leaders who have served in both houses for many years.

Missouri will do honor to the state and service to the country by sending to the senate a man so well fitted for the place as Bennett Clark.

There are only 22,000,000 people now employed in the United States, says a statistician. We don't believe it—there are more than that many people working on prize contests.

Men's spring clothes will reflect approaching prosperity, says a stylist. Yes—and everything else that comes within reflecting distance.

Some one writes in to ask when hairpins first were used. We don't even know when they were last used.

The Waycross city educational department is worried about the scarcity of frogs. We're not—but the scarcity of frogskins has us bothered no little.

Equality of sex in church is urged, says a press dispatch. It's high time the men were getting a break somewhere.

Our sympathy goes out to the Utah proofreader who left the comma out of "Dern, the governor."

Hindenburg, The Man.

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.
European Correspondent of The Constitution.

In 1912 the kaiser ordered the imperial army maneuvers to be held on the Polish (then Russian) frontier. He himself would take command of the red army representing the invaders, while General Paul Von Hindenburg was to carry out the defense of the German territory with a blue army. Wilhelm took excellent care to have the greatest concentration of artillery on his own side. He was going to overwhelm the defenders with sheer numbers. "I will crush Hindenburg under my steam-roller," he declared, coining a phrase that came close to being reality two years later.

* * * *

Eight days the battle raged. Wilhelm swooped down with lightning speed. Hindenburg gave way before him. In the evening when the red commanders met they complimented their war lord on his brilliant successes. "Nothing on earth can resist your majesty," said Falkenhayn. Wilhelm took it for granted and responded to the toast.

Hindenburg, on the other side of the line, dispensed with grandiose dinners. He rode his cavalry divisions westward, forcing back the kaiser's right wing in the night. News of the nocturnal operations was brought to Wilhelm at breakfast. He smiled indulgently. "Just a little diversion," he remarked, as he brushed his moustaches.

By 10 o'clock the kaiser's whole line was wavering. Hindenburg had nearly encircled the red army. Wilhelm had to order a retreat, but a retreat in the wrong direction, toward Russia and not toward the interior of Germany.

By 4 in the afternoon it became obvious that Hindenburg had maneuvered the kaiser into a trap. The all-highest was marching headlong for the Masurian lakes. Hindenburg was capturing his artillery which moved slower than the infantry. Rapid cavalry dashes were decimating the kaiser's forces, theoretically, of course. With a victorious army in his back and the terrible swamps of the Masurian lakes ahead of him, Wilhelm suddenly realized his awkward position. At nightfall he rushed the order to cease fire. The maneuvers were called off.

Hindenburg, 50 miles away, was summoned. The old warrior who had not slept for six days and six nights obeyed and reported at headquarters. His majesty was at dinner. He made the general wait like any other flunky. After liquors and cigars Hindenburg was called in. The assembled commanders of the red army greeted him in silence.

The kaiser was cynical. "Well, what do you think of it?" queried the Hohenzollern. "If your majesty had really been the enemy," spoke up the grim old soldier quietly, "I would have annihilated your forces in the Masurian swamps. There was no escape."

Hindenburg had taken the maneuvers seriously. The kaiser never forgave him for those words. An army order placed Hindenburg on the retired list.

Then came 1914. In the autumn of that year a real steam-roller was bearing down on the East Prussian frontier. Five thousand villages had fallen before the invader. The czarist guard regiments were heading for Berlin. On the western front Joffre had fought the crown prince and Von Kluck to a standstill. The kaiser was in a fury and desperate. "Call Hindenburg." Buelow suggested timidly. "Never," said Wilhelm.

The Russians swept on. Koenigsberg was menaced. The Russians were waiting for reinforcements to continue the march of victory. The crown prince was summoned to Berlin. "Call Hindenburg," he suggested less timidly. Wilhelm still hesitated.

At midnight the news arrived in Potsdam that the Russians had resumed the offensive. Then only did Wilhelm telegraph the old general on his country-seat in East Prussia. Within 12 hours he was in Berlin and had left for the front.

Two months later East Prussia was cleared of Russians and the czarist army suffered the terrible defeat on the Masurian lakes when hundreds of thousands of Moscovites perished in the swamps.

Hindenburg had to tell the kaiser in 1918 that abdication was the only way out. Nobody dared to inform the all-highest that the jig was up. It was a painful moment for the old field marshal. "It's my duty to tell your majesty that the troops can no longer be relied upon," he said quietly. "I will die at the head of my guards," Wilhelm screamed. "The guards are in revolt. Your majesty must take this train," replied Hindenburg. It bore Wilhelm to exile.

Ludendorff donned a false beard and black glasses and fled to Sweden. The crown prince followed his father to Holland. Hindenburg was alone with a defeated and hungry army of 3,000,000. The red flag was flying in Berlin. One wrong move on his part and Germany would have been thrown into chaos. Civil war was spouting up everywhere. The people demanded an accounting.

"I have done my duty," was his only reply.

Through misery and destitution he stayed at the helm. A weary, old man, longing for a rest, he had begun his eighty-fifth year when Hitler's threat to throw the country into turmoil became evident. Hindenburg alone could have the situation. He did not abandon his Fatherland.

To the Germans he embodies all that is loyal and steadfast in the ancient Teutonic tradition. A junker by birth and inclination, he did not hesitate to head a republic. A believer in absolute monarchy, he became a democrat. The call to duty and service never fell on deaf ears with that gallant gentleman and patriot, whom it took a world in arms to defeat.

It's Going To Require More Than the Ordinary Alibi

The Background Of Foreign Affairs

Germany Stands Against Panic; Put the Radicals in Office; Brazilian Political Pot Seething.

BY HENRY KITTREDGE NORTON.

Amid the welter of European political cross-currents the German nation still stands on the rock of common sense. Steadiness and discipline are still in the ascendant. Panic and desperation have been rebuked.

The qualities which mirror all that is best in the German character asserted themselves in the election last Sunday, when President Hindenburg obtained almost half of the votes. Had there been a couple of hundred thousand more favorable ballots the presidency of Germany for the next term would have been definitely decided. But the forces of discontent were too strong for this. The Hitlerites polled over 11,000,000, the communists nearly 5,000,000 and the Hugenburg nationalists 2,500,000. Even this array would not have been sufficient to necessitate a second election, but a fifth candidate, with headquarters in the jail, ran on a platform demanding revalorization of the old mark. He obtained 180,000 votes. Hindenburg failed of a majority by less than 170,000.

The president's lead, while not enough to avoid the second election, on April 10, is sufficient to upset the plans of the opposition. Hitler and Hugenburg, despite their gains since the last election, have not enough votes between them to elect a fusion candidate, even if they could agree upon one. Hitler's announcement that he will run in April makes this unlikely.

There is encouragement in the fact that half the German nation stands for a peaceful and orderly solution of the political and economic problems. There is equal discouragement in the fact that the other half has voted in favor of a solution by bluster and violence. The way of constructive action is still open. But unless it is taken promptly it may be closed. There is a warning here for the statesmen of the powers.

Meantime Ireland may show us something of what may happen when fire-eaters are put into office. Eamon de Valera has become president of the Irish Free State.

Throughout its brief history De Valera has insisted that the free state shall be free in fact as well as in name. Up to 1927 he insisted that Ireland should be a republic. In that year he subscribed the oath which the Irish constiution subscribes for all deputies. As De Valera signed, he announced that he was not taking an oath.

Perhaps his actions spoke louder than his words. At any rate for five years there has been no discernible difference in De Valera's actions, nor in the life of the Irish Free State, from what there would have been had he allowed his hand and his lips to work together.

Now that he is president of the Irish Free State, which it was at one time his declared intention to abolish, we shall have another opportunity to see whether the radical in office is as convinced of the validity of his ideas as during the days when he was running for office. The odds are in favor of De Valera's making some gesture in regard to the oath of allegiance to the king which will salve his political conscience and leave untouched the essential structure of the Irish Free State.

The balance of political stability in Brazil is swaying ominously. Dr. Vargas, who has essayed the role of dictator during the last 18 months, is apparently attempting to swap horses in the middle of a stream.

When he came up from Rio Grande do Sul in the fall of 1930 he had behind him the united enthusiasm of the progressive elements of that state and was received with acclaim by the kindred elements of Sao Paulo and Minas Geraes. With the help of some of the northern states and of many of the military chieftains, these three states accomplished Brazil's first successful revolution.

The moment Dr. Vargas assumed office there began the struggle between those who desired to perpetuate the methods of dictatorship and those who urged a return to constitutional procedure. At first it was the old politicians who were most eager to "return to constitutionalism," for that would have meant their return to office. But as the months wore on one revolutionary leader after another, out of loyalty to the principles of the revolution itself, has joined the ranks of those who would restore constitutional government. The last week or two has seen the exodus of most of Vargas' early supporters. Significantly enough, they have gone back to Rio Grande do Sul.

This leaves the dictator dependent upon the none too reliable support of a military clique addicted to the theory and practice of dictatorship. The issue between dictatorship and constitutionalism is now clearly drawn, and Dr. Vargas, apparently too enamored of the power of office, remains a dictator who has outstayed his welcome.

The Character of a City

To speak and think of things as persons seems to be an elemental human instinct. Mountains and rivers and trees are personified in every language. The more closely things are associated with persons, the more apt we are to think of them in personal terms. It is more than a fancy. Matter it is true is inanimate, but it is capable of receiving and expressing the thought and character of people. Apart from personality it is insignificant, but once let a person touch it and he leaves something of himself impressed upon it.

Spiritual in Material.

The story of creation in Genesis is a revealing parable: "And the earth was waste and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep." Now comes the real beginning of history, "And the spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters." Then the stars came out, verdant beauty clothed the hills and valleys, and the rivers began to sing their songs to the sea. The spirit translated itself into visible, tangible form.

Here is to be found man's likeness to God. He takes the dead, meaningless, ore out of the darkness of the earth, and transforms it into wires of communication vibrant with his messages, and into steel pathways to bear the commerce of life. He takes the meaningless marble from the hills, and breathes his vision of beauty into its insensate substance, until it lives. This is the story of human life. Thus we trace the footsteps of the race in its long climb, by the manner in which it has fashioned meaningless matter into instruments of skill, ornaments of beauty, and temples for worship.

It is inevitable, in this long association between human life and material things, that not alone thought and struggle should be registered, but the very characters of men should be indelibly written in that which they have wrought with their hands. The superstitious fear of haunted houses has more than a grain of truth. The spirit of a man permeates with his motives and ideals the substance with which he works, and haunts the places where he has lived. Thus houses which he has builded for homes, for workshops, or for worship, have messages revealing their characters to those who come after. So certain as the "Heavens declare the glory of God," the works of men may reveal the quality of their spirits.

Haunted Houses.

So we must understand that the city which we build reveals the character of the men who built it. Parks and alleys, hospitals and hotels, monuments and shanties, schools and libraries, all speak of the standards and aspirations of the people. Thus it is that every house and, neighborhood, every avenue and institution, is vocal with the human story. A cheap, shoddy house with high rent, has its message of greed and selfishness. Neglected neighborhoods with poor sanitation, contrasted with well-paved and well-lighted and wholesome neighborhoods, reveal the social and political conditions of a community. It is not superstition, but a very deep and genuine faith in the persistence of spiritual influences, which leads me to believe that temples or factories, reared at the expense of the health and happiness of men and women, are distinctly bad influences in the life of a city. Church buildings in Russia do not speak to the people of the God whom we love to worship, but of an eternal czar, who would be worshiped at the expense of their welfare.

Here is a new motive and purpose for city planning. We are not simply building for the immediate material advantage of today. Streets, houses and parks will speak to our children, and our children's children, and play a potent part in shaping their characters. Our spirits shall in reality live with them in that which we build. That is, our motives, our standards, and our ideals, will be wrought into the cities which we bequeath to them as homes.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

BY DR. S. PARKES CADMAN.

Great Falls, Mont.

What nations are foremost in advocating disarmament?

Norway, Sweden, Holland and Denmark have that honor. Great Britain claims it, but her claim is not valid. The four countries first named have neither armies nor navies nor air defenses which would withstand attacks from their heavily armed neighbors. To all intents and purposes they are represented by a group of statesmen who do not place their trust in military preparedness.

Hence the anomaly of half Europe voluntarily or forcibly disarmed (if we include Germany), and the other half excessively overarmed. Why should Americans ignore the Scandinavian peoples or those of Denmark and Holland? Are they not quite as civilized and prosperous as the rest of us? Their merchant ships sail all seas. Java and Sumatra, Holland's colonial possessions, are among the richest in the world. It would be worth while to try and understand their attitude, and to invite them to tell us whether they enjoy any greater or lesser sense of security than the States relying on vast military and naval resources.

I hope the forthcoming Geneva Conference on Disarmament will see to it that these relatively unarmed nations have a chance to speak out in meeting. Their example flatly contradicts the practices of the so-called "great" powers which are terribly but needlessly afraid on the issue. The moral courageous group might teach those nervous giants some useful lessons.

What can we young folk do to help out? A lot of us are just sick and tired of jazzing around and want to get busy. Show us how?

Youth is usually stronger in criticism than construction. Heaven knows, it has had abundant reasons for criticism of the prevailing order! But I am glad you see that criticism which is not constructive is neither reasonable nor helpful. Youth is the period when clearness of perspective exceeds the practical knowledge required for remedial action. It sees the forest but does not always see the trees. It knows its objectives without having the technique to reach them. On the other hand, age brings that experience which means intimate acquaintance with the trees, but not always a concurrent ability to observe the shape of the forest.

I have read with deep interest the damning indictment you bring against the muddleheadeness which has plunged mankind into the ditch where it now flounders. With a few qualifications I admit its truth. I quite understand that to the young and inexperienced the whole tragedy must appear avoidable. It makes you doubt the knowledge and wisdom of the older groups, and suppose that youth must again be led as a lamb to the slaughter.

The one way out is for the individuals you represent to register a protest against the established order in international affairs. Begin at this point and you are on the right road. To be concrete, urge your senators to vote for our country's entry into the World Court, and to sustain the administration in its plea for a reduction of armaments all round, every nation co-operating to this end. These are instances of practical action which strike at the main root of our undoing. That undoing consigns countless millions to misery in the midst of the greatest prosperity mankind has ever achieved.

Suggests Committee Be Named To Seek Ways To Reduce the City's Expenses; Praises Constitution for Recall Stand

Editor Constitution: Only from the angle of a useless expenditure of money is the recent recall election to be deplored, because the results were very satisfactory. The people of Atlanta have upheld the right of free speech and delivered a stinging rebuke to a selfish organized minority who sought to gain control of its affairs. A ratio of 17 to 11 is big enough to demonstrate that the Atlanta spirit has been revived. Thousands who have heretofore refrained from voting went to the polls en masse and saved Atlanta's reputation for fair play.

Since the leaders in the dry-labor coalition seem to be satisfied, I hope they will lend their co-operation toward solving the problems of the city government.

I favor the appointment by the mayor of a committee of outstanding citizens, the personnel of which should consist of a banker, a merchant, a certified public accountant, and a business efficiency expert. City council should be represented by two members, and I suggest Alderman Millican, who has certainly done some good work, and Councilman Barret, leader of the opposition to the adoption of the 1932 sheet. Mrs. A. E. Wilson would be an excellent representative from the board of education. This commission should be empowered to investigate each and every department in the city hall, including the firemen and police, to see what economies, if any, could be effected in the operation of the city government.

If my recollection serves me properly, Mr. Millican's committee reported last spring that by the consolidation of various departments not less than $500,000 could be saved.

Although not organized, the Fulton county voters in the recent primary seem "to know their eggs," as they defeated the two city councilmen for the office of county commissioner, and both of them, in council, voted to recall Mr. Key.

I wish to pay a tribute to The Constitution for the fearless way it handled the recall election, which I think contributed more than any one thing to the defeat of the Nance-Manget combination.

No Foolproof Automobiles, So Why Not Build Roads as Nearly Foolproof As Possible, Inquires This Georgian

Editor Constitution: Your weekly compilation of the motor vehicle accidents and deaths do not make pleasant reading but serves a good purpose, I hope, as warnings to motorists to drive carefully and soberly.

So far I have seen and heard of no foolproof cars being on the market or even contemplated, therefore may I suggest the building of a comparatively foolproof road?

One of our future problems in Georgia highway construction will be that of double-tracking or widening, and that problem way be nearer than most of your statewide readers think, if indeed it is not now at hand. Take for instance the Atlanta-Macon road. Those 100 miles are the heaviest traveled in the state and during peak hours little time can be made between Jonesboro and Atlanta and the nearer Atlanta the slower, and the same is relatively true as you approach Macon.

The average driver of a motor car may be ever so patient by nature, but the fascination and exhilaration of having at his fingers' end the control of 100 horsepower, coupled with a probable mental time limit, if not definite time engagements, to reach his destination, sets his nerves on hair-triggers above his better judgment and tempts him to run by the one ahead and thus too frequently cause serious and fatal damages.

In discussing this subject one cannot overlook human nature and must be governed accordingly, therefore I suggest the plan of a "split road"—that is a double track road, one-half of which to be at least three feet higher than the other half and all traffic be kept on the right half so that one passing another will not do so in face of traffic in the opposite direction—thus avoiding head-on collisions and by this means avoiding the menace of dangerous possibilities.

It would be a very costly plan to double track our roads now by widening them on the present levels, especially when the buying of right-of-ways through the villages and towns, for many stores and homes would have to be cut down, moved back or done away with entirely, but another grade, or another road or another street could be employed at no loss to the towns and villages and thus keep the traffic in as close touch to them as now.

When the Georgia mileage, now legally in her system, is paved there will of course be another good way to Macon by Covington, Monticello and Gray, also one by way of McDonough, Jackson, Indian Springs and Forsyth. This latter would double the congestion from Forsyth to Macon. But, Mr. Editor, you can't force traffic by law to go any particular road and therefore could not divide it equally between any two routes.

I have cited the above merely to illustrate what our highway department is now or soon will be "up against." There are many other similar situations in the state and I think it the part of wisdom to begin thinking over the situation and if possible be ready to meet whatever condition arises, not only with well prepared plans but with ample money to execute them with least possible delay.

"What Ails Hitler?"

BY KARL C. NARF
In New York Times.

It is decidedly discouraging to think that some time in the not so distant future when Hitler's great opponent shall pass away, or through age be incapacitated, Germany shall be at the mercy of one whose rise to power can only result in making a bad situation far worse and doubtless bring on another horrible war.

Small doubt is there that Adolf Hitler eagerly seeks to become another dictator and crush German freedom under his heel, unless among the millions who voted for General von Hindenburg there be another who can arouse the people to enthusiasm for law-abiding and righteous government. Asking what is back of Hitler's unreasoning prejudice against the Jewish people, if it be not political, I am reminded of the anecdote about the mischievous boys whose amusement lay in stoning some geese waddling about in the creek, and the irate German owner who stopped this performance with the query, "Boys, vats de matter mit dem goose; do dey dit you somedings?"

I recall that scientific research has discovered that criminal tendencies are the result of some irregular function of one of the glands "or sumpin"—and can be changed by the surgeon's knife. If this be so, then it is to be wished that Adolf Hitler be opened up to discover the source of his venomous disposition, and that the operator be called away and forget to put him together again.

"The Coming of Spring"

Among the branches of the pines gentle breezes are whispering, whispering secrets to the great evergreen forest. This is what they say:

"Spring is coming, spring is coming."

And the little snowbirds that have builded their homes in the foliage of the evergreen trees sing:

"Cheer up, cheer up! Spring is coming! Spring is coming!"

The merry children, as they play underneath the great pine trees, by the side of the gurgling brook, lift their silvery voices in gaiety and shout:

"Spring is coming! Spring is coming!"

Across the great and broad zenith the sun sails every day, sending down its softest rays so as to awaken the slumbering flowers and trees.

On a drear and lonely day the clouds brood over the whole earth, hiding the face of the smiling sun from view. But after a while the black clouds converse together in loud and rumbling tones, and say:

"We will pour water upon the heads of the little earthly plants, so that they will awaken from their dreams and be joyous."

So the clouds pour water upon the heads of the sleeping plants, and then swiftly fly to the land of nowhere.

Now we see King Sol as he smilingly looks down upon this old rocking world.

Listen! What is that we hear which sounds like the strings of a magic harp touched by an enchanted hand? It is a breeze which comes from the southern seas, and with it comes love, light and joy! The delicate little breeze draws nearer and nearer, until it rustles among the barren limbs of the great oak trees. And the breeze of spring lets its band of songbirds fall on the branches of bush and tree, but still it flies onward from tree to bush, from bush to tree, whispering its message of sprightliness and cheer.

The birds in the treetops sing their sweetest, the rippling brook ripples more merrily, the sun shines down more serenely, and the children laugh more gaily.

Presently the little violets peep from the bosom of Mother Earth, and shyly nod to the world about them; then the golden buttercups. Later the blue-eyed asters wave in the breeze of spring. And later the modest daisies hold up their bright heads and look toward the azure heavens. Out of the once barren limbs of the oak burst forth tiny green leaves. All the world is a great fair garden, and in it is blossoming its brightest flowers.

And the inhabitants of the world are happy, both man and beast.

Why is there everywhere joy and cheer? Because spring is here! Spring is here! The very best season in all the year!

Former Georgian Laments The Fact That Stealing a Kiss Has Become Crime

Editor Constitution: My surprise leaped all bounds when I read in today's dispatches that a beauty parlor manager in Atlanta had been fined for stealing a kiss from a Georgia girl.

I started my somewhat hectic life as a telegraph operator in the old Western Union, in the former Constitution building; spent my boyhood in Atlanta; traveled the state as a sophomore student for a pill factory; "pounded brass" during a flood in Rome's lovely domain, and in maturer years preached and lectured somewhat over the dominion of Georgia. And if I ever saw a Georgia girl who wasn't already too beautiful to be won by any mere man my eyes refused to reveal the fact.

Older now than then, I still can't cross Peachtree street without losing all recollection of where I originally intended to go, and I remember once I spent hours trying to get from the old Kimball house to the capitol, because so many ravishing beauties crossed my pathway that I chased after them—at a respectful, but eye-reaching, distance — wondering if "angels had come down to the earth in the form of women."

Arrest a man for stealing a kiss from an Atlanta beauty? No! You ought to turn that beauty man loose.

I was contemplating coming back to Atlanta with an idea of satisfying a life-long yearning to end my days in my boyhood town, but if it has become against the law to kiss an Atlanta beauty, why I simply won't come. I am afraid I'd be arrested the first hour I decamped from the train.

Florida Citizen Feels Garner Boom No Credit To Political 5th Grade

Editor Constitution: I am a stranger within your gates, being a visitor in your city the last few months. My home is in Miami, Fla., so I might claim with Paul that I am a citizen of no mean city.

Of course I am a Roosevelt man and have been for two years. I read your article about democrats and General Grant's citation, which is all true. The Garner boom is about the most ridiculous thing one could imagine. It doesn't do credit to the fifth grade in politics.

Mr. Garner is all right and doing good work where he is. To my mind that is one of the most important positions in the nation. We have suffered more from the abuse of this office than most any other thing.

I am in favor of instructed delegates and the abrogation of the two-thirds vote.

Your editorials are splendid.

Former Atlantan Pleased At Recall Effort Result

Editor Constitution: As a former resident of your delightful city, it was indeed gratifying to me to read in today's press reports the results of Tuesday's election, showing that the citizens of Atlanta are going to keep in office their efficient Mayor Key, and that he is not to be recalled because of the whims of those who condemn him for having the courage to publicly state that the prohibition law is a failure and cannot be enforced, facts which are beyond the veil of contradiction and are known to everyone.

What this country needs most at this time is more courageous and fearless leaders like the mayor of your fair city.

Holds Van Paassen Has Shown His Friendship For the German People

Editor Constitution: "How dare Pierre Van Paassen call Hitler a coward and a disgrace to Germany?" indignantly protest the Messrs. Felix Rapp, Hans von Pustau and Kurt Schwerin in a letter to The Constitution of March 18.

Further in their letter the gentlemen unloose a vicious attack on Van Paassen, referring to "his hate for anything German which speaks from his articles." The collective authorship of the letter goes even as far as branding Van Paassen "a dangerous half-intellectual," evidently for his allusion to Attila in the article that aroused the gentlemen's ire.

The letter gives a sadly distorted picture of Van Paassen as a hater of "anything German which speaks from his articles." This is not true.

Those who read Van Paassen's "World's Window" know his broad-minded, righteous, humane views and the sympathetic understanding with which he presents world affairs. He is one of the keenest political observers, possessing a vision that is almost prophetic. The charge that Van Paassen is a hater of "anything German" is a flagrant calumny!

I wish to refer the Messrs. Rapp, von Pustau and Schwerin to an article by Van Paassen, which appeared in The Constitution a few days ago, on von Hindenburg, in which Van Paassen expressed his sincere admiration for the great German who is destined to save the tottering reich from impending catastrophe.

On more than one occasion Van Paassen wrote about Germany's contribution, through centuries down to our own time, to the enrichment of spiritual and cultural life of the world. He knows the intellectual and moral greatness of the German people, that is why he has the courage to call Hitler a coward—for a man who orders an attack on the helpless men and women coming out from the house of worship can not be called anything else but a coward.

In the article which aroused the indignation of the authors of the letter, Van Paassen deplored the fact that alongside with Goethe and Schiller the Teutonic race gave the world Attila and Hitler.

Van Paassen's vilifyers hastened to brand him "a dangerous half-intellectual" for claiming Attila to be of the Teutonic origin. Yet, Attila (in German, Etzel), was a Hun of royal descent and a leader of the barbarians who had settled in Scythia and Hungary. He threatened the eastern Europe and twice compelled Theodosius II to purchase an inglorious peace. The Huns themselves esteemed Attila their bravest warrior and skillful general.

The attitude taken by the authors of the letter savours of the same militant chauvinism and contempt for fair play which led to the World War and its ruinous aftermath.

Churchill's Visit Brings Recollection to Atlantan Of Poor Chauncey Jerome

Editor Constitution: But for the lecture tour that has just brought to Atlanta Winston Churchill and his daughter, Miss Diana, this whimsical reminiscence would not have been written.

Way back in another century, when I was a lad of 12, I knew a man who classed, in the small town in which I lived, as a ne'er-do-well. He loved his cups; and his periodical sprees seemed to serve as milestones by which he reckoned his progress from year's end to year's end.

He rode a rickety lumber wagon, drawn by two spavined horses whose ribs, that almost pushed through their long, lean sides, bore witness to feed boxes scant and well-scraped.

But these meager assets enabled him to do odd jobs for the townfolk and to lend a feeble hand to any neighboring farmer that needed help in a busy season.

My father was the village parson. Our chief family assets was a small sorrel mare—Old Nell. At least, she was our most mobile asset. In her environment she should have been a sedate and contented Methodist, but she strayed often from the fold.

If I turned her into the yard for a run and a roll and a browse, always the highway beckoned, where the grasses were more lush and opportunity was greater for self-expression. Many an hour and many a mile I chased that provoking beast.

After one distinctly-remembered escape Old Nell apparently had gone to stay. For a week there was no news of her. Then word came that the poundmaster in a town 20 miles distant was holding her.

The ne'er-do-well was commissioned to go after her. Tied to the rear of his wagon she came meekly home.

Recently, nearly a thousand miles from that Illinois hamlet, I saw that man's grandniece chatting amiably, while an admiring group of Atlanta collegians stood about her.

And I heard that man's nephew in a happy speech win the plaudits of 3,000 college men at Georgia School of Technology.

It's a far cry from poor Chauncey Jerome to Winston Churchill—British soldier, litterateur and statesman. But they seemed to stand together before me today!

Churchill's mother, beautiful and brilliant Lady Randolph Churchill, was the daughter of Leonard Jerome, New York capitalist and sportsman, whose stables were the envy of every lover of fine horses in America.

It is understood in our community that Chancey Jerome was the $25-a-month beneficiary of Brother Leonard, the consideration being that the party of the first part should forever remain a stranger to New York city.

And because Old Nell played hookey for a week and poor old Chancey restored her to the parsonage barn in Roscoe, I have, through all the intervening years, cherished a peculiarly sentimental interest in the Churchill family; especially in Lady Randolph—till she passed on a little while ago—and in her distinguished son, recently Atlanta's charming visitor.

Thinks Garner Boosters Hold Voters of Georgia In Very Low Estimate

Editor Constitution: It seems to me that Judge Howard has a very low estimate of the voters of Georgia to suppose that they would turn over their votes to him, to use as he sees fit. He says he will pledge them to Garner, but who knows?

It is simply a "head-off Roosevelt" movement.

We all know there is no chance in the world to elect Mr. Garner. Some one of the republicans has said that "the democratic party will do the fool thing at the right time" and it looks as if he is trying to accomplish that saying. You cannot make me believe that the voters of Georgia will turn over their votes to any one individual to use as he sees fit.

Mr. Garner has allowed himself to be used as a tool to his own injury.

Leading Newspapers Praise Atlanta For Result of Recall Election

ATLANTA SETS AN EXAMPLE.
(From the New York Herald-Tribune)

The city of Atlanta, for refusing by a substantial majority to dismiss its outspoken and courageous mayor, deserves the commendation of the country. Perhaps the example it has set will encourage public officials generally in the belief that they have underestimated the admiration of the American people for intellectual honesty and what is known in the vernacular as "guts." Especially we would direct the demonstration to the attention of the house of representatives, at present debating the new revenue measure and soon to face demands for extravagant hand-outs to the veterans and other groups.

Mayor Key first inspired the recall movement against him—which he has now turned into a personal triumph—when he asserted in France last summer that prohibition was a failure and that a little wine for the stomach's sake was an excellent idea. On his return they began circulating a recall petition but were able to obtain only 1,500 signatures of the 5,000 necessary.

The movement seemed dead until Mayor Key ran afoul of organized labor in an effort to save his city some money on a public work. The unions insisted that the wage scale involved in the bid he accepted was too low, and the drys and labor joined forces to tear him from his throne.

Well, they put over their petition but not their recall election. The people of Atlanta had too much sense not to treasure an executive of Mr. Key's mettle. They rolled up the largest vote ever polled in a municipal contest there.

One may doubt that the prohibition issue was half so influential in causing this turnout as that of municipal economy. Atlanta, probably, has long since ceased to regard its dry minority seriously but is decidedly concerned about its cost of government and the whole problem of public finance. In this latter respect, at least, we believe it is representative, and in confirmation of this notion comes the news that in Milwaukee, too, the electorate established a record for the size of its vote, giving its mayor a plurality of more than 10,000 over the nearest of his four competitors as a tribute to his guardianship of the city's treasury. Throughout the country, it seems safe to say, officials and legislators who stand for refrenchment and balanced budgets, on the one hand against the harpy at the public crib and on the other against the tax-phobist, will find the bulk of citizens at their back.

THE MAYOR OF ATLANTA.
(From the New York Times.)

Mr. James L. Key, mayor of Atlanta, traveling in France last year and observing the gay sobriety of its inhabitants, took the liberty of saying that prohibition in the United States was a failure. The dry extreme left in his city was shocked almost into spasms. The head of a society of drys of the straitest sect started a movement for the mayor's recall, not for official incompetence or dishonesty, but for the expression of an opinion. Some canvassers of petitions are said to have resorted to copious forgery of signatures. Even so, less than a third of the necessary number could be had.

Then, without consulting the "locals," the executive board of the Atlanta Federation of Trades took a hand in the recall. Mayor Key, who reduced his own salary, has been seeking to prune expenditures and balance the city's budget. Faithful to those objects, he vetoed a measure, passed by the council at the bidding of the labor leaders, for an increase of wages on a city building contract. The sum involved was small. The mayor had every temptation to yield. He knew what opposition he was inviting. So enough wet labor names were added to those of the dry intransigents to force a recall election.

In that election Tuesday the drys were voting against freedom of speech. The persons influenced by the coterie of labor leaders were voting against economy. The first group sought to punish the mayor not for official commission or omission, but for opinion. The second group sought to punish him for doing his duty. By a majority of nearly 6,000 Atlanta voted to keep in office this honest and able administrator and courageous man.

From scanty facts large conclusions mustn't be drawn. Without venturing on any surmises as to the general feeling about prohibition in Georgia, the outlander is justified in cougratulating Atlanta. She has upheld toleration, at least on one subject. She has upheld municipal economy. She has refused to be bulldozed by the prohibition magnates or the lords of labor acting on their own motion without the consent of the various crafts. The promoters of the recall accomplished nothing but to cause unnecessary expense to the city whose finances Mayor Key is striving to retrieve and restore.

A GRATIFYING OUTCOME.
(From the Baltimore Sun.)

The recall election in Atlanta has attracted unusual attention because its chief purpose was to punish a mayor for having asserted, in an address made in France last year, his belief that prohibition was proving to be a failure. Other issues were involved, but the main fight was originated and engineered as a dry protest.

Of course, thousands of people who believe in prohibition do not approve such intolerance as dictated the fight on Mayor Key. Some of them were heard from prior to the Atlanta election and others voiced their protest in the large majority against his recall. The result is a gratifying example of public sanity and should serve as a warning to the fanatical fringe of prohibition, which for a long period, and especially in the south, held and used the power to wreak political vengeance upon any man, whatever his conscientious convictions in the matter, who did not bow down.

Coming on the heels of other developments which show that the people throughout the country have reached the point where they propose to look at the prohibition problem squarely, to discuss it not as a theory but as an experiment which must stand or fall on its merits, the Atlanta election has important significance.

ATLANTA STRONG FOR LIBERALISM.
(From the Brooklyn Eagle.)

Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, who permitted Sunday movies for charity, who forced salary reductions to balance the city budget and who publicly declared the prohibition law a failure, remains mayor of that city after a vote on a recall petition. He triumphs by 17,178 against 11,743. The result is of keen interest to all who are following shifts of public sentiment.

Atlanta, greatest city of the new south, stands squarely, unmistakably for liberalism. The head center of the Candler soft drinks concern, which has coined money out of the banning of beer, is not amenable to influences cognate to the fundamentalism of Dayton, Tenn. Atlanta has been stirring uneasily for a considerable time. She is now wholly awake.

All recent indications as to the urban unpopularity of the Volstead law, north and south, east and west, point to one conclusion: the cities, particularly the cities where education, art, music are making most progress, are opposed to existing legislation on liquor.

This is not to say that they are right. It is not to say that they are in a majority on a mass vote. That is a question yet to be settled. Whatever Atlanta may think or say or do, what the sovereign state of Georgia would do is a matter of uncertainty. Those who seek a general test are not greatly encouraged by recent developments.

Our Ailments and How We Can Best Cure and Prevent Them

Nervous Breakdowns.

(This is the 47th of a series of articles to be published in The Sunday Constitution, prepared under the auspices of the Fulton County Medical Society. They are being published by the society so that the public may have authentic medical information with special reference to health conditions in this section.)

Whenever anyone begins to react unduly to his surroundings and to the persons with whom he may be compelled to live, it is customary to say that he is about to have, or is in the midst of, a "nervous breakdown."

As Dr. L. F. Barker has recently stated, a nervous breakdown may include such states of mental and nervous disturbances as are included by neurasthenia with insomnia, inability to concentrate the mind on any topic, and unusually easy fatigue; hysteria with convulsions or simulated paralysis; anxiety neurosis with restlessness, unusual sensations of palpitation of the heart and unwarranted apprehensions; or a psychasthenic state with doubts, fears, obsessions and inability to make decisions. It may include most actual forms of insanity, such as psychosis, dementia and paranoia; and finally such actual diseases of the nervous system as hemorrhage of the brain, paresis, epidemic inflammation of the brain, or brain tumor.

The term "nervous breakdown" may, therefore, include almost any form of nervous and mental diseases. If properly limited it would involve only persons who are temporarily unequal to the demands of ordinary life. They are temporarily, or perhaps permanently in some instances, misfits in family life, in school life, or in the business world with which they deal. It remains for the physician to determine the extent to which the person is suffering from some major or minor mental disturbance, and to what extent he is merely badly adjusted to his neighbor and to his environment.

Among the causes of nervous breakdown the physician is likely to list first any hereditary tendency to nervous and mental instability. There seems to be no doubt that some families incline more to such weakness than do others. Of course, from the scientific point of view, it is very difficult to allot any definite portion to heredity, and environmental influences may date back to the period of early infancy and even later childhood, and therefore seem to be a hereditary influence. No doubt, improper feeding of the infant and poor care during the early years of life may so weaken the general constitution as to make the child unusually susceptible to facts that affect his nervous and mental condition.

Then, too, infectious diseases of childhood, inadequate diet and unusual strain placed upon the child by over-ambitious parents may play a large part in undermining his mental condition. Indeed, Dr. Barker sees in the present trend of life a menace to stable minds in the future. He says: Over-ambition and the intensity of the economic and social struggle, "burning the candle at both ends," and insane quest of "pleasures," foolish attempts to put a week of normal life into 24 hours of feverish overactivity, the demand for sensational literature and music, for rapid transportation and for violent stimuli of all sorts—all are conducive to aggravation of the wear and tear of the nervous system.

From a discussion of the causes that have been mentioned, the methods of prevention and treatment of nervous breakdowns should be obvious. Proper attention to heredity, to the prevention of injury to the germ cells and to the infant developing before its birth, as well as proper attention to parental and prenatal hygiene and to child training, will do much to lower the number of persons that will have to be treated for nervous breakdowns in the future.

As for the present, Dr. Barker says:

"A great many breakdowns, both physical and mental, could be prevented if the growing practice of resorting to the family physician, to a consultant, or to a diagnostic group for a health examination on the birthday anniversary each year were to become general. Developing disturbances could then be detected in their incipiency, a preventive or curative regimen if needed could be immediately prescribed, and in many instances a serious illness or even a tragedy might be averted."

SPRING'S FIRST SMILE

Translation of Theophile Gautier's "Le Premier Sourire du Printemps" by George A. Albro.

While to their tasks unworthy and vain
Men rush in a frenzy of daring,
March, who is laughing in spite of the rain,
In secret the spring is preparing.

Then for the Michaelmas daisies so bright,
While all are asleep in the cold,
Their collars of petals he paints pink and white
And buttercups fashions of gold.

Into the orchard and vineyard at night,
An elfin so sly and at ease,
With a swan's-down puff like the hoarfrost light
He powders the almond trees.

All nature reposes in bed, Unseen
Down in the garden he goes,
And into their corsets of velvety green
He laces the buds of the rose.

While softly he whistles a tuneful air
To the birds that around him fly,
He plants in the meadow the snowdrops fair,
In the wood the violets shy.

Down by the spring where the watercress grows
And, listening, drinks the young deer,
From a hand concealed little lilies he sows
With their silvery bells so clear.

Where in the grass you may find it with ease
He scatters the strawberry red,
And covers the trees with clustering leaves
As a sunshade green for your head.

Then as his reign now draws to a close
And all of his work is well done,
On the threshold of April he says as he goes,
"Now, Springtime, O now you may come."

The Happenings of The Church World

BY HERMAN L. TURNER
Pastor, Covenant Presbyterian Church, Atlanta.

The Southern Baptist convention will hold its annual meeting this year at St. Petersburg, Fla., May 11-17.

This will be the seventy-seventh session of the convention. The convention sessions will be held in the Coliseum on Mirror lake. The Woman's Missionary Union meetings will be held at the Congregational church, May 11-12. The Northern Baptist convention will meet at San Francisco, July 12-17. The general theme of the period will be "Shall We Be Christians?" The Methodist Episcopal Church, North, will hold its 1932 conference in Atlantic City, beginning April 30. The opening sermon will be preached by Bishop William F. McDowell. The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. (Southern), will meet at Montreat, N. C., May 26, and the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. (Northern) will meet at Denver, Colo., on this same date. The Associate Reformed Presbyterian synod will meet at Rock Hill, S. C., April 27. Many important issues will come before these great church courts.

The Commission on International Justice and Goodwill of the Brooklyn Federation of Churches (N. Y.) is carrying on a vigorous educational campaign on the conflict between China and Japan. It is circulating among church people a referendum on an eight-point peace program adopted by a conference of 20 prominent leaders of national peace societies.

The "Back to God Society" in Chicago has announced its organization to "enlist the co-operation of every Protestant denomination in the country not only to fill the pews of churches made vacant by the religious slump of recent years, but to cause the people to think more in the Christian spirit."

The organization of a committee headed by Jane Addams, Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University; Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, and others of national prominence, to care for the children in the stricken soft-coal mining districts of Kentucky, West Virginia and southern Illinois, has been announced by the newly established International Save the Children Fund of America, with headquarters at New York city. The immediate aim of the fund is to provide clothing and medical aid for at least 20,000 destitute children. Deaths have already occurred as the result of scanty clothing and undernourishment. While some new field of labor must be found for these people eventually, the immediate task is to care for the children growing amidst poverty, ignorance, idleness, hopelessness, with no vocational schools near by to teach them trades. The miners are of old American pioneer stock, and the boys and girls can be made useful members of society—if their lives are saved.

The Editorial Council of the Religious Press, composed of representative editors from the denominations, will hold its session this year at Washington, D. C., April 29-30. Among the subjects to be discussed is, "What Attitude Shall We Take Toward the 1932 Campaign?". "The Weakness of the Denominational Press" will be considered.

The late Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the Austrian surgeon so well known through his remarkable feats of bloodless surgery, was questioned by a reporter as to the effect of his scientific investigations on his religious faith. He answered as follows: "Does medical science, or any other science, tend to destroy belief in God? My friend, you are young. I am old. Science, truly pursued, does not tend to destroy belief in God. The pursuit of scientific knowledge makes an honest man humble. It makes him realize how little he knows. It makes him believe in God."—Watchman-Examiner.

The American Lutheran is authority for the statement that the Lutheran churches of United States and Canada have made an increase of 125,642 baptized members in two years. Over against this gain is the sobering thought that contributions to benevolences decreased over thirteen hundred thousand dollars during the last year.

A recent sale of rare manuscripts in New York included a number of volumes of great value. They were from the library of the Marquis of Lothian. One, known as the Tikytt Psalter, illuminated in the fourteenth century, brought $61,000. A copy of the first dated edition of the Bible and the earliest example of a book formally divided into two volumes, sold for $19,000. This book was printed in 1462. A copy of St. Augustine's City of God, an illuminated vellum manuscript of the fifteenth century, brought $31,000. A Latin Bible of the twelfth century went for $7,000. A rare Anglo-Saxon manuscript nearly 1,000 years old and said to be the only original Anglo-Saxon document in this country, was sold for $55,000. Its title is "Blickling Homilies."—Christian Advocate.

Do we have too many ministers? The Presbyterian makes this comment: "Not many years ago the lack of young men entering the ministry was commented upon and real efforts were made to gather recruits. Now we are told that there is a surfeit of ministers. A very wise friend told us a year ago that every financial depression begets a large crop of divinity students, and referred to the years following 1893. Whether it was true in the time succeeding the serious depression of 1907, we do not know. There may be two causes for this increase of ministers, one good, the other not so good. It is possible that financial depression turns minds to higher and more spiritual interests and young men are affected. It may be that with less opportunities in the business world, young men seek the ministry as a means of livelihood. We do not believe there can be too many ministers of the right sort, but there may easily be too many if their object be maintenance and such other benefits as fall to a worthy minister."

The First Baptist church or Washington, D. C., is having special services each Sunday and Thursday for a month in celebration of its 130th anniversary. It was organized March 7, 1802, and, therefore,, in a sense, is the mother church of the 113 white and colored Baptist congregations in the District of Columbia. (There are 87 colored Baptist churches!) This is said to have the largest membership of any Protestant group in the national capital, and also surpasses the Roman Catholic membership by 6,500 when the children under 13 of their church are deducted from the total Roman Catholic population.

Feels That Back-to-Farm Movement Would Not Only Aid the Unemployed But Redound to Betterment of Farming

Editor Constitution: If ever the "back to the farm" movement should receive consideration, it is at the present time. In fact, judging by the number of articles that are appearing in our newspapers and magazines and the reports from different parts of the country, especially in the south, the idea of shifting as many of the unemployed as possible to the country to raise their own food is rapidly gaining momentum.

This unemployment is not a mere transitory situation that we may expect to disappear overnight by a sudden and magical surge in the stock market, or by the dictum or fiat of a president, or a change in the political complexion in Washington. It is a deep-rooted, world-wide, complex economic problem that will require the best thought and the highest type of leadership to correct.

Excess of labor in a progressive and virile country like ours denotes inexperience and short-sightedness to a large extent on the part of those who are supposed to have vision. Our country is lacking in a flexible labor system. We have been taken by surprise and off our guard, hoping Micawber-like, that something would turn up heaven-born from somewhere, out in the thin ether, and we have been doing many things in a hysterical way without as yet getting very much closer to a real remedy. Although the plan of shifting a large portion of the unemployed to the country may not be an immediate cure for unemployment, it unquestionably contains the elements of flexibility of the labor market that nothing else offers at this time. Such a plan, if intelligently formulated and worked out, will act like a great reservoir and storage plant.

France his, until recently, suffered less from the trying economic period through which the whole world is passing. One of the most important reasons is due to a minimum of unemployment. The surplus population in France from Switzerland and other neighboring countries that aided in the task of rehabilitation, were by agreement returned to their native countries when there was no further need of their services. In other words, the labor market in France was not thrown out of gear during the later post-war period. The balance was not disturbed to the same extent as in other European countries.

France is a country where the balance between agriculture and industry is generally maintained, due to causes that cannot be gone into here and causes that may not be applicable to conditions in our country. The fact, nevertheless, still remains that unless some elastic plan is devised to regulate the ebb and flow, the ups and downs of our manpower, conditions of employment are not apt to improve soon, and will not be prevented or at least mitigated, in the near future. Furthermore, the time is ripe for the building of an improved and comprehensive agricultural program, especially in the south, and there is every reason of taking advantage of the present congestion of the labor market to inaugurate such a program.

Agriculture should be carried on in a bigger, better and a broader way, commensurate with the progress in other lines of business. We must begin to think in larger terms, in hundreds and thousands of acres, co-operation, consolidation, capital organization and the highest type of business sagacity, the finest and most unselfish leadership must prevail. Notwithstanding that the prices of all farm products have sunk to a very low level, in fact, below the present cost of production, the idea of our surplus population migrating to the rural districts and thereby contributing to the already overproduction and lowering of prices may seem absurd.

It does not signify that the occupancy of the idle acres by our unemployed need come in competition with our established farm population already having a hard time in earning a living. In the end such a scheme should redound to the betterment of all farming by applying the most modern methods and establishing a standard that would be stimulating and helpful. Furthermore, these new tillers of the soil, at least during the experimental stages, would simply be expected to raise their own food and build their own shelter without placing their surplus products on the market. Such surplus products could be turned over to the various eleemosynary institutions.

In order to get this "back to the farm" unemployment movement started, a meeting should be called by the chamber of commerce, to which a limited number of citizens representative of the business, welfare, charitable and agricultural interests should be invited. After a thorough discussion, a committee should be appointed to make a survey of the whole question, upon which, I am sure, a feasible plan could be formulated that would do much to alleviate a condition that is steadily growing more acute and unworthy of our boasted civilization.

Quarter of Billion Dollars Invested In Women's Colleges in United States

This is the third of a series of articles on women's colleges in America prepared by a committee from the Southern Association of Colleges for Women.

What is the status of the separate colleges for women in the United States? How many of these institutions are there? How are they controlled and supported? How many young women are they educating? What are their resources? What part are they playing in the higher education of women? Is their influence and usefulness in providing educational opportunity to the young women of this country growing or declining? A brief survey of the colleges for women in the United States will throw some light upon these interesting questions.

A preceding article has dealt with the services which the separate colleges for women have rendered to the cause of women's education in the past. The separate colleges for women initiated and pioneered higher education for women several decades before the first co-educational institution, Oberlin College, opened its doors to them. Elizabeth College in Mississippi, the Troy Female Seminary in New York, the Hartford Seminary in Massachusetts, Judson Female Institute in Alabama, Mt. Holyoke in Massachusetts, the Georgia Female Institute, now Wesleyan College, and many other less well-known institutions for women were established between 1819 and 1837.

Although Oberlin College began as a co-educational college in 1837, co-education was not taken up by other institutions until after 1850. The separate institutions for women amply demonstrated that the higher education of women was both possible and practical. When this position was conclusively established by the separate schools for women, colleges for men began to open their doors to the other sex. The higher education of women no doubt would have been delayed many decades had it not been for these early institutions designed for and patronized by women only.

Professor Thomas Woody has divided the higher education of women into four periods: "(1) preparation for home duties, (2) cultivation of formal gentility and grace for their social value, through a variety of accomplishments, (3) discipline of the mental powers so that women might be ready for any emergency in life, and (4) more specific preparation for a variety of professional opportunities." The separate institutions for women initiated and pioneered each of these phases of the higher education of women before their adoption by the co-educational colleges.

Valuable Service.

Not only have the women's colleges rendered invaluable service to the cause of the higher education of women in the past but they are rendering outstanding service at present and are destined to increase their influence in the future. This present service is largely included under two heads: (1) the pioneering of new types of higher education designed to meet the peculiar needs of women, and (2) offering college training of a high type to a considerable proportion of the college women of this country.

According to the College Blue Book there are at present 135 four-year colleges exclusively for women in the United States and 82 junior colleges. Of the 135 four-year colleges, 122 are classified as liberal arts colleges, nine as teachers' colleges, three as technological institutions and one as a medical college. All of these institutions are accredited by either state, sectional, or national accrediting associations. Ninety-nine of them are accredited by sectional or national associations in addition to the state associations.

The four-year colleges for women are divided as to type of control as follows: Seventy-nine of the liberal arts colleges are controlled by religious denominations, 32 by non-sectarian boards, nine by the state, one by a city, and one college does not give its control; six of the nine teachers' colleges are controlled by the state and three by cities; one of the three technological schools is controlled by a state and two by non-sectarian boards; the medical college, the Women's Medical College of Pennsylvania, is a private institution aided by the state.

The 135 four-year colleges enrolled as students over 80,000 women in 1928. Of these students the liberal arts colleges claimed nearly 70,000, the teachers' colleges slightly more than 7,000, and the medical and technical colleges slightly under 4,000. The average enrollment in these 135 institutions was 563 students.

Largely because of the fact that co-education is a comparatively recent movement and the number of women students enrolling in colleges originally patronized exclusively by men increased very rapidly during the early stages of the movement, the idea that the women's colleges of the present are not holding their own in comparison with the enrollment of women in co-educational colleges is rather generally held. This assumption does not seem to be substantiated by facts disclosed by a recent survey of 45 of the 55 women's colleges belonging to the Southern Association of Women's Colleges. In these 45 colleges there were 3,349 college grade women students in 1901, 5,767 in 1911, 12,924 in 1921, 22,988 in 1928. The value of the buildings and grounds of these colleges represents an investment of approximately $49,000,000, of which $13,000,000 was added during the past five years. This phenomenal increase in enrollment and investment in this group of colleges is likely paralleled in other sections of the country. At present almost half of the young women attending liberal arts colleges in this area are in the women's colleges, the proportion being approximately 33,000, against 36,000 in the co-educational colleges and universities.

It's Results That Count

And Constitution Want Ads DO Get Results

Folks who read The Constitution soon form the habit of reading the want ads. Because they invariably find some item, some bargain or business opportunity or proferred service that fits in precisely with one of their needs.

Your Market Place

The want ad section of The Constitution is Atlanta's real market place, where everyone gathers with something to buy, sell or exchange. That's why Constitution want ads are natural result getters.

HICKMAN DENIES GUILT IN COMPANY LOSSES

CLEVELAND, March 19.—(AP)—Denial of any guilt in alleged losses of $600,000 suffered by customers, stockholders and creditors of the Brotherhood Watch and Jewelry Company was made today by Joseph C. Hickman, its former active head.

Hickman pleaded not guilty when arraigned on a charge of obtaining signatures by false pretenses. He was held on $15,000 bond.

Most of the losers in the concern were members of railroad brotherhoods.

Cotton Prices Turn Downward

NEW YORK, March 19.—After holding fairly steady for three weeks, cotton prices turned downward this past week. At the close on Friday, the active contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange showed net declines for the week of 21 to 26 points. The March contract was quoted at 6.69 at Friday's close compared with 6.90 the week previous. May at 6.74 against 6.99, July at 6.91 against 7.17, October at 7.14 against 7.38, December at 7.29 against 7.54, and January at 7.39 against 7.61.

Most of the decline came at the week-end and was attributed largely to the reported proposal to sell a large amount of farm board cotton in foreign markets on credit. It was feared that this would interfere with sales by shippers and bear down on values abroad. Other bearish factors were the break in sugar to new low levels and recessions in wheat and stocks. The recent cold wave in the south came in for attention, on the ground that it may have reduced the number of hibernating weevils.

Sustaining factors included a report of the New York Cotton Exchange Service putting world consumption of American cotton in the first half of this season at 6,150,000 bales compared with 5,377,000 a year ago, and exports this week of 289,000 bales against 154,000 in the same week last season.

PROFITS INCREASE FOR CITIES SERVICE IN MONTH'S TIME

Net earnings of Cities Service Company for February, 1932, showed a slight increase over the same month last year, amounting to $3,263,762. Net stocks and reserves increased 3 per cent and net to common stock and reserves 5 per cent over February, 1931.

Earnings of the company's public utility properties for February were satisfactory, and reflected a slight gain in both gross and net over the previous month.

The oil producing properties of the company are being operated at a high degree of efficiency and expenses are being held to a minimum. Production costs for February showed a marked decrease from the same month last year. At the present time, subsidiaries are doing only such drilling as offset requirements and the protection of company holdings demand. The volume of oil transported by the pipe line properties during the month was greater than during the same month last year.

Regular monthly dividends of 50c on the preferred and preference B B stocks, 5c on the preference B stock, 2 1-2c in cash and 1-2 of 1 per cent in stock on the common stock were announced, all payable May 2 to stockholders of record April 15.

ARLINGTON COUNTY COURT-HOUSE, Va., March 19.—(AP)—E. Wade Ball, former treasurer of Arlington county, and F. J. Hallock, former clerk of the Arlington county school board, were arrested this morning on charges of grand larceny on a warrant issued by Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas.

Both were arraigned by Judge B. M. Hedrick in county court, pleaded not guilty, waived preliminary hearing, and were held on bond of $5,000 each.

Ball immediately made bond, but Hallock had not been released at a late hour.

The arrests were the result of alleged shortage in county accounts.

Made Deaf and Dumb by Explosion, Boy Restored by Modern Miracle

Modern miracles apparently have not been so hard hit by the depression. You can ask Jack Evans, 18-year-old College Park lad. Even though it took his job, it was the depression period that brought him back his voice and hearing.

A nitro explosion at an oil well in west Texas six months ago shell-shocked the boy and left him completely deaf and dumb. Treatment by a New York specialist failed to restore the lost faculties. He got a job at gardening on returning home, but it flickered out last week along with others in this terrain.

"I know I could hold a job if I could hear and talk again," Jack wrote on his pad to a businessman who had heard of his case.

"Let's consult an Atlanta specialist," this man suggested.

In the Medical Arts building a kindly surgeon took the boy in hand. He applied electric current Saturday to Jack's wrists and forehead.

"Does the current burn you?" the surgeon kept repeating from behind the patient, while the nurse applied the treatment.

One minute after the current was turned on, Jack twisted around in his chair to face the surgeon.

"Were you speaking to me?" he said in clear, distinct tone.

"Sure, I was speaking to you. Does it burn you?"

"Why, no," said Jack. "It only hits like a hammer on my forehead."

He has been talking and hearing in normal degree since that moment, he says.

"Now I want that job—and how!"

He lives with his grandfather at Harrison road and Cambridge avenue, College Park.

The surgeon reported that no doubt existed in his mind about the boy's condition before the treatment. An examination, scientific in every respect, proved this.

"He could neither hear nor speak a word," he said. "He probably was still suffering from hysteria brought on by the shock of the explosion. Electric treatment and his confidence in it apparently overcame this condition."

JACK EVANS.

NATIONAL URBAN LEAGUE WEEKLY BULLETIN

BY JESSE O. THOMAS.

Continuing the discussion centered around the religion of the negro, the 27-Club Forum Council is presenting Dr. W. M. Y. Bell, of Gammon Theological Seminary as its second speaker of the religious series.

It will be recalled that Howard Thurman, of Morehouse and Spelman Colleges was the first speaker the forum council presented, who spoke on "The Kind of Religion the Negro Needs in Times Like These." Dr. Bell's subject will be "The Kind of Religious Leader the Negro Needs in Times Like These."

The speaker is widely known in religious and educational circles throughout America. He has had considerable experience as pastor and teacher. Dr. Bell is well equipped to discuss a subject of this kind because of his training and the fact that he has been such a close student of the religious development of the negro. He did his undergraduate work at Lane College, Jackson, Tenn.; his theological training was secured at Northwestern University and he received his Doctor of Philosophy degree from Yale University. He did an outstanding piece of religious and social work as pastor of the Williams Institutional C. M. E. church, New York city. He represented his denomination at the world's conference at Stockholm, Sweden, a few years ago.

The type of religious leader the present age demands will be ably described by this international character Sunday afternoon, March 27, in the main auditorium of the First Congregational church. Go to your calendar and stick a pin in 4 o'clock p. m. You remember at the other forum meeting there were a number of people unable to get seats. This reminder might suggest to you to come early, "if you do not want to stand up for the cause."

A Macon branch of the National Urban League has been organized with W. T. Anderson, of the Macon Telegraph, as executive head. Associated with Editor Anderson on the board of directors is a large number of the most public-spirited white and colored citizens.

Macon is one of the few cities of its size which has neither Y. M. nor Y. W. C. A. or either standardized social service agencies working for and among colored people.

With the coming of this interracial enterprise, there is visualized the dawn of a new day in the social welfare status of the negro as reflected in the uniform opinion of many of its leaders.

The advent of the Atlanta World, a negro tri-weekly, into journalistic circles as a daily publication, represents a degree of business acumen, industry and courage on the part of the editor and publisher, W. A. Scott.

The evolution through which the paper has come from a one-day-a-week to a seven-day-a-week organ in so brief a while is epoch-making in the field of racial journalism. Much credit must go to the staff personnel, the news gathering and contributing agencies and the distributing forces.

With the accumulated experience and technique gained during these months of association, this unique organization should make new history for the colored fourth estate as a public opinion building and a sentiment reflecting agency.

KIN OF WASHINGTON TO BE BLOSSOM QUEEN

WINCHESTER, Va., March 19.—(AP)—Miss Helen Ames Washington, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lafayette Washington, of Overbrook, Philadelphia, will reign as "Queen Shenandoah, the Ninth" over the annual Shenandoah apple blossom festival here this spring.

The festival will be held two days while thousands of apple orchards of the Shenandoah, Cumberland and Potomac valleys are in full bloom, which, in normal seasons, is about the first of May. The festival dates will not be determined upon until 10 days before the celebration is held.

Miss Washington is a collateral descendant of George Washington, whose bicentennial birthday is being celebrated this year. Blossom festival authorities said they considered it appropriate to have a member of the Washington family as reigning queen of the fete, which will have a colonial setting and background.

MIAMI CUTS SALARIES TO REDUCE EXPENSES

MIAMI, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—Pay roll reductions and other economies were ordered today by the Miami city commission in an attempt to reduce the city's operating budget $160,000 between now and July 1.

Each employe, with the exception of day laborers, will be required to take a reduction of two weeks of pay. This includes the commissioners. Whether the reductions will be spread over a period or made at one time, will be left to department heads, the commission decided. The salary cuts will amount to about $48,000. L. L. Lee, city manager, said.

Plans for other reductions were not announced.

NO LIFE IMMUNE AS ANOTHER'S MEAL, SAYS SCIENTIST

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(UP)—Probably no living creation is immune from serving as the dinner for another. It's a great world but a hungry one, judging from a Smithsonian Institution report announced today. Even the skunk is considered a delicacy by the wise horned owl.

The Smithsonian's report, the result of a study of stomachs made by W. L. McAtee, of the biological survey, goes far toward refuting a pet theory of older evolutionists—the theory of survival through natural selection.

Natural defense, be it shell, smell, sting, color or even a mosquito netting, doesn't mean much, according to McAtee. The more of a kind there are the more of it gets eaten. Among insects and animals, the mortality of a group is in strict proportion to its abundance, he insists. He turned thousands of things inside out to prove it.

Though the inner region of fish, reptiles, amphibians and mammals did not escape his curious, scientific eye, McAtee spent most of his time on birds and bugs. He compared the number of bugs outside of birds to those inside. What he found indicated that to live to a ripe, old age, a bug—be it hard or soft, mean or mild—has just got to be lucky.

ROSZIKA DECIDES TO BE 'PLAYMATE' TO THIRD HUSBAND

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Roszika Dolly, who tripped into her third matrimonial venture Wednesday, is prepared to be "a playmate, not a drudge" to her new husband, Irving Netcher, vice president and part owner of a Chicago department store.

"Men want companions when they marry," declared the dancer, theorizing in the midst of billowy chiffon and lace in a pink boudoir. "They want their wives to play, to be merry and happy, not to take life too seriously."

The Dolly sister, who has divorced two previous husbands, but says she is still "good friends" with both, is hopeful that this marriage will "take."

"You see, I've had experience," she said. "I think I know men. I've tried marriage before, so I should be better qualified to make this marriage successful."

The bride was insistent about her friendship with husband No. 1, Jean Schwartz, song writer, and No. 2, son of the late Sir Mortimer Davis, Canadian multi-millionaire.

"But let's not talk about past husbands," she said. Then, waving at Netcher, who came in briefly during the interview, she murmured, "isn't he a darling?"

The Agnes Scott chapter of Phi Beta Kappa received into membership seven alumnae from the class of 1917, according to Mrs. S. G. Stukes, president of the local chapter. They are: Mrs. Samuel Inman Cooper, of Atlanta; Mrs. Franklin Greene Balch Jr., of Jamaica Plain, Mass.; Miss Janet Newton, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Richard Catlett, of Kellyville, Okla.; Miss Margaret B. Pruden, of Batesville, Ark.; Mrs. James B. Parsons, of Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. J. A. Moses, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. Samuel Inman Cooper, of 1325 Peachtree road, who before her marriage was Miss Augusta Skeen, assistant professor of chemistry at Agnes Scott College, has collaborated with Dr. Sam Guy, of Emory University, in preparation of a chemistry book, recently published. Mrs. Cooper is now president of the Atlanta chapter of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association.

"IRON LUNG" GIRL SENT TO ROOSEVELT RESORT

CHICAGO, March 19.—(AP)—Frances McGann, "iron lung" girl, who, as a student nurse in a hospital, contracted infantile paralysis and was forced to spend many days in a respirator, over a year ago, has gone to Warm Springs, Ga., to complete her recuperation.

DULUTH BOY PARTLY RECOVERED FROM SIEGE

MINNEAPOLIS, March 19.—(AP)—For nearly six months a 14-year-old boy has spent his nights in a respirator, and many of the days, too.

Suffering from infantile paralysis affecting respiratory organs, David Savage, of Duluth, is improving slowly at the University of Minnesota hospital.

He spends most of his days in a wheel chair now, but returns to the respirator at nightfall, to remain from 10 to 12 hours.

DR. HURT ACCEPTS UNION U. PRESIDENCY

JACKSON, Tenn., March 19.—(AP)—Dr. John Jeter Hurt, pastor of the First Baptist church here, today accepted the presidency of Union University, to which he was elected by the board of trustees last month.

Dr. Hurt announced he would accept the presidency following a meeting of the executive committee. He will assume his duties on June 1. Dr. Hurt succeeds Dr. H. E. Watters, who resigned last year to accept the presidency of Georgetown College, Georgetown, Ky.

READY-BUILT HOUSE IS NOW ON MARKET

CHICAGO, March 19.—Building a home may soon become as simple as buying an automobile! All you will need to do is to go to your lumber dealer's, choose the house to fit your taste and bank account from an assortment of pictures and floor plans—each tagged with a price that covers everything from foundation to shingles—sign an order and, presto, your home will be erected complete to the last detail.

A plan designed to enable the nation's 20,000 lumber dealers to sell home construction in this simple fashion was made public today by C. E. Stedman, vice president of The Celotex Company. The plan is advocated as a logical step in the nation-wide effort to stimulate home building.

"The plan is so simple," declares Mr. Stedman, "that every lumber dealer in the country can use it. We are supplying all dealers wishing to use the plan with pictures, detailed drawings and specifications of houses of various sizes designed by well-known architects. With the co-operation of local contractors, these dealers will determine an exact price for which each type of home can be sold. The dealer alone, or with the contractors, can make arrangements for the most attractive form of local financing. The fact that all the dwellings are of standard construction will simplify financing arrangements.

"When a man wants to buy a home he simply selects the one he wants from the lumber dealer's display. Selection and buying is made easy for him because he will know the exact price of each model and the financing terms available.

"The advantages of the plan, to me, are obvious. The prospective buyer deals only with one person, the lumber dealer. He knows exactly what each home will cost. For the buyer, this eliminates the danger of discovering, after his home is completed, that it has cost more than he has anticipated or can afford.

"For the stimulation of home building, the most important feature of the plan is that it will enable reputable lumber dealers to advertise complete homes at standard prices. These newspaper advertisements illustrating specific houses to be built at specific prices will sell the public on the advantages of home ownership quicker than will thousands of columns of printed matter on the low cost of building materials. Such advertisements may, for example, show graphically that today a particular house can be built for $5,000 that four years ago would have cost $7,500. Such newspaper advertising is the key to the sucsess of the plan.

"We know the public will buy when home building is presented on this basis. A few lumber dealers are already using it. Hundreds of others are requesting information on the procedure to use. The plan is designed to operate only in the low-price field where the services of the architect are seldom employed. Costs of course will vary with every locality, but the homes will, in general, sell for from $3,500 to $10,000. The plan should mean an improvement of dwellings in this class.

"The plan does not interfere with the normal business of the contractor or the building tradesman because both are an integral part of it and will benefit by it. Complete homes are not the only items included. The plan also will provide for the sale of repair and remodeling work on the same basis. Garages and various small farm buildings are also included. Altogether, the plan covers every small scale building operation.

"The simplification of home buying which I believe this plan provides, together with the $10,000,000,000 of additional credits it is estimated the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will make available should do much to re-create normal activity in the home building field."

SECURITY COMPANY ANNOUNCES CHANGES

With an enlarged personnel, the Southern Security Company, with headquarters at 204 Peachtree Arcade, Saturday announced plans for expanding its operations, and in addition to its already extended loan service to individuals and heads of families will provide unusual accommodations in refinancing auto loans. The announcement was made by B. L. Lassiter, manager of the company.

"Rounding out our fifteenth year in business and constantly expanding our facilities in handling industrial loans, we have found that automobile owners in refinancing loans wish a quick and dependable service, free from red tape and delay," Mr. Lassiter said. "While we have from time to time made such loans, there was no special department for it. In the future this particular line of financing will be given our special attention."

Operated under the supervision of the state banking department, the Southern Security Company makes loans to be repaid in monthly installments over a period of months that works, no inconvenience or hardship on the borrower, Mr. Lassiter said.

RAZING OF MINT, OLD LANDMARK, HOTLY OPPOSED

Opposing the threatened destruction of the second oldest mint building in the United States, established in 1835 at Charlotte, N. C., the executive committee of the American Institute of Architects has adopted a resolution urging the preservation of the building "not only as a local but also as a national cultural influence."

The Charlotte mint building was established at the same time as the mint in New Orleans. It was burned and rebuilt in 1844. There is danger that it may be torn down because it adjoins the United States postoffice, to which an addition is shortly to be built.

"There is ample property on which to build the proposed postoffice addition without interfering with the mint building," declares the committee, asking government officials and local organizations of citizens to refrain from taking action which would result in the needless destruction of the landmark.

The proposal to demolish the mint illustrates the menacing tendency to do away with interesting old structures under the misguided notion that they detract from the appearance of new buildings, according to Leicester B. Holland, chief of the division of fine arts of the Library of Congress, and chairman of the committee on preservation of historic buildings of the institute.

"A certain enterprising business element is anxious to have it removed in order to display the new structure to better advantage," Mr. Holland says. "Another element which would like to preserve the building as a local museum has appealed to the American Institute of Architects for help in saving it.

"The greatest menace to the preservation of old buildings in depreciated neighborhoods, however, continues to be the lover of antiques. In Charleston, the Manigault house, which the committee for safeguarding Charleston architecture has been unable to purchase for lack of funds, is in danger.

"In Philadelphia the Powel house was only saved from being torn down to make an outdoor parking space by the activity of Miss Frances A. Wister in organizing the Philadelphia Society for the Preservation of Landmarks to purchase it—some years after one room had been transferred to the Metropolitan Museum and another to the Philadelphia Art Museum.

"In Baltimore recently the new Baltimore Art Museum has installed as a memorial gift a room taken from "The Abbey," at Chestertown, on the eastern shore of Maryland, despite frantic efforts of the locality to retain it in place."

HEARING IS OPENED ON HOME LOAN BILL

The house hearing on the home loan bank bill began on March 16 in Washington. The association, which is strongly behind the proposed measure, will call witnesses who will describe the necessity for the establishment of the banks, the sole business of which would be the discounting to financing institutions of first mortgages on urban homes.

The association probably will call some of the same witnesses that testified at the senate hearing held last month.

Michael K. Reilly, democrat, Wisconsin, is chairman of the subcommittee of the house committee on currency and banking that will hear the bill.

FIFTEEN GIVEN JOBS BY CIGAR MAKERS

Fifteen men have been employed by the Caperetta Cigar Company, 1544 Boulevard, N. E., within the past 30 days, it was announced Saturday. The "Caperetta" brand has been manufactured in Atlanta for the last three years and, with its increasing popularity, a company has been organized to exploit the sale over a large territory, the announcement said. More than a hundred dealers in Georgia now are handling the cigar, which is made in 5 and 10 cent sizes.

Hugh E. Barnes, manager of the factory, has had more than 35 years experience in the manufacture of cigars. He received his early training with the S. Valdes Company, of Atlanta. For seven years he was foreman of one of the largest independent cigar factories in the United States, located in Indiana.

Mr. Barnes has been employed in factories in Havana, Cuba, and Tampa, Fla., allowing him to study every phase of cigar manufacturing. The finest of Porto Rican and Havana tobacco is being used in the "Caperetta" cigar, it was stated. The factory is open to public inspection at all times and the management welcomes visitors.

TWO GARAGE LEASES MADE BY OSBORNE

The Osborne Realty Company, Inc., which recently opened its offices at 302 West Peachtree street, announced two garage leases Saturday. The company leased for Sam E. Finley to Felder & Hargett, garage specialists, the property at 730 Peachtree street, a building with 25,000 square feet, for a term of five years and an annual rental of $5,000.

It also leased for P. C. McDuffie to Rutledge and Cauthen, to be used as a department garage, the building at 21-23 Baker street, N. W. The consideration was not disclosed.

The Osborne Realty Company was organized by D. W. Osborne, who for the past two years has been manager of the rental department of the Southern Loan and Insurance Company. Previous to this connection Mr. Osborne was with the firm of Sharp & Boylston. He is a graduate of Georgia Tech, member of the professional fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi and a lieutenant in the United States reserve army.

T. M. Cater is associated with Mr. Osborne in this new organization.

PAINTING PROBLEMS BEFORE CHEMISTS

Painting problems in the south will be the general theme of a national symposium to be held by the division of paint and varnish chemistry of the American Chemical Society at the society's eighty-third meeting in New Orleans on Tuesday, March 29. Speakers, as announced by the chairman of the division, H. A. Nelson, of the New Jersey Zinc Company, Palmerton, Pa., include:

H. A. Gardner, president of the H. A. Gardner Laboratory, Inc., Washington, D. C.; P. R. Croll and S. N. Rhue, of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Milwaukee; G. Klinkenstein, of the Maas & Waldstein Company, Newark, N. J.; Charles G. Moore, of the Glidden Company, Cleveland, Ohio; W. C. Wilson, of Pyroxylin Products, Inc., Chicago; Brian Mead, of the Humble Oil and Refining Company, Houston, Texas; Stanley H. Gill, of the Gulf Pipe Line Company, Houston, Texas.

At another session of the division on the same day numerous papers will be presented. Among those who will participate are:

Professor W. D. Harkins and D. M. Gans, of the University of Chicago, and L. W. Ryan, of the Titanium Pigment Company, Brooklyn, N. Y.; A. C. Elm and G. W. Standen, of the New Jersey Zinc Company, Palmerton, Pa.; Professor Harold Y. Anderson and Professor J. S. Long, of Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa.; D. L. Gamble, of the New Jersey Zinc Company, Palmerton, Pa.; Charles Allen Thomas and Paul E. Marling, of the Thomas & Hochwalt Laboratories, Dayton, Ohio.

Henry A. Gardner, who is director of the scientific section of the American Paint and Varnish Manufacturers' Association, will deliver an address before the society at its opening session Monday, March 28, on "The Tung Oil Industry in the South."

The situation in regard to tung oil in the American paint and varnish industry is somewhat analogous to the early stages of the rubber plantation development, according to the announcement. For a generation the industry has depended upon China for tung oil. Development of the tung oil tree in the south and in California promises to make America independent of China as a source of this material.

Nationwide research to improve the finish and durability of protective coatings is being developed by the paint and varnish division.

TAX PAYERS' LEAGUE WILL RENEW DRIVE

The recall election over, the Taxpayers' League will resume its membership campaign with renewed vigor Monday, plans for the week including efforts to complete branch organizations in all wards.

Organization work is expected to be begun in all wards during the week, according to G. M. Stout, executive secretary, but particularly aggressive efforts will be put forth in the seventh and the thirteenth.

H. Y. McCord, chairman of the organization committee, has announced the selection of C. G. Mitchell as the league director in the seventh ward. Mr. Mitchell, whose home is at 1304 Lucille avenue, will select his own corps of assistants and is expected to call a ward rally for some night during the week. R. K. Rambo has been announced by Mr. McCord as the league director in the thirteenth ward.

Directors and committeemen for other wards are to be announced later.

YAARAB SHRINE BAND DRILLS FOR CONCERT

Under the direction of Noble C. Edward Buchanan Yaarab temple band is preparing to give another of its delightful concerts in Fox theater at 3 o'clock on Sunday, April 3, program for which will be announced later.

While the event is planned particularly for nobles and their families the public will be admitted by tickets which may be secured free of charge from members of the band or by applying at Recorder Argard's office at the Shrine mosque.

Yaarab temple band is composed of some of the best musicians in Atlanta, both professional and amateur, is internationallyl known as one of the best Shrine concert bands, and has the distinction of having played under the direction of the late John Philip Sousa, who was guest of honor at a banquet given by the band on the occasion of the great bandmaster's last visit to Atlanta.

REO CAR REDUCTION RATE IS ANNOUNCED

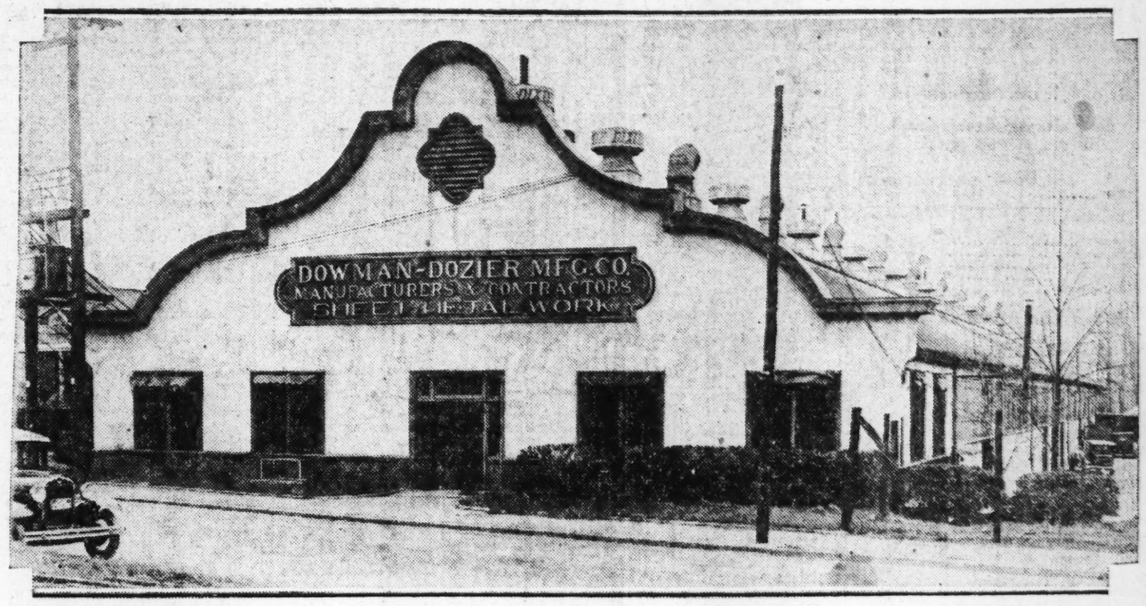

R. M. Peno, local branch manager for Reo used cars, announced on Saturday a stock reduction campaign with exceptionally low price inducements.

All the cars and trucks included in the sale are in best condition, says Mr. Peno. They are late model cars taken in trade for new cars during recent weeks and have all been thoroughly reconditioned.

"Anyone who is even considering the purchase of a used car or used truck will be foolish if he or she does not inspect and try the bargains now displayed in our showrooms," said Mr. Peno.

"Such values will not be equaled in time, and cars and trucks which will give such satisfactory service are seldom found in price-slashing sales."

Dowman-Dozier's Plant and Peachtree Store Location Are Featured in $200,000 Lease Transaction and Sale

The main building of the Dowman-Dozier plant at Oakland City, which has been acquired by F. J. Cooledge & Sons under a long lease. The property was bought by Dan Conklin from the creditors and leased by him to Cooledge & Sons. The latter will occupy the property, which consists of 12 acres and a number of buildings, on May 1. They will use it to manufacture paint and as a warehouse after they have made extensive improvements. No consideration was disclosed in the transaction.

F. J. Cooledge & Sons, paint manufacturers, have acquired under a long lease the plant of the Dowman-Dozier Manufacturing Company, at Oakland City, which they will use as their paint manufacturing plant and for warehouse purposes.

The Draper-Owens Company, which handled the deal, announced it Saturday. The consideration was not disclosed, but the aggregate amount for this lease and for another on Peachtree street, which the realtors also handled, was $200,000.

Dan Conklin bought the property from the creditors of the Dowman-Dozier Company for a consideration not disclosed. He leased it to the Cooledges, who will occupy it on May 1.

The property is located at 1314 Murphy avenue, and is on the Central of Georgia and Atlanta & West Point railroads. The 12-acre tract is covered with several buildings containing 100,000 square feet.

The lessee's improvement plans call for extensive landscape work on the grounds, which was started Saturday, and repainting. The buildings will be painted a light tan and trimmed in green. A large electric sign on top of the main building will carry the company's name. It will occupy the property on May 1.

The other lease by the Draper-Owens Company was made by Harrie W. Dews and John C. Baldwin Jr., of that agency. They leased for W. H. Kiser to Stiening & Collette, operating as the Friendly Five Shoe Store, the store room at 77 Peachtree street for a term of years. This store will be extensively remodeled.

REALTORS TOLD HOW TO SELL TO TRUSTEES

In a talk to the Atlanta Real Estate Board last Wednesday, William A. Fuller suggested a method by which agents might sell choice property to trustees of estates.

This field, Mr. Fuller admitted, was rather limited. Personal responsibility for the safety of investments made trustees cautious about any kind of security which was not backed up by the closest analysis.

Trustees hadn't the time, he said, to make investigations of their own, neither did they want to go out and dicker for property, or be swamped by agents eager to sell.

In some cases real estate was not only a good investment, but was also a desirable one, he said, for trustees.

He suggested that the board make a small selection of properties, have them appraised, and offer them to trustees with a full analysis—a sort of certified appraisal—so that the trustee would have something definite and authentic to go on.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Fuller was asked several questions by the realtors present.

INVESTORS SYNDICATE ASSETS SHOW GAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 19. Assets of Investors Syndicate total $47,585,595.41, showing an increase of $939,376.86 since the first of the year, according to the February 29 balance sheet of the company, made public today by E. M. Richardson, secretary and treasurer. Capital, surplus and reserves equal $6,259,419.67, the report shows, a gain of $66,741.24 since the first of the year.

Cash on hand increased $220,396.08 during the first two months of the year, totaling $941,968.44, as of February 29. Marketable securities, consisting chiefly of bonds legal for life insurance company investment under New York state requirements, increased $222,599.88 to a total of $4,379,441.21, the report showed.

The Georgia branch has gradually shown an increase in the sale of certificates until it ranks third place in the entire western division. Georgia heads the southern states in production and the city of Atlanta leads the southern cities as well as ranking fourth place in all cities in the United States and Canada.

DEATH BEATS PAROLE TO MAN BY 6 MONTHS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 19. (UP)—A perfectly good pardon for a man convicted of distilling and sentenced to three years in prison was meaningless here today. It was granted by Governor B. M. Miller, on recommendation of the pardon board, but when the convict department prepared to notify the man in question—Theodore Heard—it found he had been killed in a highway accident six months ago.

BUILDING PERMITS SHOW A DECLINE

Building permits in 583 cities and towns in the United States during the month of February amounted to $43,326,719, according to official reports made to S. W. Straus & Co. This figure represents a 6 per cent decline from January, 1932, when the volume for those cities was $48,225,143, as compared with a normal seasonal expected increase of 9.1 per cent. Permits issued during February, 1932, fell 59.4 per cent below the same month of 1931.

As a group the 25 cities reporting the largest volume of permits for the month show an increase of 6.7 per cent over January, 1932, a decline of 55 per cent from February, 1931, and a decline of 50.8 per cent from February, 1930. Ten of the cities made individual gains over February, 1931. They are: Cincinnati, Cambridge, Fort Wayne, Biloxi, Long Beach, Austin, Memphis, Appleton, Jacksonville and San Jose.

CHARTER IS GRANTED TO ROOFING CONCERN

Judge Moore, of the superior court, last week granted a charter to the White Roofing Contractors, a company composed of Mrs. Minnie C. White, Mrs. Nannie W. Hutchinson and Mrs. Mildred White.

The incorporators specified a capital stock of $1,000 and asked for the right to increase it to $10,000.

TAXPAYERS' STRIKE IS NOT ENCOURAGED BY LOCAL LEAGUE

News about tax reduction ranging from the action of 107 Georgia cities in reducing taxation to a threatened taxpayers' strike in Savannah is being prominently displayed in the windows of the quarters of the Taxpayers' League on Broad street. Incidentally, this news is being relayed by the Atlanta Real Estate Board to its members.

The Savannah situation is being watched with keen interest by both the board and league members. Taxpayers in that city attempted a survey of the situation there, but claimed they were held up in the investigation by city politicians who refused to permit them to complete an audit from the records.

T. P. Saffold, a taxpayer, is quoted in the Savannah Morning News as suggesting that it might become advisable, if other measures failed, to start a taxpayer's strike such as occurred in Chicago. Other leaders, however, wouldn't go to that extreme. It was pointed out, however, that the taxpayers as a whole lacked unified organization.

This hint of a taxpayers' strike has been heard in Atlanta, especially since the proposal to raise the county tax rate became known, but spokesmen for the Taxpayers' League and the Atlanta Real Estate Board are discouraging radical methods at this time. They figure that reforms must be brought about through educational campaigns and the power of the taxpayer's vote.

For unequal distribution of county and city tax receipts is seen as the main cause of high taxes. Salary reductions, while necessary in some instances, are but a drop in the bucket, students of the local situation declare.

The real trouble, they say, is that while the city produces most of the revenue, it is allowed to keep for its own use only 54 per cent of it, the rest going to the state and county. And the city gets little or no benefit from county funds although Atlanta is an essential part of the county.

Consequently, the city is forced to maintain its tax rate, attempting to make up the deficit with salary cuts and various measures of economy.

Mayor Key has repeatedly pointed out this inequality of tax distribution as between the city, the county and the state.

Work along the line of readjustment rather than such radical measures as a strike is favored by taxpayers and real estate men, and they are trying to discourage radicalism in their ranks.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 19. (AP)—The prison bureau today announced that Rubin Reid, negro convict serving three years from Duval county for assault with intent to murder, escaped from a prison camp near Mims, Fla.

TAX BILL IS ROBBED OF REALTY CLAUSE

CHICAGO, March 19.—The democratic tax bill, reported out of the house at Washington last week by the ways and means committee, does not include the provision for taxing realty deeds recommended by the United States treasury department and fought by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. H. U. Nelson, executive secretary of the association, said this looked hopeful for the elimination of this proposed levy.

The tax, which would revive one operative previous to 1924, would require the affixing of stamps on all real estate conveyances, 50 cents worth for each $500 of value.

Although cutting this provision from the federal bill would save property owners about $15,000,000 a year, the realty association opposed the bill chiefly on the basis that the stamps would be used to inflate values by unscrupulous persons who would purchase more of the stamps than the conveyance should bear. General Nathan William MacChesney, of this city, general counsel for the association, who appeared before the house committee on January 18 to cite the dangers of the provision, said that nothing could be done to prevent the misuse of the stamps.

The realty association was the only organization that appeared to oppose this provision of the bill.

L. T. Stevenson, Pittsburgh, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, announces today the personnel of the association's committee on federal legislation and taxation: Henry G. Zander, Chicago, chairman; John J. Chichester, Birmingham; Justin Matthews, Little Rock; Robert Hunsick, Phoenix; D. D. Watson, San Francisco; E. SOCIAL WORKERS TO CONVENE HERE FOR STATE PARLEY

The program for the annual Georgia state conference on social work, to be held in Atlanta April 4-7, is rapidly taking shape, according to an announcement from the president of the conference, Miss Mary Lowe Dickinson.

The first two days will be devoted to two institutes of three sessions each, one series for volunteer social workers and the other for trained case workers. These institutes will begin at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon and conclude Tuesday afternoon.

The sessions of Thursday morning and afternoon will be devoted to a survey of the resources available for social welfare and reconstruction in agriculture and industry. Dr. Andrew Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, will discuss the possibilities offered by a return to the soil, and Mark Ethridge, managing editor of the Macon Telegraph, will speak on the industrial outlook.

The sessions of the conference will be held at the Biltmore hotel and will be open to the public. A representative attendance of professional and volunteer social workers is expected from over the state.

Figures at Real Estate Board Celebration

The annual jollification of the Atlanta Real Estate Board, described as the "Prosperity Follies," which was held at the Druid Hills Club last Thursday night, was one of the most enjoyable ever staged by the realtors. A buffet supper was served instead of the usual more formal banquet, and there were enjoyable entertainment features, including the famous piano-moving contest. In the group are seen at the top, left to right, R. Weldon Evans, John J. Thompson, Jesse Draper, S. H. Hawkins and John O. Chiles. Bottom row, R. A. Tharpe, a visiting realtor from Macon; Milton Liebman, president of the board, and Lieutenant Stanley A. Jones, U. S. N., of Macon.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—The decline in stocks lost momentum today, though it was not entirely checked.

Prices hardened after a dip at the opening, making virtually complete recovery of moderate losses, but eased again toward the close when week-end covering orders proved insufficient to take up offerings.

The temporary firmness coincided with heavy sales of Kreuger & Toll American certificates, which the stock exchange has been asked to suspend from trading. What action would follow this request from Stockholm was not disclosed by the governors, but traders actively took advantage of the open market to let holdings go. The quotation dropped to 1, working back to 1 1-4 when pressure slackened. Turnover in this one issue accounted for virtually half the day's total volume, 826,330 shares.

Washington news bulked large in the market's calculations. The congressional battle over the tax bill, intensified by restoration of wartime surtaxes appeared to be meeting with an unfavorable reaction, partly because of the confusion now evident, but more because of apprehension lest higher income levies would send large security owners into exempt investments and away from other channels which will be needing capital. Some evidence of the possible trend was seen in advancing quotations for government bonds.

President Hoover's statement on railroad credit was reflected for a time by fixed-income obligations of carriers, although gains were not fully retained. Rail stocks showed the same slight sag that affected other groups, Santa Fe and Union Pacific losing about a point.

The weakness in utilities, so conspicuous yesterday, was lacking today. Aside from weakness in thinly-traded preferred stocks of electric power and light, the electric bond and share equities, on both stock and curb exchanges, steadied. American Telephone's loss of 1 1-4 was the most prominent change in the utility category. Telephone's income from long-distance lines has recently suffered a substantial drop, but interests close to the company are predicting that another regular dividend will be ordered at the next quarterly meeting.

United States Steel lost virtually a point net.

Wheat was sharply set back by word that the farm board would endeavor to sell its holdings, and the break probably had a sentimental effect in Wall Street. With net losses amounting to half a point or less in such shares as American Can, duPont, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Case, Westinghouse, Bethlehem, Union Carbide and North American the stock market, it was felt in some brokerage-house circles, had failed to reach much of a conclusion at the end of a soggy week.

Foreign Markets

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON—Stocks showed a tendency to sag and closed weak on less favorable New York and Paris advices. Gilt-edged securities, however, were well maintained, while foreign exchanges moved sharply in favor of London.

PARIS—The lack of strength in foreign markets had a depressing effect on the bourse, which was sluggish. Prices improved and closed irregular.

BERLIN—Revival of rumors regarding negotiations whereby German coal would be barred for Argentine wheat and sold the coal mines of their accumulated stock, helped mining shares. Other sections of the boerse were quiet and steady.

BY VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—President Hoover's statement in Washington that the financial needs of the railroads are much smaller than at first thought and that a plan for their relief had been formed, failed to revive the feeble bond market today.

Although the United States government list maintained a firm undertone, with the majority of issues advancing moderate, corporate mortgages, as a whole, refused to respond materially to the news from the capital. The result was that the average for 60 principal bonds dropped 1-10 of a point under that of yesterday.

The railroads, especially some of the convertible liens of Missouri Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and Rock Island, tried unsuccessfully to stage a rally. Most of them ended with minor losses. Reasonable gains were held by some bonds of Chesapeake Corporation, Frisco, St. Louis Southwestern and Southern Pacific.

The utilities did a little better than the other departments and the industrials were relatively steady. The Kreuger group, however, again was heavily traded for substantial losses. Kreuger & Toll 5s dropped 4 1-2 points and International Match 5s were down from 2 1-4 to 3 1-4. Consolidated Gas loans were steady and General Theaters 6s were in demand at 1 1-2 points advance. The Western Union list also showed strength.

German bonds were easy, the government 5 1-2s losing 1 point. The Argentines, after rallying yesterday, again turned downward. Obligations of Denmark and Norway improved, as did those of Britain and Italy. Japanese obligations were comparatively steady.

Trading continued dull, sales totaling only $5,025,000 for the short session.

AUTO COMPANIES ORGANIZING FORCES FOR '32 PRESENTATIONS

April Promises Repetition Of January Show Interest

BY E. Y. WATSON.

DETROIT, Mich., March 19.—The automobile companies are organizing their forces for renewed presentation of 1932 models. The start is timed for the first week of April, which usually brings droves of new car buyers into the market.

Preparations that are being made by the sales divisions include introduction of additional body types that will meet demand for seasonable models of sports style and convertible cars that add to "open road" thrill.

At least two makers are to project new lines at this time that will represent further exploitation of advanced 1932 engineering. One will be the new Plymouth series from the Chrysler organization, embodying "floating power" progress. A second will be Reo's new cars with the streamlining idea carried a step ahead in aerodynamic body tyling.

In the way of mass presentation, General Motors is to broadside all its products in a nationwide exhibition from April 2 to 9. It will cover 55 cities and in each of them public auditoriums and large halls will be utilized. In Detroit, Convention hall will be used; in New York the Hotel Astor, and in Chicago, the huge Merchandise Mart.

With the Ford introduction imminent, but dates not yet officially decided on, April promises a repetition of the wave of interest that the January automobile shows set in motion. The automobile magnates are looking to various factors in the situation to "peak up" and let loose the cumulative buying urge that has been created.

Their hopes are buoyed up by recent signs indicative of trade stabilization toward which the bankers and financial interests have been struggling.

The "automobile industry's answer to the depression" was in the form of the national and other automobile show periods in which cars engineered and styled down to the minute were laid out for public inspection. The national reaction to it bettered the sales in January 10 per cent over December. February in turn went 1 per cent above the month preceding, according to estimates based on state registration figures.

In effect, the result ha been to make motor car list prices firmer than they were before the turn of the year, aside from the lowest brackets of the price range. During the last three weeks, four makers have revised their prices upward. The raises apply in divisions above $1,000 and are ascribed to expiration of contracts for materials which the companies were able to buy last fall at less than cost.

With the materials now worked off into finished cars, the producers say there is nothing for them to do but to pay more and therefore charge more, as manufacturing is continued. Controlled output with volume budgeted according to the requirements of distribution is now stricter than ever with companies of the first rank.

The wisdom of presenting yearly models which was under debate one year ago and which resulted in a majority decision of the companies to maintain the process of change has proved itself in the belief of certain magnates.

It is qualified, however, by the policy of concentrating new models for presentation in the early part of the year instead of the summer and autumn periods. In defense of the plan, it is argued that the car buyer's idea of what he wants is constantly changing, as shown by the extensive changes in design and style that 1932 has brought forth.

Otherwise, it is pointed out, the engineers, the stylists and the production forces would have to declare a "scientific holiday" which would stall up large divisions of factory employment and bring numerous lines of work to a virtual standstill.

That change is fundamental is demonstrated in the expenditure of approximately $100,000,000 by the factory organizations in preparing for 1932. Operating on this basis during a period of extreme slackness, it is contended that companies can continue to develop and introduce new products for many years to come with conditions at or near normal.

Far from having exhausted their field, the scientists look forward to still greater results. Tire development is cited as one instance. In 25 years, mileage on a single tire has climbed from 3,000 to as high as 20,000 miles. In fuel consumption, it is known that there is enough energy in one gallon of gasoline to do the work of five gallons and more under present conditions. Some kinds of steels of which today's cars are built can withstand 300,000 pounds pressure. Half a million pounds per square inch is now considered with possibility; whereas the first steels with which engineers worked were not capable of exerting any more than 80,000 pounds of tensile strength.

Zero Batteries Developed By Exide Engineers

"In adopting the new cold weather standard for battery performance recently," said Mark Pope, the local Exide manager, "the Society of Automotive Engineers was not necessarily thinking about the temperatures in which automobiles are operated.

"For instance, the standard requires a battery to be capable of discharging 300 amperes at zero temperature for a specified number of minutes. That doesn't mean necessarily they are thinking about the people who have to drive their cars in that low temperature as much as the demands made on batteries by the modern automobile engine.

"The increased number of four, six, eight and twelve-cylindered engines of the high compression type have made it necessary to boost the standard of battery performance. It is believed that a battery capable of meeting the new S. A. E. zero requirements is quite capable of functioning under all other conditions of temperature, summer as well as winter.

"Accordingly, the new S. A. E. standard for all practical purposes measures a battery's starting ability not only in cold weather but all year round.

"The new requirement also serves the purpose of officially defining cold weather cranking ability of batteries.

"Testing for cold weather performance is nothing new to Exide engineers which is one reason why they were actually making batteries that met this requirement when adopted by the S. A. E."

One Mile Walk Equals Ride of Four Hundred Miles

The average person uses up more actual physical energy in walking a mile than in driving 400 miles, according to tests conducted by the engineering department of Oldsmobile. These tests also showed that driving fatigue is very largely the result of continued muscular and nervous tension, rather than physical exertion on the part of the driver, and is caused for the most part by the necessity of maintaining an unchanging position behind the wheel.

The tests definitely demonstrated these findings and, as a result, the movable front seat has been materially improved. The new type adjustable front seat, introduced on this year's models, has helped greatly in solving the problem of driving fatigue.

In 1930 Oldsmobile introduced an adjustable front seat which was operated by a turn handle located on the front of the seat near the floor. While this was easily adjustable when the car was at a standstill, it required some effort for a driver to move the seat forward or backward when driving. In the new 1932 Oldsmobile six and straight eight the change can be made by simple lifting a small lever at the side of the seat and sliding the seat backward or forward to the desired position.

Many motorists, when driving on the open road, like to assume an almost reclining position, and when traveling through cities to sit in a more upright position. Oldsmobile drivers now can instantly adjust the seat to the desired position and thereby enjoy a new degree of comfortable, effortless driving.

Tech Experimenting Engineer Class Tests Auburn Cars

As their part of a national economy and accelleration test of the Auburn Motor Company, Stewart Bird, president of the Bird Motor Company, local Auburn and Cord distributors, arranged with Professor H. W. Mason, head of Georgia Tech's experimental engineering department, to conduct economy and accelleration tests on the Auburn 8-100 8-cylinder and new 12-cylinder models, which were here Friday afternoon, under the direct supervision of Professor Mason. These runs, as reported by them, gave both the Auburn 8 and 12 unusual readings for cars of their weight and class. The Auburn "8," running at a speed of 12 miles per hour, tested to run 20.4 miles per gallon, and at a speed of 24 9-10 miles per hour, averaged 15.65 miles to the gallon. The latter test gives an idea of what the average gasoline consumption of the Auburn 8-100 will give users under normal driving conditions.

The accelleration test came out with the following results:

The 8-cylinder 8-100—
5 to 25 m. p. h. in .. 8 1-10 Seconds
5 to 40 m. p. h. in ..13 2-10 Seconds
5 to 50 m. p. h. in ..17 6-10 Seconds
The 12-cylinder—
5 to 25 m. p. h. in.. 7 2-10 Seconds
5 to 40 m. p. h. in ..12 9-10 Seconds
5 to 50 m. p. m. in ..14 7-10 Seconds
5 to 60 m. p. h. in ..21 4-10 Seconds

All of the above tests were made in conventional high gear.

SEIZURE OF VESSELS IN WARTIME PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Secretary Adams today recommended to congress legislation empowering the navy to seize during national emergencies any merchant vessel registered under United States laws.

"The plans for national defense that have been prepared in the navy department require for use of the navy about 1,000 sea-going merchant vessels," Adams said in a letter to the house.

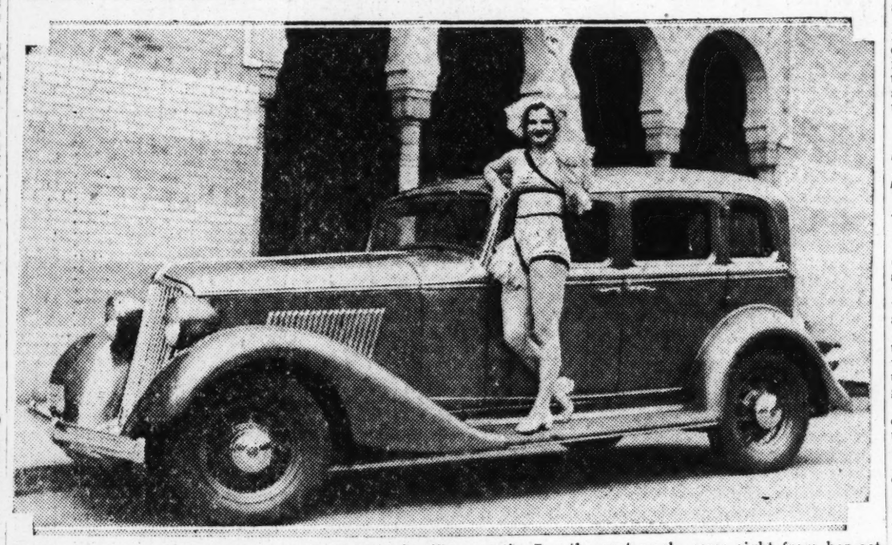

"In order to carry out these plans it will be absolutely essential that a certain number of these vessels arrive at designated bases on the date the president proclaims the existence of a national emergency and that a certain number arrive at other designated bases within given times after this presidential proclamation."

SPECIAL SERVICES FOR PASSION WEEK

The Ministers' Union of the Methodist Episcopal, the Colored Methodist Episcopal, the African Methodist Episcopal Zion and the Congregational churches, recently united in the union, will observe Passion Week at the Butler Street Colored Methodist Episcopal church, beginning Monday. From Monday through Friday at 12 o'clock brief discourses will be rendered by various speakers.

Dr. J. A. Baxter, pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal church and chaplain of the union, will conduct the devotional exercises each day. The following will speak during the week: Rev. A. F. Bailey, Dr. C. H. Brown, Rev. A. M. Goodwyn, Rev. S. W. Peacock and the Rev. W. B. Wood.

Sensational Girl Likes Sensational Car

Beautiful June Worth, Fanchon & Marco's headliner at the Fox the past week, came right from her act to pose with the new "Blue-Streak" Graham. This young lady and this car are entirely different from others in their line and have proven to be sensations in every section of the country.

Dual Ratio Demonstration Inaugurated by Auburn Dealers

Promising not to try to sell you a car, Auburn Automobile Company will inaugurate a nation-wide Dual Ratio Demonstration Week from March 20-27, according to Stewart Bird, president of the Bird Motor Co., Auburn distributor here.

These seven days have been set aside by Auburn distributors and dealers throughout the United States to be devoted exclusively to acquainting motorists with the new standards of operating efficiency made possible by this major advancement.

"We are making this program entirely educational because of the tremendous interest Dual Ratio has evoked in the last three months," Mr. Bird said, "and because we realize that thousands of interested motorists hesitate for fear of imposing on us to request a demonstration when they were not in the market for a car. This is one of the chief reasons for the Dual Ratio Demonstration Week.

"The purpose of this campaign will be to demonstrate how the Dual Ratio equipped Auburns are able to outperform all other cars, with an amazing economy of operation; how Dual Ratio minimizes noise and vibration, affording an unexcelled smoothness which results in longer life because of reduced wear and strain on moving parts, and consequent greater resale values, and how by turning a small lever on the dash, the driver has a car built for acceleration and hill-climbing and by an opposite turn of the lever another car designed especially for the straight-away."

Tests will be made during the week, he said, to determine the acceleration of the Dual Ratio equipped Auburns, and their performance on hills. All of these tests will be made in public and carefully checked by competent officials outside the Auburn organization. Special exhibits, illustrating the advantages of Dual Ratio, also will be displayed in the Auburn salesroom here.

Mr. Bird explained Dual Ratio, briefly, as an advancement in rear axle engineering which eliminates the compromise from driving ratios. In the past, he said, it has been impossible for a single car to command maximum efficiency on hills and in traffic, or on a straight-away, because its driving ratio was fixed. It was necessary to effect a compromise which would give fair performance under all conditions.

"Dual Ratio, by providing a choice of two driving ratios, has made this compromise unnecessary," he said. "A low ratio is afforded especially for the requirements of hills and heavy traffic. It gives the car fullest pulling or acceleration power. The high ratio translates engine power into speed for the straight-away, or allows a one-third reduction in engine revolutions and resulting fuel economy. The change from one ratio to the other is governed by a small control lever on the dash."

Pontiac's New Bodies Demonstrate Utmost In Driving Convenience

Many touches of convenience distinguished the bodies created by Fisher for the new Pontiac Six and V-Eight.

The new instrument boards illustrate the point. For full visibility, the instruments are of the "dial-type," with easily-read pointed indicators which show car speed, oil pressure, water jacket temperature and electrical charging rate. They may be lighted either directly or indirectly and the three-spoke steering wheel leaves the dials unobscured. At the top of the instrument panel is a covered ash tray, centered conveniently for either driver or passenger.

The driver may protect his eyes against sun glare—either from the front or side—by adjusting a movable inside sun visor. At slight extra cost a second visor may be installed to provide similar protection for the front seat passenger. The windshield slanted at an angle of 10 degrees deflects the glare of following headlamps down below the eyes of the driver and rear vision mirrors are slightly "blued" to prevent glare from the same source.

The driving seat is adjustable merely by lifting a small latch at the side and sliding the seat into the desired position where it locks when the latch as released. Another convenience in the new cars is a provision for locking all doors from the inside as protection against intruders during night driving. In the sport coupes, the rear window may be lowered to permit conversation between the occupants of front and back seats.

New Franklins Equipped With Supercharger

Announcement that the 1932 air-cooled Franklin, designated as the Airman, would be powered by a supercharged, airplane engine, has again centered the eyes of automotive engineers on the Syracuse manufacturer, since this is the first car ever to include such a feature as standard equipment.

It is pointed out that the development of a supercharger for the Airman is an inherent part of the air-cooled system and carries air-cooled performance to its highest degree in more than 30 years of Franklin history. The fact that the Franklin supercharger does not involve a single additional moving part but utilizes the pressure of the air-current already developed by its great turbine fan and conducts this air direct from the cooling duct to the carburetor, is the underlying principle of this exclusive device.

This supercharger has the special advantages of improving the smooth performance of the car in every speed range and increasing engine ability under hard pulling and acceleration. By forcing more mixture into each cylinder it causes the charge to vaporize more perfectly and evenly into each cylinder. The result is to get more power from each cylinder and to equalize the power impulses so that there is a decidedly quicker surge of power in response to the throttle and a continuous and over-lapping torque of unvarying intensity on the crankshaft, with no lumpiness or uneven explosions.

The Franklin supercharger brings the additional advantage of feeding the carburetor with the air of outside temperature instead of the usual preheated air from underneath the engine hood. There is more oxygen to a cylinder of cool air than one of hot air, therefore more complete combustion and higher power per charge.

Engineers have expressed the opinion that the Franklin supercharged engine may prove revolutionary since it definitely contributes to the solution of detonations and the resultant audible and inaudible engine vibrations.

SEVEN PRISONERS SUBJECTED TO LASH IN DELAWARE JAIL

WILMINGTON, Del., March 19.—(AP)—The ancient law to which the state of Delaware still clings, that of publicly whipping prisoners charged with certain offenses, was carried out again today.

The group that was brought out to the yard of the New Castle county workhouse for flaying was larger than usual—five white men and two negroes.

The five white men, all convicted of robbing a pawn shop in Wilmington last December, were given 40 lashes each. No blood was drawn, but a number of the prisoners flinched under the punishment.

One of the white men also was sentenced to 14 years in the county prison and fined $500. The others were given 12 years and $500 fine.

The negroes who exposed their backs to the warden's lashes were given 10 lashes each and prison terms of nine months and two years. They were convicted of robbery.

A disease which attacks the brain and spinal cord of horses and mules has affected some thousands of horses in the west, causing considerable alarm to farmers.

Packard Motors In Full Production To Meet Demands

The Packard Motor Car Company is now in full production on the new light eight, announced just a short time ago. The Packard factories in Detroit are working on a full schedule of eight hours a day for the usual five days a week. Some departments are operating 18 and 24 hours. Between 8,600 and 8,700 persons are at work on full time.

Reception of the new light eight and the new twin six at the automobile shows together with a well-sustained interest in the standard eight and the de luxe eight made necessary a big increase in factory activities.

Shipment of cars from the Packard plant has increased heavily and daily shipments are now being made of the light eight as well as the standard and de luxe eights. Production of the twin six, soon to be under way, is expected to give still further activity for Packard.

As indicating how increased production of motor cars spreads employment, it was said at the Packard factories that between 5,000 and 6,000 workers have been restored to full time labor in the plants of companies providing materials for Packard cars. In addition further employment is spread among railroad workers, truck men and through many other industries.

Increased production at the Packard plant has brought an increase of 100 per cent in railroad freight shipments both to and from the factories. The movement of materials into the plant and finished cars to various parts of the country keeps the equivalent of four 60-car freight trains constantly in motion during each hour of the 24-hour day.

Depression Going, Says L. P. Fisher, Cadillac President

Convinced that the depression of the past two years has about run its course, the Cadillac Motor Car Company is intensifying its sales program for the coming spring months, according to Lawrence P. Fisher, president.

"Depressions are not a new factor in business. We have had them in this country ever since the founding of the republic, and business has always emerged from such periods to greater heights of activity and progress," Mr. Fisher said.

"A tremendous depression struck this country in 1837; banks closed their doors, unemployment was widespread, commodity prices fell and it was estimated that nine-tenths of the factories in the country were closed. But America came back.

"Again in the period of 1873-75 the country staggered under a worldwide depression. Thousands of business failures were recorded; millions were thrown out of employment and securities were a drug on the market. But within a few years the country was more prosperous than ever.

"A similar crisis followed in 1893-94. Again in 1907 the calamity howlers predicted dire things and the depression of 1921 is so recent as to require no mention. In every instance the country has proven its ability to rise above the troubles that have beset it, and the present situation is no exception. We are now working out of it and will soon be on our way to a better business era than we have ever previously experienced," Mr. Fisher said.

Coming soon—the new Franklin Twelve—watch for it

What engineers have been striving for since the beginning of the motor car, Franklin now gives you in the new Supercharged Airman. For the first time smooth, free-flowing, lively power is combined with trouble-free, economical performance. Laziness in motor cars is gone. The Supercharger packs the ingoing charge of gas into every cylinder equally and in maximum quantity. Every cylinder must do its full share of the work. As a result the Airman offers an entirely new conception of smoothness—freedom from vibration—and a new dashing acceleration. All this is accomplished with greater engine economy.

As sensational as the supercharger is, it is but one of the important exclusive engineering advancements which make the Airman the engineering sensation of the year.

Franklin gives you SPOT-CONTROLLED temperature! An achievement in greater power efficiency and perfect cooling made possible by PRESSURE air-cooling. Franklin is the only car you can drive all day at high speed without overheating or loss of power—the only car with no water to boil, freeze or leak.

Miss Harriet Jacobs To Wed Olsen Field in Boston June 18

Mrs. Thornton M. Fincher announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Harriet Jacobs, to Edward Olsen Field, of Weston, Mass., the marriage to be solemnized at high noon, on Saturday, June 18, in Boston, Mass. The engagement of Miss Jacobs and Mr. Field was announced at a dinner and reception given recently by the bride-elect's aunt, Mrs. William Frances Camp.

Miss Jacobs, the lovely bride-elect, is the daughter of Mrs. Fincher and Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University, and on her maternal side she is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Lesh, of Boston. On her paternal side she is the granddaughter of Rev. and Mrs. William Plummer Jacobs, of Clinton, S. C.

Miss Jacobs is attending Vassar College, and made her debut in Boston society in 1931, being one of the most attractive and popular members of the Debutante Club. Her beauty is of the blonde type, and she is endowed with brilliant mentality and gracious charm.

Mr. Field is the son of Edward Blake Field and the late Mrs. Field, and graduated from Harvard in 1930. He is attending the diplomatic school in Washington, D. C., preparatory to going into the foreign diplomatic service.

Miss Betty Davis Becomes Bride Of J. H. Davis at Church Ceremony

A wedding characterized by dignity and beauty was that of Miss Betty Davis and John Howard Davis, which was solemnized at the Tabernacle Baptist church on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Dr. W. H. Knight, pastor of the Tabernacle church, was the officiating minister and used the double ring ceremony. Mrs. David Wood, organist of the church, gave a program of wedding music preceding the ceremony. The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was used as a processional and the Mendelssohn wedding march as a recessional, and "Oh, Sweet Mystery of Life" was softly played during the taking of the vows.

The pulpit of the church was banked with palms and ferns interspersed with floor baskets of Easter lilies, while candles in seven-branched candelabra shed a soft glow over the scene. The pews reserved for the families of the bride and bridegroom were marked with bows of tulle.

Bridal Party.

The ushers were Joseph Davis, brother of the bride; Louis Weil, Chester Martin, Forrest McDuffee and Frank Dillard, and John McCollum, of Marietta. They entered the church in pairs and were followed by the groomsmen, including James Poage, Bradley Dillard and John Sewell, of Valdosta. The bridesmaids were Miss Sarah Davis, sister of the bridegroom, and Misses Frances Thaden, Janette Lane and Aline Sefton. The bridesmaids' gowns were fashioned alike of point d'esprit over taffeta, made tight-fitting to the knees, and flaring in a modish manner, and finished with ruffles of the same material. Miss Davis wore yellow, Miss Thaden green, Miss Lane blue and Miss Sefton peach. A striking note of contrast was in the sashes, which were of moss green ribbon combined with ribbon the same shade as the gown. The arm bouquets of the bridesmaids were fashioned alike, of pink roses and pastel shades of sweet peas.

The matron of honor was Mrs. William Albert Davis, mother of the bride, who wore a gown of orchid chiffon and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and pastel shaded snapdragons. The ringbearer was Dick Moulton, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shelton Moulton, and wore a suit of white satin and carried the rings in a calla lily.

Immediately preceding the bride was her small sister, Miss Martha Davis, who was junior bridesmaid and who wore a ruffled taffeta dress of pale pink and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of garden flowers in pastel shades.

Beautiful Bride.

The beautiful bride was given in marriage by her father, William Albert Davis, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom, who was attended by Dan Wells as best man. The blond beauty of the petite bride was enhanced by her wedding gown of ivory satin which was caught in at the waistline with rows of shirring and flared at the knees. The long, tight sleeves and the soft drapery about the neck were of real lace. Forming a waistline in the back and falling in graceful folds was a train of lustrous satin which was covered by a veil of misty tulle, attached to a cap of real lace. The bride carried a sheaf of calla lilies and her only ornament was a pin which had belonged to her great-grandmother.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party and members of the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom were entertained at a reception at the home of the bride's parents on Moreland avenue. Assisting in receiving were the parents of the bridegroom, Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Glenn Davis, of Stockbridge. Serving punch were Miss Elizabeth Hames, of Marietta, and Miss Mattie Lou Davis, of Newnan, sister of the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis left for a wedding trip and on their return will be at home on Lexington avenue.

Mrs. Callaway Will Entertain April Garden Club Delegates

The accompanying photograph features Mrs. Fuller E. Callaway in the famous Ferrell gardens at her estate, Hills and Dales, in LaGrange, where Mrs. Callaway will entertain delegates attending the Garden Clubs of America at a buffet luncheon on Sunday, April 17. The initial social entertainment planned for the pleasure of the prominent visitors will be a brilliant occasion and will celebrate the century anniversary of the wonderful gardens surrounding Mrs. Callaway's handsome villa. Photograph by Reeves Studio.

The initial social event honoring delegates attending the annual meeting of the Garden Club of America, convening in Atlanta next month, will be the buffet luncheon given by Mrs. Fuller E. Callaway on Sunday, April 17, in Ferrell Gardens, at Hills and Dales, her estate in LaGrange, Ga. Mrs. Callaway is an honorary member of the Peachtree Garden Club of Atlanta, the hostess organization to delegates attending the annual meeting of the Garden Club of America. Some 500 members, comprising the most socially prominent women in America, will arrive in Atlanta Sunday, April 17, to attend the meeting, and Mrs. Robert L. Cooney, president of Peachtree Garden Club, will be official hostess.

Century Anniversary.

Mrs. Callaway will celebrate the century anniversary of the famous Ferrell Gardens by entertaining at the buffet luncheon for the distinguished visitors. The gardens surrounding Mrs. Callaway's handsome Italian villa are 100 years old and have the most interesting history. In 1832 the late Mr. and Mrs. Mickleberry Ferrell moved to LaGrange, a mere village in Georgia, and their home was made beautiful by the cultivation of rare flowers and shrubbery. In 1841 their daughter, Mrs. Sara Coleman Ferrell, was given by her parents 80 acres of adjoining land. On an elevation next to the homestead Mrs. Ferrell and her husband built a cozy residence and started their own garden. With the passing years one terrace after another was added to the beautiful garden, which became known as Ferrell Gardens. After spending 70 years of happiness together, Mrs. Ferrell, at the age of 86, died in 1903, and Judge Ferrell, at 92 years of age, passed away in 1908.

Purchased Property.

The late Fuller E. Callaway purchased this property four years later, and in 1916 had an Italian villa erected on the site of the old home of the Ferrells. He named the estate Hills and Dales, after buying adjoining land. Since Mr. Callaway's death his sons, Cason J. Callaway and Fuller E. Callaway Jr., and their mother, Mrs. Callaway, acquired the Mickleberry Ferrell homestead and land adjoining and became owners of the oldest part of the land which was bought from the Indians by the late Mr. Ferrell, exactly 100 years ago.

Mrs. Callaway spends a major part of her time in the gardens, and endeavors to keep Mrs. Ferrell's designs in perfect condition. Like Sara Coleman Ferrell, she "prays that her employment in heaven will be to tend and water from the ambrosial fount, the flowers that never would in other climate grow." Mrs. Callaway has added perennials, annuals and bulbs, and an old-fashioned garden where she grows thousands of blossoms to decorate her home, to send to sick friends and to keep the church filled with flowers.

Favorite Parterre.

Her favorite parterre of the garden is where the specimen of boxwood, shaped to represent an organ, a pulpit, a lyre, benches and chairs, form her sanctuary. The walks under the Australian cunninshamia trees are shaded aisles, the organ and harp are musical instruments. Here Jack in the Pulpit preaches and the birds furnish the singing. She has planted old maids and sweet williams for the congregation and marigolds for the collection. A large white crape myrtle tree, when in full bloom, beckons her inside of this secluded spot. A brilliant red bird or cardinal, used to hover over the gazing globes until he starved himself to death. She often wonders whether he was another Narcissus who fell in love with his own reflection, or had he lost his mate and thought to see another.

Plant Motto.

Spring is heralded in Mrs. Callaway's garden by a luxuriant Lady Banksia rose, which mingles gold with silvery poplar, and which reign as queens at the flower shows, and which have won numerous blue ribbons. Once upon a time Mr. and Mrs. Callaway visited St. Neot's church in Cornwall, England, and when they returned to LaGrange, they planted in dwarf box, the motto, "Ora Pro Me," which adorns the church windows in Cornwall. This motto balances the Ferrell motto, "God Is Love," and "Fiat Justitia," which were planted in boxwood three-quarters of a century ago. Mrs. Callaway grasped the thought of perpetuating history through nature's beautiful scheme of living green, and added the insignia of the Callaway coat of arms.

Officers of the national clubs, all of whom will attend the convention are Mrs. J. Willis Martin, honorary president, New York; Mrs. William A. Lockwood, New York, president; Mrs. Katherine M. She attended Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga., and State College for Women and the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts.

Miss Ashford Weds Mr. Romberg At Church Ceremony in Gainesville

GAINESVILLE, Ga., March 19.—Of cordial social interest is the marriage of Miss Marion Elizabeth Ashford and Conrad Julius Romberg, of Gainesville, which took place at the First Methodist church Tuesday afternoon, March 15. The Rev. George M. Acree, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with smilax and ferns and shepherd's baskets filled with calla lillies formed a background for the wedding party. Seven-branched candlesticks holding white burning tapers shed a glow over the wedding scene. A program of music was given by Mrs. E. B. Michaelis, organist, and Miss Sarah Adams, violinist. Miss Margaret Newman sang "Because" and "At Dawning," and Miss Adams played "My Heart at Thy Soft Voice," from Samson and Delilah, as a violin solo. Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as the processional and recessional.

The ushers were Cassius Hammond, Leonard Fuller, Guy Barrett and Wilson Smith. The bridesmaids were Misses Harriett Newman and Ethel Lumsden, and the groomsmen were John Rogers and Allen Caldwell, of LaGrange. Miss Lillian Ashford was maid of honor and is an only sister of the bride.

The bride entered the church with her father, George H. Ashford, by whom she was given in marriage. She was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his brother, Carl Romberg. The lovely bride wore a becoming gown of bambino blue chiffon, the only trimming being a sash of blue French taffeta ribbon tied with a quaint bow at the back. Her picture hat and slippers were of the same shade of blue. As a bit of sentiment, she carried a tiny lace handkerchief belonging to her great-grandmother, the late Eliza C. Porter of this city. Her bouquet was of Johanna Hill rosebuds and lilies of the valley tied with white lace.

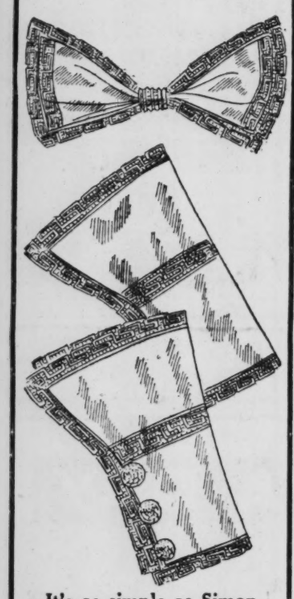

Her attendants were gowned in chiffon frocks and hats of a similar design. Miss Ashford wore canary yellow and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses tied with a delicate shade of green taffeta ribbon. Miss Newman and Miss Lumsden wore Nile green, and their flowers were sweet peas in pastal shades, tied with bows of changeable pink and blue ribbon edged with lace.

Mrs. Romberg is the older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Ashford, of Gainesville, and a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pitchford and Mrs. W. K. Ashford and the late Mr. Ashford, of Gainesville, and a great-granddaughter of the late Governor Allen D. Candler, of Georgia, and is a direct descendant of Frances Scott Key. She received her education at the local high school, where she was an honor graduate and popular member of the class of 1930. She studied at Wesleyan College, in Macon, where she took an A. B. course and specialized in music.

Mr. Romberg is the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius D. Romberg, of Holland, Texas. He was educated at the San Antonio high school, and is a graduate of the Texas A. and M. College. He entered into business at Waynesboro, Pa., and Opelika, Ala., and later came to Gainesville and became associated with his brother in the Gainesville Ice Company, of which corporation he is vice president and general manager. Mr. Romberg is a musician of the highest type and a member of the local orchestra and also that of the University of Georgia summer school under the direction of Dean Emil B. Michaelis, of the Brenau Conservatory.

Following the wedding reception, which took place at the home of the bride's parents on Candler street, Mr. Romberg and his bride left by motor for a month's visit in Texas, and upon their return will make their home in Gainesville.

Mrs. Thomas M. Eldridge was co-hostess with her mother, Mrs. Mason, and Mrs. George W. Hardin assisted in entertaining. Mrs. Patrick Bray, organizing state president, presided at the meeting, which was opened with the singing of "America," led by the rich voice of Mrs. Alberta Carroll Summer, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Blanche Cagle, and the chaplain, Mrs. J. N. Bateman, led in prayer. The salute to the flag was led by Mrs. T. E. Ryals, and reports from officers and chairmen proclaimed every detail of organization being perfected in anticipation of the carrying on of the splendid work outlined and approved by the national society, which includes the preservation of records and of the historic shrines of our country, the fostering of interest in historical research, and to aid in the education of the youth of the land. That outstanding work will be performed by the Georgia Society, Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century, is assured both by the prominence of the personnel of its charter membership, all women of the highest lineage and the deepest interest in matters patriotic and educational, and the abiding interest in educational work, which has been demonstrated during the past several years by Mrs. Bray, while serving as vice president and gift scholarship chairman of the United States Daughters of 1812.

Buttrill, of Jackson, the historian, read an original paper on "Customs and Costumes of Colonial Days," and the program honored George Washington, in accord with the bicentennial celebrations. McDougal, and the singing of a song loved by George Washington, written by Francis Hopkinson, entitled, "My Days Have Been So Wondrous Free," rendered by Mrs. Alberta Carroll Summer, accompanied by Mrs. Blance Cagle.

The color motif of green and white was carried out in the decorations, suggestive of St. Patrick's Day. Every little cake was embossed in a shamrock, and the emblem of Ireland figured in several decorative features. Honor guests were Mrs. J. M. High, organizing president of Georgia Society of Founders and Patriots of America, of which she is honorary life president, and Mrs. Bun Wylie, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mr. Pickens is on the Washington staff of The Associated Press, and holds that most sought-after assignment, the White House, which also takes him on the president's tours, official and unofficial. Mrs. Pickens, who was Miss Vinton Liddell, of Charlotte and Asheville, N. Age-Old Prophesy Is Fulfilled.

The age-old saying that "Sunday's child is fair of face," is aptly expressed in the small person of wee Valerie Anne de Sieyes de Veynes, beautiful little daughter of the Count and Countess Bernard de Sieyes de Veynes, and granddaughter of Mrs. Harry L. Stearns, beloved Atlantan. This adorable baby was born Sunday, March 6 and the fairies were all present to endow her with gifts. She is very like her lovely mother, the former Miss Alice Stearns, and inherits her sunkissed tresses and deep grey eyes. Even at her age of a fortnight, she shows evidence of possessing all the charming attributes which has endeared her mother, grandmother and their family to Atlantans.

Atlantans feel an especial interest in little Valerie, for interwoven into her mother's upbringing are all the finer traditions of the south, and there was no more popular and beloved debutante than Alice Stearns when she made her formal bow to fashionable society. A Gunston Hall graduate, with a Washington Seminary background, she lends to society her cultural assets, coupled with a charming sense of humor. Countess de Sieyes presides most graciously at her delightful home in Straffordshire, England, when she and her husband portray the role of hosts.

Small Marion, the proud 3-year-old sister who admires the new baby extravagantly, reflects the attractive blond father in her hair and in her wide blue eyes. She is a fun-loving little elf, and is

Miss Clarke Will Be Bride Of Dr. Holliday

Among the most beautiful brides of the early summer will be Miss Frances Ravenel Clarke, whose engagement is announced today by her mother, Mrs. William Walton Clarke, to Dr. Caldwell Holliday, their marriage to take place June 8. This lovely bride-elect possesses charm of manner and dainty coloring, her beauty being attested by her choice for the honor of May Queen at Washington Seminary in her senior year. Miss Clarke graduated from the Seminary and served as treasurer of the Pi Pi Club, of which she is is a member, and is also a member of the Pirate Club. She is the daughter of Mrs. Clarke and the late Mr. Clarke, her mother having been the former Miss Maude McConnell, daughter of the late Isabel Smith and James B. McConnell. Her paternal grandparents were the late Joan Thompson and Thomas Moore Clarke.

Miss Clarke is the sister of Mrs. Joseph Fisch, Thomas Moore Clarke, Misses Joan and Marian Clarke. She is the niece of Mrs. St. Julian Ravenel and Mrs. Harvey Johnson, of New York city; Mrs. Lowry Arnold, John Clarke, Logan Clarke, Arthur Clarke and Burton Clarke.

Like his future bride, Dr. Holliday is a representative of prominent families. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Holliday, Mrs. Holliday having been the former Miss Leola Green Houser, of Fort Valley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Caldwell Houser. Mrs. Houser was Miss Leola Plant, a member of the well-known Plant family of Charleston, S. C. Fashionable members of society will be interested in the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Nancy Frederick and Robert Baker Pegram IV, whose marriage will take place Wednesday evening, April 13, at All Saints Episcopal church, at 8:30 o'clock. Frederick, and there will be no reception following the ceremony.

Miss Caroline Paullin, cousin of the bride-elect, will act as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will include Misses Harriett Wynne, Louise Moore, Mamie Raine, Catherine Flagler, Hortense Hostetter, of Hutchinson, Kan., and Anne Ridley.

Inman Brandon will act as Mr. Pegram's best man and the groomsmen will include, Joel Hunter Jr., Francis Gilbert, C. Burnham McGehee, Dan Conklin, F. M. Bird and L. Y. Dean, of Eufaula, Ala. Acting as ushers will be William Nixon, James D. Robinson Jr., C. M. Frederick Jr., of Cincinnati, Ohio, and DeSales Harrison, of New Orleans, La.

Misses Harriett Wynne and Mamie Raine will entertain, the date of their party to be announced later; Miss Louise Moore will be hostess at a party in their honor, and Dan Conklin and Burnham McGehee will entertain at a party at the Piedmont Driving Club dinner-dance, at an early date. Stephens-Reynolds Marriage Is Lovely Afternoon Event

Miss Allie Walton Stephens, lovely young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Grier Stephens, became the bride of Dudley Walton Reynolds at a beautiful ceremony quietly solemnized at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents on Linwood avenue. Only the members of the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom witnessed the marriage service, which was read by the Rev. Wade H. Boggs, pastor of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church.

The long living room of the home, where the ceremony took place before the fireplace, situated at one end, presented a scene of great floral beauty. The mantel was banked with tall, graceful palms and Woodwardia ferns, which formed a rich, tropical background for the white wicker floor standards filled with Easter lilies and giant white snapdragons flanking either side. Interspersing the foliage were tall cathedral candlesticks holding white lighted tapers, which shed a soft light over the wedding tableau. Bowls and vases filled with Easter lilies and white snapdragons adorned the mantel and consoles, with graceful floor baskets of similar blossoms flanking either side of the stairway.

Nuptial Music.

A harp and violin ensemble rendered a program of nuptial music preceding the marriage ceremony.

Miss Emma Stephens, young sister of the bride, who is a student at Wesleyan College, acted as the maid of honor and only attendant. She was beautifully gowned in a becoming costume of rose beige crepe faille, gracefully modeled on close-fitting, slender lines and finished with touches of embroidered batiste. Her hat matched her gown, and her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of Aaron Ward roses and valley lilies.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Dr. Robert G. Stephens, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his brother, Dr. Herbert L. Reynolds, who acted as best man.

Beautiful Bride.

The radiantly lovely bride chose for the ceremony her traveling ensemble, a smart suit of Corsican blue Cherra cloth, trimmed in luxurious blue fox fur, and worn with a dainty blouse of white crepe. Her hat was a French model of basket weave celomat straw in a matching shade, the only trimming formed of tiny clusters of baby orange blossoms. An arm bouquet of Sweetheart roses and valley lilies completed the bride's ensemble.

Following the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Stephens entertained at an informal reception. Mrs. Stephens was handsomely gowned in starlight blue chiffon combined with ivory-tinted Alencon lace. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of orchids.

Following a wedding journey, which will include fashionable southern resorts, Mr. Reynolds and his bride will be at home at 61 East Sixteenth street.

Among the relatives of the young couple who came from a distance to attend the marriage were Dr. and Mrs. Lawton B. Evans, Mrs. A. E. Cabaniss, Miss Sarah Eve and William Cabaniss, all of Augusta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. William F. Eve, Miss Grace Eve and W. F. Eve Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., and Dr. R. A. Simpson, of Washington, D. C.

Fair Georgians

Lovely Miss Charlotte Sparks, of Americus, who is considered one of the most beautiful girls in Georgia. She is an attractive member of the younger society set, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Sparks.

MISS CLARKE WILL BE BRIDE OF DR. HOLLIDAY

adored by her grandmother, who is her especial chum. With her small cousin, Mary Stearns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stearns Jr., she wiles away happy hours and together they brag about the two babies, small Valerie and Harry Stearns III, handsome 5-month-old brother of Mary.

Edgar Chambers Visits Infant Brother.

Toys no longer hold the same fascination for small Edgar Chambers III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Chambers, whose entire attention is concentrated on his new brother, little Robert Samuel Chambers, who arrived Tuesday, March 15, at Wesley Memorial hospital. Little Edgar is so excited over his new brother and the prospect of a future playfellow that he begs to be taken to the hospital every day.

A nurse, who was amused at the youngster's devotion to the baby, asked young Edgar which of the infants in the hospital nursery he thought was the cutest. Instantly he replied, "My brother," and trotted to the crib. For a joke the nurse changed the positions of the infants in the nursery before 18-month-old Edgar's next visit, but invariably he picked out his brother and declared he was the cutest baby.

Presents galore are being sent to little Robert Samuel, and outstanding among them is the maple spool bed given by his grandfather, Asa Candler Jr. The baby's cousins, Miss Eugenia Candler, and her sister, Mrs. R. A. Edmondson Jr., the former Miss Mary Candler, have spent many hours on the dainty garments, which were their gifts. Mrs. Edmondson crocheted a dainty cap, while Miss Candler fashioned three sacks, two of crepe Egyptian and one of crepe de chine, which she finished with delicate designs.

From far-away St. Louis came the gift of Miss Judy Miller, who has visited Mrs. Chambers in Atlanta. Miss Miller sent a fleecy pink flannel blanket lined with satin for the baby's bed. Mrs. Chambers was the former Miss Laura Candler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Candler Jr., and the baby was named in honor of his two youthful uncles, Samuel Candler and Robert Chambers.

"Festoon Fence" Around Rose Garden.

There was great activity last week in the beautiful rose garden developed and maintained by members of the Druid Hills Garden Club in the parkway on Ponce de Leon avenue, between Lullwater and Oakdale roads. For the rose plat in the near future will be outlined by a most artistic arrangement known as a "festoon fence." This fence will be composed of a variety of America's prize-winning rambling roses, including the lovely white Silver Moon, the pale flesh-tinted Van Fleet, the exquisite pink Mary Wallace, and the golden-centered deep pink American Pillar. They are planted eight feet apart along the boundary line of the garden, with half of the plant trained to the left, and the other half to the right. The vines have enough strength to attain some height before falling gracefully in both directions, thus forming a "festoon fence."

The idea of the unusual enclosure around the garden originated with Mrs. Carl Lewis, valued member of the Druid Hills Garden Club and chairman of the rose garden. Mrs. Lewis evolved the plan from similar ideas developed in the beautiful Old World gardens of France, her native country. "There are also similar fences in Thomasville, Ga., where the rose grows to such perfection," said Mrs. Lewis, "except there it is invariably the delicate Cherokee rose which abounds in delightful profusion."

Mrs. Walter Thomson May Visit Atlanta.

If fate is kind and her health permits, Mrs. Walter Thomson, of Philadelphia, will attend the Garden Club of America's annual meeting here in April. As the former Miss Lute Gordon, she is pleasantly remembered as a charming and attractive creature who was a great belle and beauty in Atlanta.

Mrs. Thomson plans a visit to her kinswoman, Mrs. Henry B. Scott, at her Myrtle street residence, and she will receive a royal welcome. She belongs to the famous horticultural band known as "The Weeders," one of the most important and oldest garden clubs in Philadelphia. Mrs. Thomson's estate, Woodleigh, at Rosemont, a fashionable suburb of the Quaker City, is regarded as a show place of that section.

Young Equestrians Meet at Garden Hills.

Representative members of the younger social contingent are busy these days learning the art of equitation and numbers of these enthusiastic riders assembled every afternoon at the Garden Hills Riding school to put their favorite mounts through their paces. And the aforesaid paces are no laughing matter, but require decided technique on the part of the small riders. The nonchalant manner in which these youngsters fling a leg over a bareback horse and dash around the ring, or calmly climb on a side saddle would fill the most accomplished with envy. Little Ann McGonigal, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGonigal, is accomplishing wonders with her riding on her side saddle and will be one of the most important entries in the first annual riding contest to be held by the Garden Hills school April 16.

Clark Howell III, sturdy young son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell Jr., will enter his pony in the bareback event and will give a good account of himself in the saddle entry. Betty Ann Bird, winsome young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bird, will share honors in the bareback entry, and her little sister, Louise Bird, will enter her pony in the three-gaited saddle class. Mary Scott, who inherits a natural aptitude for horsemanship from her father, Major Trammell Scott, and the rare charm of her mother, will enter several events. Marion Candler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Candler, too, shares her parents' love for riding and will enter her horse in three events.

A novel event will be the saddle tandem class, and six talented riders will take part. Little Miss Jean Oliver, youthful Atlantan and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Oliver, will enter, as will Miss Anne Skidmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Skidmore. Miss Deas Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Smith; Miss Elise Terhune, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Westervelt Terhune, and Miss Ann Pappenheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pappenheimer.

Others taking part in the contest, which will include the regular classes of seat, hands and horsemanship, bareback, side saddle, jumping, saddle tandem classes and a gymkahna are Betty Cline, Dickey Stevens, Dorothy Ogden, Betty Ogden, Jane Hilsman, Nancy Calhoun, Cinderella Payne, Ann Kenan, George Dargan, Mary Ann Hilsman, Catherine Calhoun, Sarah Smith, Emma Middlebrook, Frances Spratlin, Nancy Wolf, Betty Black, Margaret McCarty, Julia Colquitt, Elizabeth Armstrong, Caroline McCleskey, Alice Davis, Sybella Pringle, Elizabeth Colley, Hoke Smith, Rawson Haverty, Walter Hill, Travers Hill, Herbert Oliver Jr., Denny Peteet, Gregory Wilson, Jack Chambers, Newton Craig, Bobbie Bray, Lee Hopping, Terry Jacobs, Jack King, Bates Black, James Sibley, George McDuffie, Dorothy Peteet, Julia Black, Ann Brooks, Lelia Harris, Jane Adair, Marean Walker, Polly Lou Rich, Eleanor Terhune, Barbara Selman, Jane LeRoux, Laura Hill, Betty McDuffie, Betty Gregg, Beverly Bailey, Martha Fuller, Jenny Champion, Amelia LaHatte, Charlotte Selman and Virginia Thomas.

Matrons Reveal Art of Managing Husbands.

Books have been written, fortune tellers consulted and lovelorn columnists quizzed on the art of managing a husband, but it has been left for a charming group of young matrons to really present desirable methods for handling a husband. When Miss Nancy Foster entertained at her apartment yesterday at tea, honoring Miss Marguerite Hodnett, whose marriage to Dr. J. G. McDaniel will be solemnized in the late spring, she requested each guest to bring her pet receipt for handling a husband, to be given to the fair bride-elect as an aid upon her venture upon the sea of matrimony.

Mrs. Albert Anderson Jr. declared that every husband needs different management, but there are three ways to aid in handling all husbands. First, she says to feed the brute; second, to brag upon him and his many attributes, and, third, to keep oneself beautiful. Mrs. J. Randolph Brown claims that if one is very careful in the selection of one's husband the rest will take care of itself. And so the story goes with each girl working out her particular problem to suit her own husband.

Novel, indeed, were the place cards designed by the clever hostess, for a silver heart was caught with a fluffy tulle bow and a second heart introduced into the first, depicted the charming photograph of Miss Hodnett. Table appointments carried out the bridal motif, and each guest paid an especial tribute to the bride-to-be.

Grecian Sandals Worn By Lovely Visitors.

Sandals worn by ancient Greeks and which encased the slender feet of Egypt's queen have found earnest adherents amongst the feminine members of society and both day times and evenings milady trips lightly in these conceits of the bootmakers' art. Perchance the preferred footwear is of silver kid, or perchance a more somber hue is selected and shiny patent leather or brown or deep blue kid is necessary to complete one's most becoming ensemble. At any event, sandals are the order of the day from cock's crow to the wee sma' hours and the ladies who portrayed their roles so charmingly in the Fort Benning Dramatic Club production at the Woman's Club auditorium last week each affected sandals.

Mrs. F. W. Sladen, who as "Ann Marvin," tripped her way blithely into the hearts of her audience, appeared in an enchanting pair of silver sandals with the slenderest heel imaginable and added to the beauty of her white satin evening gown. The instep of the sandal was caught with strips of silver, interwoven to the tip of the dainty toe and finished at the heel with a cap of silver. Mrs. J. B. Lindsey, the amusing "Dolly Garrett," wore sandals of silver to complete her blue evening toilette and silk-clad feet peeped through slender thongs. Mrs. E. L. Brine, that irresistible vamp, "Miss Alvarez," whose stunning black satin evening gown enhanced her dark brunet beauty, chose black satin sandals, while Mrs. J. A. Andrews, as "Florence Bertrand," the temperamental wife of the gay Harry Bertrand, wore satin sandals of a matching shade of peach to correspond with her evening gown.

For daytime wear Mrs. Brine chose brown kid sandals, fashioned with a military heel and short vamp, and Mrs. Lindsey wore black patent leather with a becoming black outfit topped by a jaunty black straw hat. Mrs. Andrews appeared in a lace negligee with pajama sandals of black satin, whose dainty heels beat a staccato tattoo when the fair wearer waxed indignant over her husband's philanderings. Truly fashions repeat themselves and lovely ladies of yesteryear as well as of today realize the beauty of sandaled feet.

Miss Heidkamp Plans Visit To Miss Nancy Keeler

A telegram received late Friday evening brought a happy message for Miss Nancy Keeler, as it told of the arrival Saturday, March 26, of her former schoolmate, Miss Ruth Heidkamp, of White Plains, N. Y., who will spend her Easter vacation visiting Miss Keeler at her Brighton road residence. Miss Heidkamp and Miss Keeler attended school at Mary Webster College in Washington, D. C., and last season Miss Keeler was the guest of Miss Heidkamp at her eastern home.

To welcome her guest and to compliment Miss Frances Boykin and her attractive visitor, Miss Barbara Van Dyke, of New Jersey, Miss Keeler is planning an informal tea to be given Monday at her home when the guests will assemble a number of the younger social contingent. Additional entertainments will mark the ten-day visit of this fair blond, for Mrs. M. H. Elder will entertain in her honor and Miss Edith Kendrick is planning a party. Since it is the first visit of Miss Heidkamp to the southland there are thrills aplenty in store for her and the Easter vacation will prove all too short a time to become acquainted with Dixie.

Miss Frances Clarke Receives Her Ring.

When lovely Miss Frances Clarke received the exquisite diamond solitaire which adorns the third finger of her left hand as a symbol of her betrothal to Dr. Caldwell Holliday, her complete surprise made up for the absence of moonlight and a romantic setting. Dr. Holliday happened to receive the ring from the jeweler's several days earlier than he expected, and when he telephoned his attractive financee that he would have it in his pocket when he came to fill a date, she thought it was a huge joke.

However, when they stopped in front of the residence of their intimate friends, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hull, to make a call, Dr. Holliday placed the ring on Miss Clarke's finger. Miss Clarke was so thrilled over the surprise and the handsome ring that the call was postponed until a later date. It is a coincidence that since Mr. Hull introduced Dr. Holliday and his financee it was in front of his home that the engagement ring was presented. Mr. Hull will be a member of the wedding party when Miss Clarke dons traditional white satin to follow the orange blossom trail at a June wedding ceremony.

Miss Helen Hill Smith Weds Francis Willis Jr. on April 4

Social importance centers in the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Helen Hill Smith, whose marriage to George Francis Willis Jr. will be solemnized Monday afternoon, April 4, at 4:30 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by Reverend Father M. A. Cotter, pastor of Sacred Heart church, at the residence of the lovely bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Smith Jr., on Tuxedo road, in Tuxedo Park.

Only the immediate families of Miss Smith and Mr. Willis will witness the marriage rites.

Her sister, Miss Laura Payne Smith, will be maid of honor and the only attendant of the bride-elect, and Mr. Willis will have as his best man his brother, John Willis. Miss Smith, a Junior Leaguer, is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and was a debutante of this season, being numbered among the most popular and attractive members of the coterie. She is a graddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Carroll Payne, and is her grandmother's namesake. Mr. Willis is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Francis Willis, and he and his prospective bride will sail from Vancouver on their honeymoon, on the steamer Empress of Japan for a tour of the orient and the Hawaiian and Philippine islands.

Young Matrons' Circle Sponsors Bridge Lectures by Lightner

Young Matrons' Circle of Tallulah Falls Industrial School will sponsor two bridge lectures by Theodore T. Lightner, internationally famous bridge expert, and partner of Ely Culbertson in the recent bridge battle of the centuries. The lectures will take place on the sixth floor of Davison-Paxon Company Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, March 29 and 30, at 3 o'clock.

Special interest will be attracted by the fact that these will be playing lectures, Mr. Lightner bringing and dealing his own problem hands, so that everyone will play the same problem at the same time. While the playing is in progress, Mr. Lightner will explain the problem and the scientific method of its play.

Mrs. Humphrey Wagar, prominent member of the Young Matrons' Circle, will act as general chairman of the Lightner lectures, and Mrs. Harry Cannon will serve as her assistant chairman.

Tickets will be $1 for any one of the lectures. Those who desire to attend may obtain tickets for both of the lectures for $1.50.

Tickets are being sold by members of the Young Matrons' Circle, and in the street floor ticket booth at Davison-Paxon Company. The general public is invited to attend the lectures, and may secure tickets either at Davison-Paxon Company or from any member of the Young Matrons' Circle.

U. D. C. Memorial Committee Issues Circular Letter Today

BY MRS. L. W. GREENE,
Editor, Georgia Division U. D. C.

The circular letter sent forth by the memorial committee of the Georgia Division U. D. C., published in today's issue of the official page, of which committee Mrs. Julian C. Lane, of Statesboro, is chairman, breathes such a note of encouragement, that it inclines one to feel liberally empowered to immediately link oneself to this committee and join in their well-directed plans to mark every Confederate grave within the entire state—and at once. Serving with Mrs. Lane, are Mesdames Sam Fine, secretary; C. A. McKibben, Roy Dallas, W. S. Coleman, Dan Harris, M. R. Lyon, C. H. Leavy, E. C. Pittman, J. L. Massey, Clayton L. Dean. This wide choice of unwearying co-workers assured keen and vivid service, with flattering promises of success. So now the division entire, can follow their lead, no plans to work out, no experience being required—merely each daughter in the organization, is requested to locate one grave and see that it is marked. There is the satisfaction, too, that we are not to be called upon, as is usual to all U. D. C. activities, to analyze ways and means schemes to project this undertaking, in view of the fact that the United States government has shown a clear eyed consciousness, that a Confederate soldier was an American soldier and has made it possible for the long-dreamed desires of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, to crystallize into incontrovertible certainty at last. So there will not be a brier-tangled graveyard so remote that its silent recesses will not be fathomed, and every Confederate soldier's grave therein will bear the white symbol of national approval and woman's fealty.

The letter which shapes plans for procedure for the most heart-appealing work of the year appears in full, and says, "My dear president, the marking of the Confederate soldiers' graves with marble markers, furnished by the United States government, is a new phase of our work; but a service that every Daughter of Confederacy is deeply interested. They are ready for the work; willing and wanting to do their part to honor the Confederate dead whose last resting place is unmarked. The markers are furnished free of all charges; freight prepaid to the nearest shipping point where the tombstone is to be placed. The United States war department, office of quartermaster general, Washington, D. C., has been notified to send you blanks and instructions for ordering. They will supply you with all the blanks you need.

"If you have any trouble in getting service records write United States war department, office of adjutant general, Washington, D. C., or Georgia Soldier Roster Commission, Atlanta, Ga. Either of the places can furnish you with service records. When writing them be sure and state that you want records of Confederate soldier and give his full name and name of the state and county from which he served. With each application blank you will have a duplicate blank, fill this out and keep it until October 1, then send all of your copies to the state chairman for her convention report and for division records. Appoint your committee at once, instructing them to begin work immediately. In effort to locate the graves, we suggest that you have a notice in your local and adjoining county paper where there is no chapter, asking for location of unmarked Confederate soldiers' graves and let the people know your plans. Have this notice continued for several issues of the paper.

"If each daughter in Georgia will locate an unmarked grave and have it marked by April 26, 1933, there will be no unmarked Confederate soldiers graves in our state. We can do this and we must. Let's have a motto 100 per cent. Confederate soldiers' graves marked by April 26, 1933. Won't that be a great report for Georgia daughters to give the Georgia bi-centennial historical commission, and a glorious tribute to our Confederate dead whose graves are unmarked?

"There is a true glory; the glory in duty done." We know that each member in your chapter will take pleasure and pride in this work and that your chapter will soon begin this duty and not leave until it is done. Wishing you great success and looking forward for that grand report. Very cordially yours, Mrs. Julian C. Lane, chairman; Mrs. Sam Fine, secretary; Mesdames C. A. McKibben, Roy Dallas, W. S. Coleman, Dan Harris, M. R. Lyon, C. H. Leary, E. C. Pittman, J. L. Massey, Clayton L. Dean.

National W.C.T.U. Will Meet In Seattle, Wash., August 12-18

By M. Frances Meadors Burghard, of Macon, state W. C. T. U. Editor.

August in Puget Sound! No need to tell anyone familiar with summer weather in Seattle that it is most delightful. What a chance for a summer vacation the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union convention presents! Now is the time to decide on such a trip with that event only six months away. The convention proper begins Friday night, August 12, and closes Thursday evening, August 18. All the interesting things that are to occur between those dates will be made public later. Just now it is necessary to become Seattle-minded and to know something about the travel plans.

Mrs. Ellison Cook, of West Point, chairman of transportation for the Georgia W. C. T. U., will be glad to mail an explanatory folder upon request. It gives information as to rates for those who wish to make the trip direct to Seattle and return, and in addition to this, she has arranged a trip which will give the best of scenic Canada and America, stop-overs in many of the largest cities and an optional trip to Yellowstone Park—a carefully and economically planned trip by one who has often conducted parties touring the west. A cordial invitation is extended to relatives and friends to join W. C. T. U. delegates and other members on this splendid trip. She promises every comfort and advantage that first-class accommodations afford. Then the convention program will be crowded with worth while attractions.

Miss Mary Campbell, former president of the India W. C. T. U., who completely won the hearts of those hearing her speak at the state convention in Columbus last fall, has accepted an appointment of the world W. C. T. U. to visit the holy land and Egypt, and by organizing and speaking to help the W. C. T. U. in these lands. Miss Campbell sailed March 12 from New York city, on the Cameronia. The best wishes of Georgia friends go with her.

When asked why she was for prohibition, Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway, of Arkansas, first woman to be elected United States senator, replied: "First, I believe in it. Second, my father advocated it. Third, my husband was not only a teetotaler, but was very strongly for prohibition. If the people in charge of enforcement of the eighteenth amendment were as active in enforcement as the wets are for repeal there would be no further issue."

Sixth District.

The sixth district W. C. T. U. quarterly meeting at Eatonton on Friday was featured by fine speeches, splendid attendance, good reports and delightful hospitality. In the absence of Mrs. A. W. Voight, of Macon, the faithful president, the Eatonton president, Mrs. P. B. Griffith, presided during the opening service when Mrs. Frank Dennis made the welcome address to which Rev. Stephen J. Baker, of Macon, responded. Rev. Blewster Knight, pastor of the Baptist church, where the meeting was held, led the devotionals. Mrs. Griffith introduced the state president, Mrs. Marvin Williams, of Marietta, whose address was founded on the Bible verse, "I know thy works; behold, I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it; for thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name." She stressed the door of prayer, the door of education and the door of the publicity, which the temperance workers may profitably enter. Her address was most eloquent and effective.

"Never heard even Mrs. Atkins make so wonderful an address," said those who heard Mrs. Florence Ewell Atkins, of Milledgeville, who brought an enthusiastic report of her recent work in the second district. She said everywhere she had the heartiest cooperation from ministers and businessmen, as well as women and every time she spoke to schools, that like the one at Moultrie, the entire faculty and student body rose en masse and pledged their allegiance to the constitution, promising to keep the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act inviolate. Her subject was "Be Strong and of Good Courage," and all of her illustrations were most encouraging. R. L. McKenney, former editor of the Macon News, contrasted conditions in prohibition America with those in Asiatic and European countries, in regard to drink and living conditions, as he had seen them on a recent world tour. He showed how other nations would be better off if they prohibited the liquor traffic. He said Germany could pay her indebtedness with her war and beer taxes.

Mrs. D. E. Atkins presented the children's work, the Loyal Temperance Legion, while Mrs. Byrd Lovett, of Sandersville, led in a demonstration about The Union Signal, the National W. C. T. U. organ, in which she was assisted by 64 school children, each bearing a banner on which was printed the name of a country where the Union Signal goes with its prohibition messages each week. It was most effective.

Mrs. George Roach, of Milledgeville, the district vice president, presided at the afternoon session. She, Mrs. M. M. Parks and Mrs. J. L. Beson and others are keepers of the flag, each having won five new members.

Creditable reports of progress in the second quarter were made by the local presidents.

Tenth District Meeting.

The Social Circle W. C. T. U., Mrs. Claude T. Wiley, Mrs. John P. Upshaw and Mrs. W. L. Huff, officers, was hostess to the tenth district W. C. T. U. meeting at the First Methodist church. State vice president, Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, of Atlanta, made the chief address; the fifth district president, Mrs. O. L. Taylor, and the president of the Atlanta Druid Hills W. C. T. U., Mrs. N. C. McPherson, were also helpful speakers. Methodist minister, Rev. Mr. Betts, led the morning devotionals and the Baptist minister, Rev. R. A. Smith, those of the afternoon session. Mr. Betts quoted from Canadian pastors, showing the evils of so-called government control in Canada. Mrs. E. C. McDowell gave the address of welcome, response by Mrs. Dolvin, of Greensboro. Mrs. L. G. Adams, district president, of Greensboro, presided. A song by Mrs. W. D. Partee and duet by Miss Mary Godwin and Frances Allen were enjoyed. Mrs. Mary Ware, of Madison, led the noontide prayer. Good reports were made by local representatives, four new unions were welcomed: Crawfordville, Thomson, Harlem and Washington. Luncheon was served by the Social Circle W. C. T. U.

Mrs. John Epperson, of Canton, president, has announced the ninth district meeting for the second quarter for March, with Mrs. Marvin Williams and Mrs. Mary S. Russell as speakers.

Baptist Missionary Union Observes 'Information Day' at Druid Hills

The first information day was observed by the executive board of the W. M. U. of the Atlanta Baptist Association at Druid Hills Baptist church Wednesday. The feature of the day's meeting was a conference of all officers of the association for the purpose of discussing the work and formulating plans. Mrs. L. O. Freeman, superintendent, presided and future conferences of the same nature are subject to the call of the superintendent.

All local districts of the Atlanta association will follow the same conferences plan under the supervision of the district secretary and the local groups will be composed of the presidents of the church societies.

The program of the day centered around the work of the association as outlined in the year book. Aims and plans for the coming year were laid, stressing the five important phases of the work, mission study, prayer, personal service, stewardship and missionary education for young people. Mrs. Boyd Quarrels, mission study chairman, announced the annual mission institute to be held April 12-14 at Druid Hills church.

Mrs. L. O. Freeman led the devotional, taking for her subject the year's slogan, "He Shall Reign." She discussed the hymn, "Jesus Shall Reign," by Isaac Watts. The minutes of the twenty-third annual session of the association were distributed with helps for officers. The history of the woman's work in Atlanta for the period of the past 50 years, compiled by Mrs. George Westmoreland, in celebration of the golden anniversary of the organization, is available for distribution.

Mrs. F. L. Astin and Mrs. O. Shepard Jr. were co-hostesses at luncheon which carried out a St. Patrick Day motif. The following members of the board were present: Mesdames K. O. Freeman, W. H. S. Dorsey, J. J. Hemperly, B. H. Jenkins, George Westmoreland, L. A. Witherspoon, Julius H. Smith, Joe Senn, J. L. Jackson, W. O. Mitchell, Fred T. Bridges, John Poyner, M. O. Hemperly, W. L. Allen, G. St. Philip's Cathedral To Hold Three Hours' Service on Friday

With the approach of Good Friday the thoughts of Christian people revert to the sacrifice once for all offered on Calvary's Hill and the founding the church that fulfills the purpose of that sacrifice.

The three hours' service at St. Philip's cathedral from 12 to 3 will commemorate the hours Christ spent on the cross. The Woman's Auxiliary, the guilds and all the other various organizations are sponsoring this service. The offering which will be taken is for the work of the churches in the near east; particularly the work being done in the most ancient of all Christian nations, Assyria, and among the people who spoke the language of the Lord. Once the most extensive and numerous of all Christian churches, a mere remnant was driven years ago to the mountain fastness of Kurdistan. Here they were left in total neglect, save for an educational mission known as the Archbishop of Canterbury's Assyrian mission, inaugurated in 1884.

They alone, of all near eastern people, voluntarily espoused the cause of the allies in the World War, at the bitter cost of dispersion and decimation. Passed over in the administration of American relief, they would have been but forgotten incidents in the world's history had not the Episcopal church assumed responsibility for the Archbishop of Canterbury Assyrian Mission and made a meager gesture of good will through the Good Friday offering.

Work among the children, medical and rural work as well as schools are a part of the program of the church for the near east. On Good Friday people everywhere are more mindful of their duty towards others and their privilege in helping them, and this offering is an opportunity to bring help to the near east churches.

Mrs. Thompson Elected President Of Georgia Baptist Mission Union

Mrs. Ben S. Thompson, of Madison, Ga., who was named president of the Georgia Baptist Woman's Missionary Union at the annual meeting held at Bessie Tift College in Forsyth March 8-10.

Georgia Baptist Woman's Missionary Union, in annual session at Bessie Tift College, Forsyth, March 8-10, elected Mrs. Ben S. Thompson, of Madison, president, to succeed Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Cartersville, who for 20 years has served this body as its efficient leader. Having rounded out her score of well-filled presidential years, Mrs. Neel declined to stand for re-election, and by unanimous choice her mantel fell upon Mrs. Thompson. Through natural ability, culture and extensive experience, Mrs. Thompson is fully qualified to fill the high position to which she has been called.

Mrs. Thompson, as Annie Lucy Newton, was born, reared, and continues to live, in Madison among lifelong friends, who have watched her grow into that splendid womanhood of which, from early girlhood, she gave assured indication. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Newton, her mother being the former Kittie Henderson Childs, a graduate of Monroe Female College, Forsyth, before that school came to be known as Bessie Tift. Mr. Newton graduated from the University of Georgia, later becoming a trustee of the institution and instrumental in establishing the State College of Agriculture.

Her sister, Mrs. F. B. Godfrey, of Orlando, Fla., is state president of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Florida conference. Her husband, Ben S. Thompson, is a well-known businessman and active in denominational work, being at present a member of the holding committee of the Georgia Baptist convention and chairman of the Baptist Brotherhood of Georgia. Her son, John Newton, is a senior at University of Georgia, and her daughter, Elizabeth, is a junior at Agnes Scott College.

After attending Cox College, College Park, for three years, Mrs. Thompson was graduated with honors from Lucy Cobb Institute, Athens, in 1906. From filling all positions in the woman's work of her local church, Mrs. Thompson's sphere of usefulness expanded to include the larger work of the state and southern unions. Positions held, past and present, are: Member of the executive committee of the Southern Baptist convention, Georgia representative on the advisory board of Southwestern Training school, Fort Worth, Texas; chairman of Ruby anniversary for Georgia, one of the five victorious states of the south; chairman of the golden anniversary of Georgia B. W. M. U.; member of executive committee of the Georgia Baptist convention; member of the board of trustees of Bessie Tift College, and of Mary P. Willingham school; hostess of Georgia Baptist assembly, Blue Ridge; state president of Mercer Auxiliary; vice president of the east central division, Georgia B. W. M. U. Aside from her denominational work, Mrs. Thompson is an interested and active Daughter of the American Revolution, having served as regent of the Henry Walton chapter, Madison, 1916-17.

Mrs. Thompson has the love, esteem and full co-operation of the 45,000 members of the Georgia union. This fact, together with her own attractive personality and splendid qualifications, assures for her a constructive and progressive administration.

Hospital Auxiliary Holds Meeting

The woman's auxiliary of the Georgia Baptist hospital met at 10 o'clock Friday morning in the chapel of the hospital. The opening devotional was conducted by Mrs. W. H. Knight, of the Tabernacle Baptist church, followed by a strong call to prayer as the cure for much of the distress and conflict of the present time, by Mrs. Ryland Knight, of the Second Baptist church.

W. D. Barker, hospital superintendent, brought before the auxiliary the hospital's need of a biplane fluoroscope, the latest development along X-ray lines, and an instrument much needed in surgery. Mr. Barker explained that no hospital in Atlanta is as yet equipped with this instrument, none being nearer than Baltimore. A biplane fluoroscope is very expensive, costing approximately $8,000, but it will prove an innovation in hospital realms of Atlanta and will enable surgical work to be done that has never before been possible. In response to Mr. Barker's request for aid in this latest equipment purchase, the auxiliary voted unanimously to pledge financial support to the undertaking. All hospital work comes under the W. M. Y. W. C. A. Business Girls Plan Annual Banquet Tuesday Evening

The fifth annual nation-wide banquet given by the Y. W. C. A. girls will be held Tuesday evening, March 29, at 6:30 o'clock, in the gymnasium at 37 Auburn avenue. "Pioneering" will be the theme, with the motif of the covered wagon prevailing in the program, favors and decorations. The adventures which await the business woman of today, as she pioneers into the realms of human relationships are equally as thrilling as those of her great-grandmothers who blazed the trail into hazardous forests, and the hardships which the pioneer woman endured are easily comparable to the difficulties which the modern business woman is facing in this chaotic economic and industrial world. Walt Whitman's stirring poem, "Pioneers, O Pioneers," gives the keynote of the occasion and will be featured by the speaker, whose name will be announced later.

Miss Flora Hatcher, business girls' secretary, states that this theme will include "persevering in the cultivation of skills within clubs toward becoming more useful citizens; daring to venture into new realms of thought and education, especially in social and economic relationships; daring to help create intelligent public opinion in business girls' groups; conquering prejudices which hinder the cultivation of personal inter-racial and international friendships; venturing into new realms of world neighborliness and daring to apply Jesus' teachings to the problems of today and to help make His way of living effective." Guests of honor will include foreign residents in Atlanta, who will extend greetings from the different nations, and representatives from civic clubs and organizations.

One of the most interesting features of the banquet will be the exchange of telegrams and cablegrams from other associations. Miss Mildred Wells and Miss Lucile Austin form the committee to send greetings from Atlanta to other Y. W. C. A.'s. Miss Orgia Skinner is chairman of the program committee and will select the guest speaker, while Miss Mary Phelps and Mrs. Lucile Kelly will issue invitations to distinguished guests. Tickets, at 25 cents each, may be secured from Miss Peggy Launius and her committee or from the information desk, at 37 Auburn avenue.

The nation-wide banquet idea is only four years old, but has grown to world-wide proportions and is especially appealing to girls in foreign countries, appreciative of friendships in America and neighboring countries. Each year more and more countries signify the willingness to become an integral part in the feasting, thinking and talking. The five clubs in the Atlanta Y. W. C. A., the S. I. S. P. Clover, Old Glory, Business Girls' League and Southern Bell are planning to make this banquet successful and enjoyable, with over 300 guests attending.

National Defense Conference Brings Forward Many Important Phases

BY MRS. WHEELER TOLBERT, Director of Publicity, Georgia Department.

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 19.—The first women's patriotic conference on national defense ever conducted by a state was a brilliant event of March 14 and 15, under the sponsorship of the Georgia department of the American Legion Auxiliary, the sessions convening in the ballroom of the Henry Grady hotel in Atlanta. Presiding over the conference as chairman was Mrs. Joseph M. Toomey, of Atlanta, president of Georgia department of the American Legion Auxiliary, with the vice chairman, Mrs. Bun Wylie, state regent Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution.

The conference was conducted along lines similar to the national conference on national defense held annually in Washington, D. C. Participating in the Georgia conference were Colonial Dames of the 17th Century, Daughters of the American Colonists, Daughters of the Founders and Patriots, Georgia department American Legion Auxiliary, Georgia division United Daughters of the Confederacy, National Society Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution, Service Star Legion, Southern Memorial Association, the Mayflower Descendants, the Georgia Society Colonial Dames of America, Uncle Remus Memorial Association, United Spanish War Veterans' Auxiliary, Women's Relief Corps Grand Army of the Republic, Daughters of 1812.

Brilliant Speakers.

The third session offered to representative audiences an array of brilliant speakers on questions of national and international import. Interest in the urgent need of adequate national defense was manifested by the earnest attention and enthusiastic applause of eager listeners who realized that national defense is national defense against enemies within and without. From the moment of the advance of the colors, each borne by a representative of a patriotic organization, on Monday evening, to the inspiring music of the 22d infantry band, through the notable addresses and resolutions, until the retiring of the colors on Tuesday afternoon, the conference was a marked success in assembling patriotic men and women, in disseminating information, and in inspiring our people to demand that our country be adequately protected, as America, the richest and most coveted nation in the world, must be protected.

Honor guest speakers from other states were Mrs. F. C. Williams, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., national president of the American Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. R. W. Waldrop, of Alabama, southern national vice president of the American Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. John G. Gilmore, of Nashville, Tenn., national radio chairman of the American Legion Auxiliary, and John B. Chapple, a distinguished Wisconsin editor. Other speakers were Major Quimby Melton, of Griffin, state commander Georgia Legion; Dr. Joseph M. Toomey, Georgia department historian, American Legion; Captain William A. Sirmon, adjutant Georgia department American Legion; Mayor Key, of Atlanta; Major General Edward L. King, of Fort McPherson; Captain J. J. London, Georgia Tech naval reserves; Miss Mattie Kate Bagley, of Columbus, state Fidac chairman American Legion Auxiliary; Colonel Stone, of the marine corps; Colonel Graham, of the officers' reserve, and Mrs. Max Land, of Cordele, former state regent D. A. R.

Outstanding addresses were made by Captain William A. Sirmon on national defense, who stated, "I believe the times demand that every American citizen who believes in the system of government under which we live and would like to see it endure should aggressively demand adequate national defense," and by John B. Chapple on "Which Way America," who stressed the necessity of women's organizations informing themselves on the dangers of communism, atheism and pacifism within our own borders. Resolutions embodying the desires and findings of the conference, prepared by the resolutions committee, Mrs. Thomas C. Mell, chairman, were read by Mrs. Max Land, of Cordele, and adopted by the assembly.

Mrs. Joseph M. Toomey deserves a large measure of praise for the success of the conference. In arranging the program and details her executive ability was a guiding hand in perfecting plans that made the conference a helpful, informing and delightful occasion. With her poise and ability she proved a gracious presiding officer. Co-operating heartily with her was the vice chairman, Mrs. Bun Wylie, of Atlanta, state regent of the D. A. R., whose marked ability and gracious manner were expressed in her efforts in behalf of the success of the conference.

Unit Activities.

Rev. Jack Walthour addressed the Waycross unit at the March meeting on "Community Service" at the Memorial hall. Mrs. Anne Haynes Ditteau, chairman of community service and unit activities, arranged the interesting program, and was assisted in entertaining by Miss Lois Summerall, Mrs. Branch Lee and Mrs. Walter E. Lee. A minuet by Martha Porter and Mary Frances McDonough, in colonial costumes, with Mrs. L. C. Everson at the piano, completed the program.

Thomaston unit's enrollment stands at 60 and every phase of auxiliary work has been actively engaged in during the year and many contributions have been made to auxiliary causes and local need. Auxiliary members aided the Community Chest by collecting money and clothing, and assisted in the work of the office. At present aid is being given to the Legion in the unemployment drive by making a house-to-house canvass, soliciting work for the unemployed. The penny-a-meal plan was observed during February. Mrs. J. M. Toomey will be a guest at the March meeting.

Under the leadership of Mrs. J. G. C. Bloodworth, first vice president of the American Legion Auxiliary of Atlanta, the unit has joined with the Atlanta post in the campaign to reduce unemployment. Favorable results have already been reported, and the efforts gain momentum daily.

Miss Garrett Weds Mr. J. S. Hill In Griffin, Ga.

Hill, of Opelika, Ala., which took place Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Garrett, on Ninth street, in Griffin. Rev. C. B. Bullard, pastor of the Second Baptist church, performed the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of a number of relatives and friends.

The house was decorated with quantities of spring flowers. Handsome potted plants formed an improvised altar before which the marriage vows were said.

The bride was smartly gowned in an ensemble of royal blue crepe, worn with a small hat and other accessories to match. Mr. and Mrs. Hill left for Opelika, Ala., where they will make their home, the bridegroom being a popular young businessman of that city.

Miss Nola Agnes Heard and Green Allen Massingale, of Drewryville, were married Thursday afternoon at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. James A. Drewry on North Thirteenth street in Griffin. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Mr. Drewry in the presence of a few friends and relatives.

The lovely young bride was attractive in a spring frock of brown crepe, with a coat and hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Massingale left on their wedding trip, following which they will reside in Drewryville.

Mrs. Massingale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Heard, of Drewryville, and is a popular and charming young woman. Mr. Massingale is the son of W. B. Massingale, of Brooks. He has been residing in Drewryville for some time and has made a wide circle of friends there.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kennedy, of High Point, N. C., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Eva, to Frank Stewart, of High Point, formerly of Griffin, the ceremony having been performed on September 26, 1931, in Danville, Va. Mr. Stewart is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stewart, of Griffin. He formerly made his home in Griffin and has a wide circle of friends here and over the state who are cordially interested in the news of his marriage.

Miss Ruby Duke and Otis Mangham, of Griffin, were married Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. King in Pepperton. The Rev. L. L. Minton officiated with a number of friends present. Mrs. Mangham is the daughter of Robert Duke, of near here, and is a social favorite with all who know her. Mr. Mangham is a well-known young farmer of Butts county and also has many friends.

Miss Daisy Mamie Jackson, of Fayetteville, and Hubert Adcock, of Senoia, were married Saturday afternoon at the home of the Rev. Amos Turner, officiating minister, in Brooks, and will reside at Senoia. Mrs. Adcock is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Jackson and is exceedingly popular in this section. Mr. Adcock is a widely known farmer of Coweta county.

Misses Guthman, Simon Will Be Honored.

Many affairs have been planned for the two visitors by their friends and relatives. Both Miss Guthman and Miss Simon will be guests at the Easter dances at Palais Peachtree, to be given in honor of the Emory University Inter-Fraternity Council.

On the Air Today

Ottorino Respighi, distinguished Italian composer, conducting the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra; the world premiere performance of Haydn's recently recovered opera, "Life on the Moon," from Schwerin, Germany, and a concert by Robert Goldsand, pianist, will be among the outstanding broadcasts to be heard over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST today.

Ottorino Respighi, the outstanding modern composer, will conduct the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra in a program of his own works from 2:15 to 4 o'clock, through the WABC-Columbia network and WGST.

A suite of three movements descriptive of masterpieces by Botticelli will be broadcast for the first time, and "Two Brazilian Impressions" will receive the first American performance during this concert. The former, described as a "Botticellian Triptych," deals with "Spring," "The Adoration of the Magi," and "The Birth of Venus," while the two sections of the Brazilian work are characterized as "Song and Dance" and "Tropical Night."

One full hour, 5 to 6 o'clock this afternoon, will be given to the presentation of the program on the Catholic hour on Palm Sunday over the NBC network, with Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, the former Anna Case, international operatic and concert soprano. She will sing the solo parts of the musical program, assisted by the Mediaevalists and voices from the Paulist choristers, under the direction of Father Flnn. A special orchestra has been engaged for the occasion. The program will lead the faithful, in hundreds of thousands of homes throughout the land, in one of the richest spiritual devotions of the church during Holy Week.

The full program follows:

6 P. M.—Signature hymn and announcement.

6:02 P. M.—Father Sheen: Opening prayer.

The Mediaevalists: One verse "Stabat Mater."

Father Sheen: Three stations with responses.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay (Anna Case) singing: "Angels Ever Bright and Fair" (Handel).

Father Sheen: Five stations with responses.

6:32 P. M.—Mrs. Clarence Mackay singing: "Jerusalem, Thou That Killest the Prophets" (St. Paul oratorio) (Mendelssohn).

The Mediaevalists: One verse "Stabat Mater."

Mrs. Clarence Mackay and The Mediaevalists singing: "Jerusalem Chorus" (Gallia) (Gounod).

Father Sheen: Four stations with responses and closing prayer.

6:58 P. M.—Signature hymn and announcement.

"Life on the Moon," an opera by the eighteenth century master, Josef Haydn, the score of which has been lost for nearly a century and a half and has only recently been discovered in Germany, will be broadcast in part through the WABC-Columbia network and WGST from 12 to 12:45 o'clock this afternoon, from Schwerin, Germany.

This will be the world premiere performance of this work, which was composed in 1777, since its rediscovery and will be presented on the stage of the Staatsteater, the state theater of Schwerin. The cast will include leading German operatic singers.

Robert Goldsand, 20-year-old Viennese pianist, who already has made three concert tours of the United States, will be heard as soloist in the Columbia Concerts program scheduled for presentation at 5:30 o'clock, through the WABC-Columbia network and WGST.

Howard Barlow, conducting the Columbia Concert orchestra, will open the program with the grotesque "March to the Scaffold," from Berlioz's "Fantastic Symphony."

The vested choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church will sing Rosini's "Stabat Mater," under direction of Hugh Hodgson, organist and choirmaster, at 8 o'clock Friday night. The program will be given during the regular Good Friday evening services at the church and the entire service will be broadcast over WJTL, of Oglethorpe University.

Dolly Jernigan's Stage Career Plans Altered by Accidental Radio Debut

Eunice Jernigan, who earned the title of "the Dolly of Radio" because of her face, set out early in life to carve a career behind the footlights, but an accidental debut on radio changed her mind.

It was upon an informal visit to an Atlanta radio station two years ago that Miss Jernigan accidentally appeared before the microphone. In a studio with a group of friends she began singing and the switchboard operator, thinking it a regular broadcast," put her on the air." So great was the popularity of her song that she was signed up then and there.

Miss Jernigan made her debut as a "dolly" 19 years ago in the Sedalia (Mo.) home of the Jernigan family. Ten years ago they moved to Atlanta, where she completed her education. Two years of study in dramatic art occupied her attention with the stage until she was discovered by radio.

At present she is a featured artist on WGST programs, giving regular broadcasts of popular songs. While her voice is contralto, it hardly fits the classification of "blues." Perhaps its most notable quality is that tone which expresses good taste in every song.

"Dolly" Jernigan—for she is "Dolly" to all her friends—is interested in sports and plays everything except football. Artistically inclined even beyond music, she paints creditable water colors and never misses a concert of merit. She is small of body, has black hair and brown eyes.

Will she continue radio work as a career?

"Well, dolls are sometimes broken," she will tell you in answer to that question.

Pioneer on Radio

Jimmy Joy, whose one-man show is heard every Monday night at 8:15 o'clock over WSB, is one of radio's pioneer entertainers. Ever since 1924 when he broke into radio he has been a favorite on several stations.

The BEST SEAT in the HOUSE

ECONOMIZING on the cost of entertainment by enjoying more and better radio is increasing in popularity.

People have discovered that radio's "box seat"—a Stromberg-Carlson—can be owned for as little as $175 for a full size superheterodyne console including all tubes. Also—that the outlay for starting to own a Stromberg-Carlson is no more than the down payment on an ordinary radio.

And—that as little as 50c per day gives them, within one year the pride of being able to say, "I own a Stromberg-Carlson."

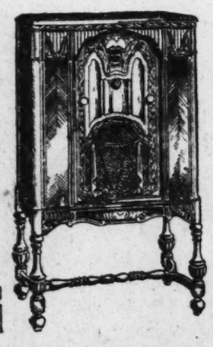

People who formerly set aside for opera, drama, concerts, lectures, etc., sums sufficient to buy dozens of Stromberg-Carlsons, are now saying: "Much of the same entertainment I am paying orchestra prices for, a Stromberg-Carlson will bring me at my own fireside."

Stromberg-Carlson sales strongly reflect this tendency, as well as the growing conviction that: "There is nothing finer than a Stromberg-Carlson."

Distinctive Stromberg-Carlson Consoles from $175 to $225. Stromberg-Carlson Telektor Type Radios from $300 to $660 including the Multi-Record Radio (automatic radio-phonograph combination, electrical).

Do You Know the Best Way To Wash Delicate Fabrics?

Miss Kathryn Martin, the washability expert who is in our Yard Goods Department all this week, will show you how.

Now stop useless brushing and whiten up your teeth right away!

Technique discovered that quickly removes stain and off-color—with absolute safety.

LIKE millions of others she has been fooled! Fooled into thinking that dull, offensive-looking teeth are an affliction she must endure simply because ordinary brushing has failed to make them white and attractive. Don't you make this mistake.

You can have teeth that others will admire. Just use a half-inch of antiseptic Kolynos on a dry brush twice a day. And much sooner than you expected your teeth will look like you want them to.

When it enters the mouth Kolynos instantly foams into every tiny crevice. It washes away stain and discoloration. It erases tartar. Then it does what no ordinary toothpaste can do... It kills millions of germs that pour into the mouth and cause tooth and gum troubles and bad breath.

This double-action actually cleans teeth as they should be cleaned—right down to the beautiful, natural white enamel without injury. It stimulates and invigorates the gums and purifies the mouth.

Now don't let your teeth look uncared-for another day. A half-inch of antiseptic Kolynos on a dry brush morning and night will quickly make them flashing white and keep them sound. Try it.

GEORGIC SCHEDULES LABOR DAY CRUISE

NEW YORK, March 19.—The White Star Line's newest motor ship Georgic, which is scheduled to leave Liverpool for New York on her maiden trip June 26, will be sent on a four-day cruise to Bermuda over the Labor Day week-end, according to the cruise program just issued by the International Mercantile Marine Company, 1 Broadway, New York, agents for the line. The Georgic will leave New York September 2.

Thirteen other cruises to be carried out by ships of the Red Star and White Star lines are listed in the company's schedule for spring and summer cruises, and others will be announced in the near future. Bermuda, the St. Lawrence river and Halifax are included in the itineraries.

The Red Star liner Belgenland, which inaugurated the popular Show Boat cruises last year, is scheduled for a 12-day trip to the St. Lawrence on July 16, and three six-day triangular cruises to Halifax and Bermuda, July 30, August 6 and August 13.

The Georgic's sister ship, Britannic, is listed for a cruise to Bermuda May 27 and four-day cruises to Halifax July 25 and August 22.

The Homeric, of the White Star Line's New York-Southampton express service, will make a Halifax-Bermuda cruise, August 26 and a four-day cruise to Halifax over Labor Day.

Three cruises to Montreal will be made by the White Star liner Laurentic, July 23, August 3 and August 13, and the Red Star Line's Lapland will leave New York June 6 for a four-day cruise to Bermuda.

QUICKER TIME MADE TO W. YELLOWSTONE

CHICAGO, March 19.—A third of a day will be cut from the running time to Yellowstone Park from Chicago by the Chicago & Northwestern railway this summer when the special service to West Yellowstone from Chicago goes in June 17, C. A. Cairns, passenger traffic manager of the road, announced. Seven hours and ten minutes will be sliced from the westbound schedule and an even eight hours cut from the eastbound running time.

"As in former years, the service will be in effect from Chicago for about three months, from June 17 to September 17 and from West Yellowstone June 20 to September 20," Mr. Cairns stated. "The cars will leave Chicago daily at 10:15 p. m. on the Portland Rose instead of at 2:30 p. m. in the afternoon, and travelers will arrive at West Yellowstone at 3 p. m. the second day instead of 2:25 p. m. as in previous years.

"Returning, the cars will leave the park entrance at 1:40 p. m. instead of the 1:25 p. m. leaving time of last year, and will arrive in Chicago at 8:45 a. m. the second day instead of at 4:30 p. m. in the afternoon.

"This scheduled cuts the running time from 48 hours and 55 minutes westbound to 41 hours 45 minutes, and from 50 hours and 5 minutes eastbound to 42 hours and 5 minutes.

"In addition to this fast Yellowstone service, we have also arranged special Yellowstone cars via Salt Lake City, Utah, with a day's layover in Salt Lake both ways. These cars will leave Chicago on the Los Angeles Limited at 9:30 p. m., arriving in Salt Lake City at 10:35 a. m. the second morning. After a day in Salt Lake City, the cars will leave there at 8:30 p. m., arriving West Yellowstone at 7:30 the following morning, the third morning from Chicago. On the return trip the cars will leave Yellowstone at 7 p. m., lay over in Salt Lake City the following day, leaving there at 5:35 p. m., arriving in Chicago at 9:20 a. m. the second morning.

"We expect the combination of extremely low fares to the park, instituted for the first time this year from eastern points, and the new fast service to West Yellowstone to stimulate our business to this popular park this summer. Many organized parties have also signified their intentions of taking escorted trips to Yellowstone this year."

RESCUED TRAVELERS TAKEN TO NEW YORK

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 19. The Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York sailed today for New York, carrying among her other passengers 80 of those rescued from the Canadian National steamer Prince David, which struck a reef 12 miles off St. George and became disabled.

Latest advices from the survey being made of the foundered vessel give very little hope of salvaging her. Upon arrival in New York, most of her rescued passengers will proceed to their homes in New England and Canada.

LEVIATHAN TO SAIL THROUGH TO BREMEN

NEW YORK, March 19.—The United States Lines announced today that when the Leviathan re-enters the trans-Atlantic trade, leaving New York April 26, she will sail via England and France through to Bremen, Germany. The big express liner flying the Stars and Stripes is one of three vessels built in Germany, but all now in service under other flags, and will soon return to the land of her construction for the first time. Americans of German birth will be especially enthusiastic about the opportunities offered this year to sail aboard this popular vessel all the way to their homeland, and Bremen officials and businessmen are planning a gala civic welcome on the ship's arrival eraly in May.

The first port in the Leviathan's regular schedule, to be maintained throughout the year, will be Plymouth, England. According to Vice President P. V. G. Mitchell, the company is now conducting negotiations to determine the French port of call, which will be either Havre or Cherbourg.

The company's officials here also state that the only reason for diverting the Leviathan to Bremen is the regrettable fact that the authorities at Hamburg could not promise sufficient depth of water at that port for the safe handling of so huge a steamer, but shipping experts here believe the Hamburg authorities will soon remedy this situation in the interests of their port.

Hamburg, however, has been chosen as the European terminal for the two new mammoth liners of the United States company's fleet, the Manhattan and her unnamed sister ship, now under construction at Camden, N. J., and all other United States Lines' steamers, such as the President Roosevelt and President Harding, as well as the fleet of the Baltimore Mail Steamship Company, will continue to use Hamburg as their German terminus.

The Leviathan was entirely refitted for the trans-Atlantic passenger trade by the United States shipping board at a cost of nearly $10,000,000 and has carried many thousands of voyagers across the Atlantic. For the past three years this ship, together with other steamers of the United States Lines' fleet, has been controlled and operated by private American citizens. Far and wide she is known as the flagship of the American merchant marine and America's largest steamer, and next month will enter the service between the United States, Britain, France and Germany in the same spirit of good feeling that has characterized the pleasant relations of all these countries throughout the past decade.

COONS IS PROMOTED BY STEAMSHIP LINE

Friends of E. L. Coons, formerly commercial agent for the Eastern Steamship Lines with headquarters in Atlanta, heard Saturday of his promotion to assistant general freight agent of the same company with offices in New York city.

In his new work Mr. Coons will have general jurisdiction over freight solicitations for the city of New York as well as Norfolk, Richmond, Winston-Salem and Atlanta. Mr. Coons has been identified with steamship companies for the past 18 years in Atlanta and has been with his present company for 10 years.

Mr. Coons has built up a reputation in Atlanta and the southeast for his knowledge of shipping and is well qualified to assume his new duties in the east. He recently helped organize the Morningside Civic League. Mr. Coons was also prominently connected with the Atlanta Traffic Club.

Mr. Coons and his wife and daughter, who is a student at Agnes Scott College, will leave within the next few days for New York.

C. C. Wilkes, formerly traveling freight agent for the Eastern Steamship Lines in the southeast, will succeed Mr. Coons here.

NAN BAGBY STEPHENS.

MISS HOWELL REVIEWS MISS STEPHENS' BOOK

GLORY, by Nan Bagby Stephens. Published by John Day Co., New York.

So few of our southern women have taken time from their busy lives to write of the life of our people, until recently, and now that they have started the subject most often chosen seems to be life among the negroes.

As among the whites there are so many phases of negro life and character that a story well told of almost any locality is interesting. What Mrs. Peterkins and the Heywards have done for the negroes of South Carolina Miss Stephens has now done for those of Georgia, and a most interesting story she has given us in her first novel, "Glory," and one that should rank with those of South Carolina.

"Glory" begins with a meeting of the ladies' aid in the negro settlement in a small Georgia town, and as is true of a small town community of both races, the leaders in the church societies are the social leaders, too.

In this small town of Pittsburgh the negroes of the settlement are greatly excited over the arrival of a new preacher who has come to them from a near-by town. His past is unknown to his new flock, but he appears in thread-bare clothes, with much self-assurance, a silver tongue, and the desire to help—mostly himself! In his youth he was brought up on a farm where he helped his father in the fields, and at the age of 15 years had been called upon to speak to the other negroes who had congregated under the spreading arms of the great live oak, for the noon hour. He had talked so well that old Uncle Amos, the spiritual leader of the negroes, felt that he "had de call," and for the next two years was trained and taught the Scriptures so that he could become a preacher.

To quote from the book: "He (Uncle Amos) sent Cicero out still ignorant, still wholly unlearned in speech, but strong in fundamental knowledge, eager to try his wings, restless with the power that drove him hard.

"His path had not been easy. Those things that formed part of his early creed had brought him disappointment and failure. He learned gradually that what a congregation wants from its minister is not warning but sympathy. He learned flattering words. He became cunning in the ways of moving and swaying the people"—and he was called to a little backwoods town where the people of his race were waiting for something, someone to make life more interesting for them in this life and safer in the one to come.

The "sistern" of the ladies' aid had strained every pocketbook to have the church in perfect order for the new preacher's arrival and now that he had come and preached his first sermon there were rumblings of discontent with the "conference" for sending a "raggedy preacher"—none with the preacher himself. Having no family to look after his wardrobe and his welfare, that also would become the duty of the ladies' aid, and the meeting of the ladies' aid has been called to raise the money for the needed clothes. Sis Tempy, who kept the "Blue Front Caffy," and who had lived in New Orleans, was the leader of the ladies' aid, and she and Sis Lindy, Dootsie Stork, Frenchie Fowler (also from New Orleans) and all the other sistern of the church, are exceedingly well done.

On the outskirts of the settlement lives Roseanne Lee, where, under the big live oak, she spends her days at her washtub, trying to earn enough to finish paying for her house. The sistern know they can count on her for a contribution to the needed fund as she has never failed them when they have asked for money for their needs. Roseanne is a rarely fine character, and we recognize in her some of the negroes we have known. The one great passion in her life is her love for her little sister, Leola. To her mother and father, now dead, and to the little sister, she has given her whole life, and has denied herself everything so that Leola could have the advantages and clothes that other girls had. In protecting and working for her so entirely, Roseanne has developed Leola into an honest, upright girl, but dependent and timid, unable to stand firmly on her own feet.

Roseanne hasn't had time for meetings and church, her religion has been a practical religion, in doing the best that she could, being fair, charitable and kind, and her days spent in working to pay for the home she was buying for Leola and herself. She had never had time to play with the girls and boys of the settlement, for friends and lovers like the other girls had, and in her devotion to Leola she had never felt the need of anyone else. And to her home comes the ladies' aid to ask for help for the preacher from Roseanne—and from this visit comes tragedy to both Leola and Roseanne.

Miss Stephens has drawn a vivid picture of the sudden conversion to a religion that had never appealed to Roseanne, when she is brought under the influence of the persuasive voice of the preacher she has had no time to hear, and like most converts she becomes more religious than the others, and her emotionally starved nature confuses her love of God and the minister.

Cicero, the preacher, is irritated that Leola alone among the women of the church is not sufficiently impressed with his attractions, and on her he concentrates his magnetism and his malevolence. The fact that she has eyes and ears only for Rodney, who has no interest in the church, only adds to his displeasure, and his determination to possess her—and Roseanne's enthusiasm for her new religion, and for the preacher, only adds to the unhappiness and undoing of Leola, when she makes every effort to throw her under his influence.

Of the further development and the ending of the story I will leave the book to tell. Roseanne goes through the tortures of the martyrs in the betrayals of the two people she loves most, the one unwillingly, the other deliberately and maliciously, but in the end one is left with the feeling that through the tragedies and trials of these humble people, they have developed spiritually into characters that excite pity more than condemnation. We are made to see, not only their failings, but why they were as they were.

There is not a dull page in the book, and in the development of the story, of the characters, in her knowledge of the emotionalism of the race, and in her very good dialect of the south Georgia negro, Miss Stephens has done well, and one hopes it won't be a very long time before she gives us another story of Georgia of either race.

ROSALIE HOWELL.

FICTION.

Rafter Romance. By John Wells. A book of light fiction which is a bundle of laughs tied with a blue string. If the reader will study the title there will be something else to bring a smile—in other words, a little romance is to be found in the garret or the attic. But when Mary Carroll, a poor little lovable Minnesota girl became stranded in New York she had many thoughts a minute, and one was that she was not going back home. She was going to fight her own problems all by herself. When, and how, she accomplished it, is entertaining for an evening. (Brentano's Book, New York.)

The Party at the Penthouse. By Arthur M. Chase. A detective story so full of mysteries that the whole police force in a great metropolis were kept busy, head and feet. As the reader knows the latest fad is a penthouse and this one is 300 feet above the streets, the owner of which, a popular millionaire, had gathered one night 12 of his friends for a party whene a terrific clap of thunder breaks up the seance they were holding, only to give them the terrible shock of finding their host dead when the lights were turned on. There is not a dull moment from this time until the last chapter of the real mystery story. (Dodd Mead & Co., New York.)

Murder in the Dentist Chair. By Molly Thynne. This is an old-fashioned mystery story in which the detective and the reader work together until the climax is reached. (Covici Friede, New York.)

The Monster of Snowdon Hall. By Grove Wilson. The author was very little known when he wrote and the people read "Temperamental Jane." Since that time he has a list of admirers who have been eagerly waiting for his next story, and here it is!

The hero of the story is a most attractive young man but there is very little happiness now in store for him for his father is found dead in his own car at the entrance to Snowdon Hall, in Weschester county. It is the housekeeper who gives the alarm and the next night she is found dead, and then the next night the butler is found dead. All these horrors are facing Roak Snowdon, owner of Snowdon Hall. This is one of the most exciting stories that has been written—a mystery and a mystery within a mystery that needs the minds of many men to solve. (Ives Washington, publisher, New York city.)

The Story of Leland Gay. By Anthony Pryde. Author of "The Son of the House." Chapter 1 of this interesting story is a splendid introduction to a story of old times which is being presented in a modern setting, for the author has brought all the emotions of another age and another civilization to the front for the interest of this age.

The author says that "Leland Gay" is half English and half Russian and for this reason he is described as a most attractive young Englishman, and yet there are times when qualities come to the surface that his family do not recognize as English.

The plot is arranged and perhaps rearranged by this well known writer. It is intensely dramatic and it grips the reader with its tenseness from the very beginning. The characters, so well selected, are both attractive and entertaining, but no one has ever found the author's creations from the highest to the lowest anything but appealing. So it can well be said that the reader of another Anthony Pryde last week will not be disappointed in the atmosphere selected for his new story. (Dodd Mead & Co., New York.)

The Lost Caravan. By H. de Vere Stacpoole, author of "The Blue Lagoon." The author intends this to be a romance of the road—a story in which it was impossible to keep out tragedy, so when this boy and girl meet again it is in the Foreign Legion. It is a haunting story and one that brings pleasure in the present and none in the future. There are many different countries, as well as people, who play a part in the weaving of this dramatic story. (J. S. Sears Co., New York.)

The Richest Woman in Town. By Henry Bellamann. This strange drama of a strange couple, lovers, was staged in days when there was always some excitement going on up and down the old Mississippi river. The author of this story of those days is now dean of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. The following paragraph tells the whole story:

"The gin rickey was first introduced to a thirsty world by one Colonel Jamey Rickey, a suave gambler of the old school who frequented the Mississippi steamboats in the florid days following the Civil War. He later went to Washington and opened a bar, the floor of which was a mosaic of $20 gold pieces." Colonel Rickey was the prototype for Garrison Gracey, whose life the author has woven into "The Richest Woman in Town."

Garrison Gracey was one of the last of the well-known gamblers of the Mississippi steamboats, and one of the last things he said was: "The best of life is a few magnificent interludes; the rest long flat stretches, tiresome and monotonous." (The Century Co., New York).

Separate Star. By Mary Badger Wilson. The story of the junior members of the Leafton Club were in need of a swimming pool and after a little juggling among a few it was decided, for several reasons, that Evelyn Hart should interview Edward Martin of Hilltop House. The suggestion met with the eager approval of this popular girl who knew just how to powder her and who described herself as an "unfinished verb—all action and no object." Reader, this is a real love story, by a popular author and publisher. (The Penn Publishing Co., Philadelphia.)

The Nine Hundred Block. By Katharine Haviland Taylor. Author of "Yellow Soap." There was a rumor in the 900 block that a mother and daughter were coming there to live who were well known to every one in the block, so one day Johnny Deane, who heard very little gossip, saw the girl through the open door, and there is where the romance began. (Lippincott's Book, Philadelphia.)

'Literature of the Bible' Discussed By Mrs. Warren at Griffin Club

"The Literature of the Bible" was ably discussed by Mrs. L. C. Warren before the membership of Griffin Woman's Club, at the March meeting held in Memorial clubhouse, and presided over by Mrs. Harry Johnson, the president. Mrs. Warren stated that the Bible has been the inspiration for some of the most beautiful music, paintings, poetry and dramas that please the eye and ear. Beginning with the story of the creation and ending with the Revelation of John one finds all types of literature expressed in the most beautiful form, she pointed out. She spoke of the poetry of David as expressed in the Psalms. She also referred to the books that teach law, history, biography and prophecy.

The following contributions were acknowledged: Mrs. R. P. Shapard, $10.44, gift of the club to the state child welfare committee; $25 sent the Tallulah Falls Industrial school; $5 donated to the Students' Aid Foundation, and $5.75 given Miss Celia McCall, principal of the West Griffin school, to pay for 11 readers given pupils of the first grade by the Woman's Club.

A letter was read from the American Tree Association, of Washington, D. C., which accompanied a certificate stating that the boxwood planted on February 22 by the club in memory of George Washington, had been registered and the club is enrolled as a member of their tree planting army.

Mrs. J. H. Newman reported for the club.

Mrs. H. T. Johnson, president, announced that the Woman's Club had been put in charge of home repairing, painting and all other improvements in connection with the American Legion drive to find jobs for the unemployed and urged all members to cooperate fully.

The program was in charge of Mrs. A. O. Nunnally, chairman of the literary unit, and Miss Aline Cumming, chairman of the musical unit. A piano solo, "By the Sea," was played by Miss Edith Clanton, followed by a song, "We Worship the King." Miss Louise Kesler sang a solo, "Holy Bible, Book Divine," and "The Lord Is My Shepherd" was sung by the members. Mesdames Homer Gossett and J. A. Moore were co-hostesses, and Mrs. Moore read the collect, and Mrs. J. E. Elder read the minutes. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. Bryan Hammond, was accepted, and Mrs. J. A. Moore, corresponding secretary, read several interesting letters.

Members present were Mesdames Homer Gossett, W. E. H. Searcy Jr., D. C. Jimmerson, J. H. Newman, J. E. Elder, J. A. Moore, L. C. Warren, A. O. Nunnally, Steve Wallace, H. T. Johnson, Mobley Johnson, P. Y. Luther, Paul Watson, Frank Ellis, Bryan Hammond, and Misses Edith Clanton, Alnie Cumming and Louise Kesler.

Judge Franklin Gives Fine Talk On 'Law Observance'

Judge A. L. Franklin made a talk on "Law Observance" before Augusta Woman's Club and paid tribute to the part that women had played through all the ages in advancing the cause of civilization. In fact he gave all the credit for what civilization there exists today to women, their work and influence. He told the women that the greatest problem that confronted them today was to distinguish between propaganda and what was genuine, between the man who was seeking office because he thought that he was fitted for it and the man who was a mere office seeker.

Opposed by Groups.

Judge Parker stated that "the great difficulty in passing any legislation that was for the general good was that it was opposed by small groups who were trying to get across something for their own special benefit. He said that there were many good men, but that on the whole politics had taken the place of statesmanship. He urged the women to keep abreast of the times, to familiarize themselves with the problems of the day and to use their influence and their voting power in behalf of constructive legislation for the good of all and not for the benefit of any clique or for any hobby." He called attention to the Augusta Chronicle appeal for obeying the traffic laws and said how pitiful it was that the appeal should be necessary. He said that disregard and disrespect for the law were at the bottom of much of today's trouble.

The program was under the department of American citizenship and prepared by Miss Annie Mae O'Connell, chairman of the division of legislation and law enforcement. The luncheon served was in charge of Miss Emmie Nelson, home demonstration agent for Richmond county, and her committee. Assisting Miss Nelson in arranging the decorations and in serving the lunch were three of her 4-H girls, Laura Gaskill, Olive Dressel and Elizabeth Howard. These young girls were from Evans, Ga., and are students at Evans Academy, and wore white dresses and charming little green aprons.

Green and White.

It was a coincidence that not only are the colors of the 4-H clubs the same as those of the Woman's Club, green and white, so that the decorations were in these colors, and because the colors were unusually appropriate, since the date was so near St. Patrick's Day. The green shamrock of the 4-H clubs, which ornamented the menu cards gave an added and appropriate touch.

Mrs. Charles Bowen presided at the luncheon and turned the program over to Mrs. Barrett and Miss O'Connell. The guests were entertained by songs by Mrs. Claud McIntosh, who sang "The Banjo Player" and "Early News." Robert J. Watson's artistic accompaniment added to the pleasure.

Miss Annie Mae O'Connell introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Judge A. L. Franklin. She said that since the country and its welfare depended on the type of men holding office it was unfortunate that so many held these offices for purely selfish reasons and that as a result the government was far from an ideal one. However, there were men whose ideals rose above purely personal advantage and these men were the bulwark of the government. Such a man, she said, was Judge Franklin."

Miss Annie Mae O'Connell presented the club with a picture of the president, Mrs. Charles Bowen, which was the gift to the club of Mrs. Willis Wise, of the Wise-Hajos Photography Company.

Columbus Federation Makes Plans For Biennial Convention in May

At a recent meeting of the Columbus City Federation, called by the president, Mrs. Evelyn McGehee, for the purpose of formulating plans for the biennial state convention of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in May in Columbus, all the clubs composing the federation were represented and other interested friends were present. Clubs that form the City Federation are the Woman's Reading Club, Mrs. Foster Harley, president; Students' Club, Mrs. C. L. Mullin, president; Century Club, Mrs. Carl Greentree, president; Jewish Ladies' Aid, Mrs. Herman Rothschild, president; Wynnton Study Club, Mrs. J. N. Johnson, president; Fort Benning Infantry School Woman's Club, Mrs. Charles Hunt, president; Goodwill Industries, Mrs. J. T. Fletcher, president; Orpheus Club, Mrs. Rollo Brown, president.

The second annual convention of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs was held in Columbus in 1898. This city was host again in 1919 for the twenty-third convention. Arrangements are going forward to hold the business sessions of the meeting on May 3, 4, 5 and 6 in the First Baptist church, which is just across the street from the Ralston hotel that is to be headquarters. Delegates are urged to make hotel reservations promptly. Among the distinguished speakers who will appear on the convention program will be Mrs. E. M. Land, of Statesville, N. C., the candidate Georgia has endorsed for second vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Miss Jessie Dell, of Washington, D. C., a member of the United States civil service commission.

Officers of the Columbus federation are: Mrs. Evelyn McGehee, president; Mesdames John T. Fletcher, T. Charlton Hudson, W. B. Slade, vice presidents; Mrs. John Murrah, recording secretary; Mrs. I. B. Rothschild, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Rhodes Brown, treasurer, and Mrs. George Burrus, publicity chairman.

'American Homes' Featured on Program Of Monroe Club

"American Homes," an all-important topic to Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, was featured on the Monroe Woman's Club March program by Mrs. Otto Preston, chairman of the committee. Mrs. Ed Caldwell read a paper on "The Environment of Home," and stated that the ideal clubwoman is a home-maker. "The home-maker today must be gifted in all of the five things of life. First, she must be a Christian; she must know art, in the broad sense, not only for the interior of the home, but landscaping as well. She must be thrifty, a good business woman and manager, a splendid cook and well trained in the arts of cooking. The beautiful spirit of a woman spurs those with whom she comes in contact on to higher ambitions and in adversity, she gives courage and faith," said Mrs. Caldwell.

"The time will come when parents must be as interested in the spiritual training of their children as they are in their physical health, mental achievement and social advancement. The place where this training should take place is in the home which is the most powerful of all educational agencies," she concluded.

Mrs. Lewis Presides.

Mrs. Lena Felker Lewis, president of the club, occupied the chair, and the hostesses were Mesdames E. M. Williams, E. L. Almand, J. J. Summerour, Thomas Hansord and Otto Preston. Joseph Greer played a piano solo, "Humoresque Negre," by Homer Grunn.

Mrs. W. H. Lott read "It's Up to the Women," by Loring A. Schuler. She said "the pocketbook of the American woman is the barometer of American business. In boom times she is a liberal spender. In bad times, she is a desperate hoarder of money. Right now, if she opens her purse, she can help end the depression."

Spending and Saving.

The following is a program of spending and saving that will contribute directly and indirectly to the welfare of the family, the community and the nation in bringing about the return of normal conditions in business and employment:

1. Maintain normal living conditions. The food you eat, the clothes you wear, the house you live in constitute your standard of living. Don't lower it. Protect it; 2. Satisfy your wants at today's prices; 3. Buy a home now. The house and lot you buy at today's prices will surely be a sound and profitable purchase. A splendid way to save; 4. Modernize and repair your home; 5. Join the parade to prosperity; 6. Stop being afraid. 7. Don't hoard your money—keep it safe.

Refreshments were served by the American home department by Mesdames Murray, W. C. Jarman, Alex Story, R. Huckabee, Willis Brown and Miss Victoria Evans. Ninth District Meets March 22

Mrs. A. D. McCurry, of Winder, president of the ninth district, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, was a recent visitor at federation headquarters, Henry Grady hotel, Atlanta, and gave the announcement of the ninth district executive board meeting that will be held in the Dixie Hunt hotel, Gainesville, Tuesday, March 22, at 10 oclock, eastern standard time. At this meeting there will be many important matters for discussion, so Mrs. McCurry urges each of the 18 clubs in the district to have representation.

An important unit of the organized work of women in the ninth district is the Jackson county federation, Mrs. C. E. Pittman, of Jefferson, president. The county federation is the last link in the great chain of women's organizations, but it is an all important link, because through it the mind and heart and home of every woman may eventually be reached. Writing of the mission of the county federation, Mrs. Phede K. Warner, general federation chairman of rural co-operation, says: "Our greatest national waste is not our unharnessed water power, nor the soil erosion. Neither is it our reckless waste of food and fuel. Our greatest national waste is the unorganized power of our 6,000,000 farm women. If they were as thoroughly organized as our city women, and their hands, heads and hearts functioning in unison for the welfare of their home communities they would in time do more for farm relief, rural education, civic righteousness and home improvement than all our legislators can ever do and it wouldn't cost the government a cent. The mission of the county federation is to provide a program of club work that will eventually bring all the constructive forces in every county together for the enrichment of every life, every home, every school and every community in the entire country."

She stated that associations should make a careful study of the tax situation, so they may know what they have a right to expect for their children. "A P.-T. A. should be a volunteer organization, free from group control, democratic in objects, memberships, form of government; building a united community, state and nation," said Mrs. Center. "Local by-laws must conform to those of the national, which provide that anyone interested in children may become members," continued the speaker.

Mrs. R. P. Cheshire Discusses Parent-Teacher Objectives

BY MRS. ROBERT P. CHESHIRE, President of Atlanta Parent-Teacher Council.

For several months the writer has endeavored through the press to give the important features of each activity undertaken by parent-teacher organizations affiliated with the Atlanta council. The work has been a pleasure and if one article has brought a worthwhile message to one association the writer will feel well rewarded for her efforts.

The objectives set up in the permanent platform and resolutions of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers are as follows: (1) Health and safety; (2) worthy home membership; (3) mastery of the tools, technics and spirit of learning; (4) citizenship and goodwill; (5) vocational and economic effectiveness; (6) wise use of leisure, and (7) ethical character. No one of these objectives is independent of the others. Growth at any one of these points enriches life along the other lines.

The Atlanta Council of Parents and Teachers, through its various departments, is striving to achieve this broader view of the child's growth through the co-operation of the home, the school, the church and the community. This permanent platform will be fully realized in the life of tomorrow, as the masses are awakening to the fact that education is inward growth or adjustment on the part of the pupil. This new spirit is sweeping parents and teachers in its wake, is making them understand that this change, this growth comes from within and it concerns life as a whole.

In the future school the first six years of the child's life will be considered the most important. The guidance of growth of the child will begin earlier and continue not for a definite length of time but until adjustments are made. In the parent-teacher movement the home and the school seek to keep ever before them the vision of the well-rounded life, the achievement of which means happiness, harmony of life, living instead of existing.

The achievement of happiness means health; it means developing the intellect. The high standard of living is maintained through vocational and economic effectiveness. Worthy home membership means extending the growth of the child. Honesty, adherence to principle, willingness to serve, consideration for others' rights, are all summed up in citizenship and goodwill. A conservation of leisure time, the wise use of leisure, enriches life. The one predominant achievement that leads off in very field of the seven-point life is ethical character. With this parent-teacher organization this dynamic movement, working toward educating for seven-point lives, the child will, undoubtedly, live a richer, fuller life, will live a complete life.

Obedience Stressed By Capitol View

"Prompt and cheerful obedience is the result of careful training," was the dominant point stressed by Mrs. Grace Greverus in her talk on "Obedience" to the mothers of the third and fourth grades of Capitol View school at its meeting held Tuesday. M. E. Coleman spoke to the fifth and sixth grades group on "The Adolescent Child" and impressed his hearers with the fact that character is not made or unmade in a day, but is the result of patient training day by day. Dr. C. H. Currens continued his talk on "Overcoming Childhood Problems" to the mothers of kindergarten, first and second grade children. Dr. Currens is a fluent speaker and imparts worthwhile ideas that can be used in everyday problems in rearing children.

After the study groups there was a general meeting in the kindergarten room called by the president, Mrs. P. E. Davenport, and followed by prayer by Mrs. Cawthon.

On account of illness in her family, Mrs. E. H. Batchelor resigned as vice president and Mrs. Herman Jones was elected to fill the vacancy.

FIRE PREVENTION LECTURES GIVEN CALHOUN SCHOOL

Last week our school from the kindergarten through the sixth grades got quite a thrill out of the visit of Chief Terrell and several of his men. They taught us how to turn on a fire alarm and gave us some valuable lessons on how to prevent fires. Most of us have signed the pledge to become junior firemen.

The first grade has a very attractive border of tulips.

The second grade pupils have almost completed their Indian sand table.

The boys and girls in the third grade are enjoying the study of Switzerland. They think "Heidi" is one of the best stories they have ever read.

Low and High 4 have an attractive Easter boarder of dressed-up rabbits and chickens which the children made. This class is very proud of having the greatest number of parents present at the P.-T. A. at the last two meetings.

Austin Shirkie is the champion marble player in Low 5, and will compete with boys from the other grades for school championship this week.

Low 6 is writing a medieval play which they hope to present in the late spring.

High 6 is glad to welcome Hugh Rutledge and Marie Hanson. This class has made an Easter boarder of Br'er Rabbit and early spring birds.

OPPORTUNITY HAS LEAP YEAR DANCE ON ROOF GARDEN

The Atlanta Opportunity School sponsored a leap year dance on Friday night from 9 until 12 o'clock on the roof garden of the Georgia Tech Evening School of Commerce at 223 Walton street. The music for the occasion was furnished by Charlie Black and the Seven Playboys.

The shop work under the direction of J. A. Caldwell continues to grow. A donation consisting of radio sets, batteries, speakers and other radio apparatus was made recently by Mr. Levine, of Sears-Roebuck Company. This much-needed equipment is appreciated by the shop and is being used for instructional purposes by boys who expect to become radio repairmen.

Charlie Black's minstrel, "Varieties of 1932," will be presented on April 8 at 8 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. auditorium, under the auspices of Atlanta Opportunity School. This production is a review in ten acts and is composed of Atlanta talent. Tom Dickey and his Melody Kings will furnish the music for all numbers.

LUCKIE CHILDREN SEE STAR GROUPS WITH TELESCOPE

Chief Terrell visited Luckie last week and gave a lecture on fire prevention. He brought with him two kinds of fire alarm boxes and a fire extinguisher. He told us how to use the alarms in case of need and explained to us the danger of using a penny behind a fuse. He gave us blanks to be filled out in case we wished to become junior firemen. Many of us signed and we are now enrolled at fire headquarters. We hope that we can be of real assistance in fire prevention.

High 5 enjoyed their visit to Judge Humphries last Monday night. They saw Venus, Orion, Jupiter and Sirius, in all their loveliness. They appreciate Judge Humphries' kindness in letting them look through his telescope.

Superintendent's Message

My Dear Boys and Girls:

March 25 is the day set apart by the government of the great state of Georgia for the observance of temperance in all the public schools of state. I sometimes fear that when we get through observing a particular day we think that we have discharged our obligation to that particular virtue, but I want every boy and every girl in the Atlanta public schools to learn the great and beautiful art of being temperate in all things.

The temperate life means the well balanced life. The Greeks had an expression—"Nothing to Excess," and possibly this motto carved into the very heart of their national life is accountable for their wonderful success.

On this particular day I require and expect that every classroom in the city of Atlanta shall have a program on temperance, and that we shall specifically teach on that particular day by our programs, by our exercise, our drama, or whatever means we take of expressing the idea, the evil effects of alcohol and narcotics upon the human system. I shall expect you to study especially these two subjects in order that we may know how simple and wrong it is to destroy our bodies with narcotics or alcoholic drinks. We must be temperate also in the keeping of our whole body well and strong, and free from anything that would destroy its wholeness and completeness. We should think also of the laws that are in effect in order to try to make people more thoughtful, and we should guard especially our state and national constitution which tried to teach us the great law of temperance. Our bodies are the temple of the Holy Ghost. We should keep them clean and pure and free from all pollution, and alcohol pollutes and destroys the highest and best cells of our body. It is a great enemy to youth. Let us learn to abstain from all alcoholic drinks.

Always Your Friend,
WILLIS A. SUTTON, Superintendent of Schools.

BROWN HIGH CHOOSES REPRESENTATIVE GIRL

Annually the contest for "Miss Joe Brown" is put on at that school and this time the Joe Brown student body showed an overglowing amount of spirit in putting the contest over. Rose Carter, Grace Sanders and June Howard so far have been the chief contestants. First one and then another of these three girls have taken the lead. The others have been coming right along and with a mighty "spurt" they, too, could be in the foremost of the contestants. The contest began Monday and lasted throughout the week.

Construction of tennis courts for the use of the Joe Brown students was begun last Monday and is to be finished in the near future. Instead of wooden posts being used for the backstops this year steel posts put in holes of cement are to be used with the usual wire covering. The courts have already been scraped and, with the coming of tennis season, the courts will be ready for service.

Mrs. J. Q. Hooper will again head the Joe Brown P.-T. A., as she was elected president of that organization. Mrs. O'Kelly called the meeting to order and after the minutes were read the treasurer's report was had. Dr. W. T. McElveen, pastor of Congregational Christian church, said: "Parents should investigate moving pictures before allowing their children to see them." Captain Jack Malcom spoke on safety. The attendance banners were awarded to H-9-1, Mr. Hankinson; L-9-2, Griffith; H-8-4, tie; L-8-6, Gilliland; H-7-4, Mr. Golden; L-7-3, Lunn.

Robert Crawley, of Joe Brown, was the winner of the speaking contest on anti-hoarding at the city hall auditorium as well as at Joe Brown. Warrick Elrod was second in Joe Brown. Joe Brown is indeed honored and proud to have one of its members the winner of this citywide contest.

RUSSELL SCHOOL STUDENTS ENTER ESSAY CONTEST

The coming week is examination week at Russell High school. Examinations over the third quarter's work will be given Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Last Tuesday morning the U. D. C. essay contest was held. "The Life of John B. Gordon" was the subject this year. A relatively large number of members of all classes in school entered the contest.

The Russell High Glee Club presented a very enjoyable program Friday morning in the school auditorium. The price of admission was 5 cents. The proceeds from this entertainment will be used to pay transportation expenses when the glee club goes to Macon to attend the G. E. A.

The military department is busy preparing for government inspection. It is reported that the local unit will be inspected within the next two weeks. The commandant has ordered a general review of the year's work during the remaining days before inspection.

The Hi-Y Club is meeting with a fair degree of success in the Bible discussions held every Thursday afternoon. Thus far the meetings have been well attended, and the discussions have been lively.

The participants in the Fifth District meet are busy preparing for the contests. The debating teams are working hard and are fast rounding into form. The representatives in the ready-writer and declamation contests are also priming themselves. Entrants in the other contests have not yet been selected, but will be chosen at an early date.

Miss Solomon visited us last week. We always enjoy having her with us.

The pupils of Low 1 are glad to find that the flowers and ferns in their indoor garden are still green after the recent cold spell. The children in this grade have made a pretty Easter border in their room, which adds a touch of spring.

The pupils of Low 3 have been making some interesting posters about the Early Herdsmen. They are glad to have Betty Jane Hancock back again after an illness of several days.

The children of High 3 are having a very interesting trip to Japan. They have made some very pretty Japanese lanterns.

High 6 pupils are very much interested in the study of the stars. They have completed their "Familiar Stars" chart. This class is enjoying a trip to South America. The class is divided into three groups—each group traveling a different route. They have written to every country in South America, hoping to get information that will help in the study of the continent.

CENTRAL NIGHT HAS COUNCIL ELECTIONS

Election ballyhoo and "literature" has deluged the ancient corridors of Central Night school the past week as two student political bodies vied for the honor of having their candidates in the three seats of the student council offices.

As this is written, a school-wide caucus is being held in the school auditorium and on the following night, March 17, the battle will be won and lost, too late to reach this column.

In convention last Thursday, March 10, the federal party nominated Bill Ellis to be its presidential choice. Albert Ungar and Sallie Cook were his colleagues for the posts of vice president and secretary, respectively. The union party's colors were carried by Bill Watson, presidential nominee; Graham Bearse, for vice president, and Henrietta Autey, for secretary.

Reviving the Chicken Pie Twice-a-Week League and enabling students and patrons to obtain their evening meal economically, the cafeteria of the Moonlight University was reopened to the school public, March 14.

Postponement of a dance of the Thomas Jefferson Literary Society, originally scheduled for March 18, was announced by society officers last week. It was tentatively decided to hold the dance March 25.

HIGHLAND PUPILS IN FIRST GRADE HAVE ALLIGATOR

The kindergarten children enjoyed the snow last week. They liked to see the snow fall and the long icicles. They made many interesting snow pictures.

Low 1 was so sorry to lose Billy Burch, who has moved to Tenth Street school.

The children in Mrs. Hodges' High 1 have a new pet, a baby alligator, which Jimmie Ingman's father brought them from Florida.

The boys in Miss Corley's room have finished painting a sled they made. Wednesday the class enjoyed cutting snow flakes.

Miss Kline's class has a library in the room. Everyone belongs and enjoys reading the books. We also have library cards upon which we keep the names of the books we have read.

In February, a white ribbon for reading was given to each child who had read at least five books at home during the first semesttr. In Miss Lawrence's class 24 children won these ribbons. The winners are Jean Aronstam, Anjolee Atkisson, Mildred Bales, Tina Capossela, Emma Sue Chandler, Carolyn Culbertson, Jane Noland, Marion Rosenberg, Gloria Swann, Eleanor White, Anne Wynne, George Awtry, James Barnwell, Ralph Carkuff, Jack Hirsch, John Cheeseman, Clayton Hoper, Jule Wallis, Frank Wesley and Henry Spencer.

The children in Miss Green's class hope June Cathcart will soon be able to come to school. We miss her very much. We have been seeing and studying about many interesting pictures in the ancient world in connection with our study of Phoenicia. It is fun to write words in the Phoenician language.

Miss Orr's class have adopted some rules which they call the "Be Rules." They are: Be honest, Be truthful, Be polite, Be obedient, Be helpful, Be kind.

Miss Massengale, Miss Pollard and Miss Jones spent last Monday with us and we enjoyed their visit very much, and hope they will come again soon.

A group of Mrs. Richardson's pupils enjoyed a visit to the city hall last week. Miss Slocumb invited them to talk to the fifth and sixth grade probationary teachers about the Indian symbols they had made.

The kindergarten was glad to have Mary Joe Shiver back again. She has just come back from Tampa, Fla.

Low 1 have made pretty rabbits for their windows, and High 1 has been learning how to bake potatoes.

High 3 are learning the poem called "The Wind."

Low 4 planted a shrub on Ann White's birthday.

High 5 has a very interesting St. Patrick border around the board.

Low 6 children are making a black board border showing different phases of Medieval life.

High 6 made an interesting trip to the state capitol. We saw how rabbits and guinea pigs are inoculated with various diseases for experiment, and how animal brains are tested to see if the animal was mad. We also saw different serum that are used in preventing diseases.

Mr. Toombs told us about registration of births, and gave us blanks to fill out and send in to see if our births are registered.

It was a very interesting visit.

H. SMITH TEAM WINS CITY CHAMPIONSHIP

After many afternoons of hard practice and excellent guidance by Coach Cook, the Hoke Smith boys' basketball teams proved themselves victors of the city championships when they defeated Joseph E. Brown Junior High, 27 to 19.

Hard fights were offered by other schools, but the Hoke Smith teams stood foremost in front of the foe and were defeated only twice.

The first team was composed of Ginsberg, Tinsley, Sisk, King and Lloyd. The second consisted of Elrod, Eden, Bizinsky, F. Baumgartner and R. Baumgartner.

Two new sets of library books have been placed on the shelves for use by the students and teachers. The first is the "Library of Southern Literature," consisting of 16 volumes, and the seconds is "The Outline Study of Knowledge," of 20 volumes. These will be of great service in school work.

The chief officers have been elected or appointed for this semester. With Raymond King as president and Virada Culver vice president of the student body; Sidney Reid was re-elected chief marshal; Ruth Lockhart, chief secretary, and Louis Siegal, chief treasurer. Nellie Williams was elected chief health officer, and Martha Colley was re-appointed editor-in-chief of the Vanguard.

The oral English classes of Miss Helen Torrence have been made public speaking classes. With a presiding chairman and secretary, the classes are conducted as if they were public meetings. Various programs are carried out each class period, and it has proven quite interesting to hear different opinions expressed about newspapers, magazines, etc.

Many classes have succeeded in getting 100 per cent perfect teeth. The goal has been set for April 1. This means a holiday if the school goes "over the top" in this project.

The terrariums in R. W. Wood's homeroom have aroused much interest among the students. One consists of a castle surrounded by a hedge and is being watched to see how long the miniature plants can live without water.

ENGLISH AVENUE DETERMINES BEST SCHOOL SPELLERS

Last Friday, March 12, a group of firemen came to our school and talked to us on the prevention of fires and the correct way to turn in an alarm in the case of fire. We shall always try to remember that after an alarm is turned in we must stand by the box until the fire truck comes. We also learned why blown fuses must be replaced, the danger of using pennies to take their places, and how to use a fire extinguisher. We appreciate the talks the firemen gave and were so glad to make the acquaintance of Mr. Terrell, Mr. McGee and Mr. Johnston.

We have had an exciting time at our school selecting the best speller and an alternate to represent our school in the contest for the best speller in the elementary schools. Two of the best spellers were chosen from the fifth and sixth grades and we went to the audtiorium to see who would be the winner. It was decided that three matches would be held. Marjorie Funderburke, of High 5-I, remained standing in two of the matches after all other children had been spelled down. Annie Mae Smallwood, High 5-II, stood up in one match. Charleene Sullivan, of Ungraded A, made such a splendid showing that she was chosen as an alternate. We congratulate Marjorie Funderburke, who will be our first choice and Charleene Sullivan on winning the honor of representing our school.

Miss Cox, of the Carnegie library, is always doing thoughtful things for us that bring us pleasure. She brought Miss Van Cleave, of Chicago, to our school. Miss Van Cleave told us stories and read us poems. We enjoyed their visit and want to thank them for the pleasure they gave us.

We had such an interesting letter from Panama the other day. This letter was written to us by Roy Parlier, who attended English Avenue school 10 years ago. Our school was quite happy to know that Roy loved his school well enough to think of us and write to us after being away 10 years. He spoke of how often he thought of our school and its teachers. The ship Rochester, on which he is stationed, is to visit many countries and Roy says he is going to send us pictures and booklets from the countries in Europe and the far east. He sent a booklet and folder about Panama with his letter. One of our classes answered this letter, thanking him for the booklet and sending him best wishes from our teachers and pupils.

The second grade are sorry to lose Annie Lee Letson. She has moved away to another town.

The third grade pupils are very proud of their sandtable garden. They drew plans for it and the best one was chosen. We had to learn how to measure before we could make it.

The fourth grade are certainly interested in their study of Vikings.

The fifth grade are very interested in their dodge ball. We are trying to get two good teams so that we can play some other school.

Our champion spellers in the sixth grade are George Hodges and Sarah Huff. They will represent us in the Journal spelling contest at Lee Street school.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOL SHOW AIDS CHARITY

Sponsored by the P.-T. A., the minstrel was given in the Commercial auditorium last Friday and was pronounced a financial as well as an artistic success. The proceeds were used for food and clothing for the needy and to help defray the expense of a delegation to a convention at Macon.

The minstrel was directed by Gwynne Burrows, while another faculty member, W. I. Axtell, in his capacity of interlocutor, plied the endmen with conundrums and jokes.

The big moments of the show came with a harmonica interpretation of that old standby, "St. Louis Blues," by J. H. Andrews, Elmer Coleman's sermon, and Charles Gallager's idea of "Courtship Days."

Following the minstrel, girls from the dramatic arts classes presented "Mrs. Black's Pink Tea," a farce which reached its climax when it was discovered that the pink tea was green.

Vivian Bryan, who furnished music throughout upon the piano, was termed invaluable by the director.

Attending the older boys' conference of north Georgia, Hiram Hartley, Elmer Coleman, James Rolleston, Charles Hollingsworth and W. I. Axtell, adviser, represented Commercial Chapter Hi-Y at Rome, March 11, 12, and 13.

One hundred and twenty-five delegates were present to hear Dr. Harvey W. Cox and other prominent speakers, and to make an excursion through the Berry school there.

Twenty-three journalistic and literary entries were sent from Commercial in the national scholastic awards contest. Winners of the contest will be announced and their entries published in the April 30 issue of Scholastic magazine.

HOSPITAL GIVEN EASTER BASKETS BY COUCH PUPILS

High 6 is making lovely Easter baskets to brighten the season for the dear children at the Scottish Rite hospital. This is a labor of love from these busy fingers.

All the school assembled in the auditorium Thursday to hear some valuable instructions on what to do in case of fire given by our genial fire chief and one of his aids. Every week we have a fire drill. It takes a very short time for the house to be emptied, although more than half the school go down two flights of steps to reach the ground floor. We never expect to have a sure enough fire, if ounces of prevention mean anything.

High 3 "sailed" for Holland this week and "landed" in about five minutes, breaking all steamship records for speed. The canals and windmills challenged their attention, but all the rest of this little ocean-ridden country was vitally interesting to these "first overs."

Low 4 children are delving deep into Phoenician lore, though we are still at a loss to know of what use they can put it after excavation from the forgotten past.

High 4 is winding in and out of the fjords of Norway, getting glimpses of treeless heights, crystal waters, mountain-draped waterfalls—a kalied-oscopic masterpiece of nature's marvelous handiwork.

Miss Alice Foster, Low 3 teacher, says there is not a child in her grade who is below par. An inspiring sight to see everyone in a class bent on doing his level best! Miss Maughon, Low 2-1, gives the same fine report of her grade. Every child at work is the goal for which we strive.

All of us helped to make the beautiful invitations sent to our daddies last week. Easter emblems, so dear to the children, were used in the illustrations.

Most of us being of good Scotch-Irish ancentry are loyal to our patron saint, so when his natal day came round Thursday, we wore the green in true Erin spirit. Some of the children with commendable initiative, sported home-made shamrock, cut out of green drawing paper, and "By Killarney's Lakes and Rills" was the favorite tune of the day.

Friday was National Temperance Day, required by state law to be observed in all schools, and a mighty good law it is, if you ask me and all the rest of the people brought up in anti-prohibition days. It is to the eternal credit of our government that the children of today are given training to make the world safe for temperance in a brighter tomorrow.

The special class has spent some busy hours down on the brook making bricks out of clay.

GENEVA WILSON.

Mr. Wood, with several pupils, are preparing a play, "Miss Molly," to be given the latter part of this month.

The editorial staff for the school paper was selected last week and we feel sure the paper is going to be successful, although we do not have a printing press as other schools have and will have to have it mimeographed at the present time.

Low 4 is enjoying traveling in Egypt. The guides, who are members of Group One in reading, are helping us very much in discovering many interesting facts about Egypt.

Low 3 is trying to do its best work. We get flags on our best papers. We have many good citizenship papers on our bulletin board.

High 2 is very much pleased and interested in the way the avocado pear tree on the sandtable is growing. It is nearly two feet tall. We are wondering first what we are going to do if it wants to grow higher than the ceiling. A tulip bulb that we had decided was dead has the tip of its little green nose stuck above the earth this morning proving to us that it has only been asleep.

The Indian bowls that High 2 have made, both of paper and clay, are the best their teacher has had from any class. They have also cut some interesting and unusual thunder-bird designs.

TECH HIGH CLUB DANCE DECLARED MOST SUCCESSFUL

After a picturesque grand march on Friday evening, March 4, at Moonlight Gardens, the Alpha chapter of the Prynosoma Cornutum Club of Tech High had the most successful dance ever given by the school. There were some five hundred students and friends present to enjoy the annual affair. Mr. Smith, potentate, and Don Hunter, president, say it was a glorious affair, which was proven as it overran the time limit by an hour.

Tech High will soon have a genuine track field to present to the trackers. It is hoped that the weather will be so as to permit the boys to practice by the time the field is completed.

Plans are fast being made for the annual exercises that are to be held in April. Already the subject for the annual debate is announced: "Resolved, That light and power should be owned and operated by the United States Government."

Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of Druid Hills Baptist church, will deliver a talk on "The Meaning of Easter" at the weekly assembly of the Junior High class of North Avenue Presbyterian school at 1 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon in the Junior High hall.

Announcement was made Saturday that, due to the recent freezing weather which killed most of the flowers, the exhibits which were to have been a part of the program Wednesday probably will be replaced by an exhibit of sprouting vegetables, evergreens and winter gardens. The award will be for the class that shows the greatest originality in substituting an attractive exhibit for the usual flower exhibits.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

EDITED by RALPH T. JONES

S. R. O.

by Ralph T. Jones

Of course every theatergoer, even the most casual, is interested in the announcement today of the forthcoming appearance of Fred Stone in the big production, "Smiling Faces." With Paula, his daughter, and a big company of genuine Broadway caliber, the Erlanger engagement should pack 'em in. Note carefully it is for two days only.

* * * *

An interesting announcement to be made in the near future concerns the local showing of a group of German operetta pictures. Atlanta has gone too long without enjoying these productions, which have delighted New York and other big city audiences for some years. The German films are said to far outdo anything in the musical operetta class yet achieved at Hollywood and, best of all, everyone can enjoy them, the German language being no bar at all to following the plot and, of course, it has nothing whatever to do with the charm of the music or the cleverness of the acting. No more than the nationality of Strauss detracts one whit from the witchery of that waltz of waltzes, "The Blue Danube."

* * * *

Congratulations to Love B. Harrell, secretary of the Atlanta Theater Managers' Association, a budding attorney and otherwise important figure in local circles. Love was elected a vice president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America at the annual convention in Washington last week.

* * * *

They are busy cleaning up at the Paramount. Complete renovation and revivication of the splendid theater is underway, preparatory to its reopening next Saturday. At last, after many rumors and hopes, the theater, always one of Atlanta's best beloved show shops, is really to reopen. Publix is going to present an enlarged and bigger program of feature pictures, RKO vaudeville and other attractions. With a big orchestra, etc., etc. In fact, they are going to shift the entire show now at Keith's Georgia over to the Paramount, enlarge and improve it, and make the Paramount, once again, one of the local "big" houses.

* * * *

The Georgia will present a policy of the biggest and best pictures made, changing programs twice a week and with a popular scale of prices all over the house.

* * * *

A few favored Atlantans have heard Graham Jackson, the negro musician, play a pipe organ. They have been truly favored. For there is, positively, no one who plays an organ quite like Graham. A movement is reported underway to arrange for a public concert, probably at the auditorium, at which an organ recital by Graham will be an important part of the program. It is time the Atlanta people as a whole had opportunity to hear this musical wizard play the instrument he plays best of all. Watch for this attraction and, if it is arranged, don't fail to be in the audience. I know. I've heard Graham play.

* * * *

Please read, carefully, the reports of the pre-viewer, which follow. Space forbids, this week, any extended comment upon forthcoming pictures, but you'll find most of 'em mentioned below:

* * * *

Diary of a Pre-Viewer.

* * * *

MONDAY—"Ben Hur," at Loew's Grand. The tremendous production of silent film days made even more impressive by synchronization with sound. Of course, no dialogue, but the sound effects add lots to the effectiveness of the chariot race. And you remember Ramon Novarro, Francis X. Bushman and the other principal players, of course.

* * * *

WEDNESDAY—"Tarzan," at the Fox. A sure-fire box-office smash if ever there was one. Author Burroughs' wild man character, portrayed so perfectly by Johnny Weissmuller that he lives as truly on the screen as in your imagination as you read the books. Some of the most marvelous jungle scenes and wild animal stuff you've seen yet. Better, undoubtedly, than "Trader Horn."

* * * *

THURSDAY—"One Hour With You," at the Georgia. Maurice Chevalier, Jeannette Macdonald, Roland Young, Charlie Ruggles, Genevieve Tobin, etc., in a typically delicious Chevalier picture. Directed by Ernst Lubitsch. Worthy of the great star and the great director. What more could anyone say? A delightful cocktail of whimsy to stir you to grins and guffaws in a none-too-cheerful world.

* * * *

* * * *

FRIDAY AFTERNOON—"Prestige," at RKO-Pathe projection room, on Walton street. With Ann Harding. Any Ann Harding picture is an event. This not less so than the others. A story of the white man's burden of keeping strong his racial prestige in a lonely outpost of civilization, where savage humans threaten to engulf the white man's little oasis of decency. A strong and engrossing story, splendidly acted and finely directed. Playing the Rialto this week.

Blondes in Majority on Screens This Week

According to the still photographs shown above, blondes seem to predominate in decided fashion on Atlanta's talking screens this week. Upper left shows three saucy gold diggers of Park avenue, who are impersonated in "The Greeks Had a Word for Them," at Keith's Georgia by Madge Evans, Ina Claire and Joan Blondell. Upper right is a scene from "She Wanted a Millionaire," which is the feature attraction at the Fox. Joan Bennett and Spencer Tracy are seen in the lead roles. Center left is from "Prestige," at the Rialto, which brings the delightful Ann Harding back once more. With her is shown Adolphe Menjou, the suave. The lady in the circle is Constance Bennett, who is starring in "Lady With a Past," current attraction at the Capitol. Lower left is Ramon Novarro, who plays the title role in "Ben Hur," which, with sound, is showing again at Loew's Grand, latter half of the week. And at lower right is a scene from "Maker of Men," Columbia production at the Cameo on Monday and Tuesday, with Jack Holt and Joan Marsh. If you can find a brunette in that layout—other than Ramon Novarro—you should visit your occulist right away.

'Greeks Had a Word for Them' Is Showing at Georgia Theater

Ina Claire, Joan Blondell, Madge Evans Seen as Three Jealous Gold-Diggers—Famous Protean Actor on Stage.

The crowds that attended the Keith's Georgia theater Saturday left doubled with mirth after viewing the antics of three merry gold-diggers, Ina Claire, Joan Blondell and Madge Evans, in Samuel Goldwyn's latest production, "The Greeks Had a Word for Them."

Stepping out of the ordinary, the makers of this picture have teamed the beauty of these young heronies with the beauty prepared by Chanel, noted modiste of Paris, who has made gowns valued at $100,000 for this film.

The picture portrays the adventures of three ex-chorus girls at liberty to pursue the hapless millionaire to his lair and execute the capture and partake of the spoils.

The three young ladies acquire the timely nickname of the "Three Musketeers of Broadway" in their rampages in penthouses, ocean liners, and ritzy apartments.

The male leads are well taken care of by no other personages than Lowell Sherman, David Manners and Phillips Smalley.

Owen McGiveney, the celebrated protean actor, identified for years with "Bill Sikes," the playlet in which he portrayed the climax from Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist," brought a new thriller to the stage. Mr. McGiveney is seen in a melodramatic thriller by H. L. Miles called "The Manor Murder Mystery," in which the star, as is his custom, acts all of the characters. Through a remarkable series of quick changes, Mr. McGiveney assumes four different roles—a desperate and hunted convict; a middle-aged and self-respecting housekeeper; the youngish and likable lord of the manor and an old and half-crazed caretaker.

"Always Smiling" Bob Nelson proves that his good humor is contagious. The dancing feature is provided by Wilma and Earlyne Wallace.

"Mademoiselle Modiste," as the presentation of Adolphe Kornspan, is truly a musical gem.

Ben Lyon, Atlanta Boy, in Film, 'Lady With a Past,' at Capitol

Ben Lyon's appearance in a leading role with Constance Bennett in "Lady With a Past" marks his second assignment opposite the golden-haired star. They are appearing together at the Capitol theater now.

Lyon is of German-English parentage. He was born in Atlanta but was educated in Baltimore. His earliest ambition was to become a doctor, which seems to be the ambition of almost every Baltimore boy since Johns Hopkins University is so near. This was dispelled though when the family moved to New York.

While going to school in the big city, Ben visited a studio to watch filming. The man he chanced to ask "How to get into the movies" was a director. He took one look and told him to report the next day. He couldn't get out of the extra ranks so he tried the stage. He played opposite Jeanne Eagels in "The Wonderful Thing."

Lyon prefers the screen to the stage because of the opportunity for home life. His favorite screen role was in "Hell's Angels." His favorite screen star is Bebe Daniels whom he married June 14, 1930. His ambition is to become a director. If he should forsake the screen he would go into aviation.

His first picture with Constance Bennett was "Bought." A Slim Summerville comedy, authentic pictures of war in China, and newsreel pictures complete the bill.

"The Rainbow Trail" At DeKalb Monday

"The Rainbow Trail" is the feature picture at the DeKalb theater Monday and Tuesday. Included in the cast are George O'Brien, Cecilia Parker, Minna Gombell and stuttering Roscoe Ates.

Jack Holt is the feature player in Wednesday's offering, "Fifty Fathoms Deep," supported by Richard Cromwell, Loretta Sayers and Mary Doran. This is a sea story and is full of romance and thrills.

Ann Harding, Leslie Howard and Robert Williams appear Thursday and Friday in "Devotion," a gripping love story.

Saturday's entertainment features Buck Jones in "Branded," a fast-moving western story.

Greta Garbo on Bill At West End Theater

Monday and Tuesday brings Greta Garbo in "Susan Lenox," with Clark Gable, John Miljan, Jean Hersholt and others.

Wednesday brings "Surrender," with Warner Baxter, Leila Hyams, Ralph Bellamy and many others in the supporting cast. There is fiery power and beauty in this sweet romance.

Thursday and Friday Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "Delicious." She is a little Scotch girl who falls in love with her dream man—Charles Farrell. The laughs are furnished by El Brendel.

Saturday, Ken Maynard in "Branded Men," with his wonder horse, "Tarzan," June Clyde and other players.

"Dr. Jekyll, Mr. Hyde" Billed at Buckhead

Fredric March gives a magnificent performance in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," Robert Louis Stevenson's fascinating story filled with mystery, horror and romance, which will be shown at the Buckhead theater Monday and Tuesday. Mr. March is assisted by Rose Hobart, Miriam Hopkins, Holmes Herbert and Edgar Norton.

The picture for Wednesday is "Secrets of a Secretary," featuring Claudette Colbert and Herbert Marshall, a prominent English actor.

"Delicious," co-starring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, is the offering for Thursday and Friday. The story, which is interpolated with music, is about a little Scotch immigrant girl who has a lot of trouble getting into this free country because she's broke.

Zane Grey's western tale, "The Rainbow Trail," featuring George O'Brien, will be shown Saturday. The story, which was filmed in the beautiful Grand Canyon country of Arizona, is filled with thrills and suspense. Cecilia Parker has the feminine lead, while Roscoe Ates supplies the comedy. A new serial, "Danger Island," co-starring Kenneth Harlan and Lucille Brown, will be shown also.

Holt as Coach Of Ball Team On Cameo Bill

"Maker of Men" opens at the Cameo Monday for two days.

Jack Holt is starred with Richard Cromwell, Joan Marsh, John Wayne, Robert Alden, Natalie Moorhead and Richard Tucker playing important roles and Walter Catlett and Paul Hurst carrying the burden of comedy with their usual skillful ease. The story is chiefly concerned with Holt as the father and Cromwell as the son—or, Holt as the "maker of men"—the college athletic coach whose slogan for human behavior was "loyalty and courage" and Cromwell as the boy who couldn't take physical punishment.

The coach's discipline leads to a complete breakdown of the boy's nerve and a tremendous scene in which the father slaps the son's face and the boy learns that there is a pain far greater than anything physical.

EMPIRE TO RESUME 'AMATEUR NITE' SHOWS

"Amateur Nite," which won so much favor with patrons of the Empire theater, corner of Georgia avenue and Crew street, will be resumed by popular request at 8 p. m. on Friday, according to an announcement by Manager Alpha Fowler.

The contest is open to all amateur entertainers who will be given full information by seeing Mr. Fowler at the Empire or by calling Main 8430. Prizes are awarded the three best acts.

'She Wanted a Millionaire' At Fox With Joan Bennett

Drama Centers Round Beauty Contest Winner. "Modern Minstrels" Idea Is Snappy Stage Production.

Joan Bennett's first picture for the year, "She Wanted a Millionaire," and Fanchon & Marco's delightful stage production, "Modern Minstrels," combine to make this week's program at the Fox theater one of many attractive features.

In the picture feminine members of the audience will find added interest because of the magnificent costumes worn by Miss Bennett. She makes 20 costume changes during the production and practically all of them are well worthy of note-taking by any woman who desires to appear smart herself.

The story of the film is centered about a girl who, starting life as a worker in a textile factory, wins an international beauty contest, marries one of the millionaire judges of the pulchritudinous battle and goes to Paris to live. There she is a central figure at the famous Quat'z Arts ball, a scene of prodigal splendor that only the movies could create.

She finds life not happy though, despite the wealth of her husband. He is insanely jealous and makes her life miserable by his constant spying and recurring accusations. At the climax he attempts to throw her into the den of some huge and ferocious dogs he keeps on his estate. Rescue comes in the nick of time and the screen story ends with the prospect of happiness with her girlhood sweetheart looming for the harassed heroine.

Spencer Tracy, James Kirkwood, Una Merkel, Douglas Cosgrove and others are in the supporting cast.

The "Modern Minstrels" idea is admittedly one of Fanchon & Marco's best. It is notable for colorful and bizarre settings and a collection of famous performers in the principal roles. These include Tyler Mason, blackface comedian and singer; Bruce Jordan, imitator; Harry Van Fassen, famous minstrel end man; the Three Page Boys, fast-stepping dancers; "Juggling" Nelson, another blackface star; Esther Campbell, remarkable whistler, and a line of Sunkist Beauties who are—see 'em for yourselves.

Enrico Leide's orchestral overture, Al Evans' organ and his big audience chorus, the latest newsreel shots and some exceptional short screen subjects complete a better-than-average Fox program.

Cantor in "Whoopee" Is at Ponce de Leon

Comedy and pathos is the dish for Ponce de Leon patrons this week. "Whoopee," starring Eddie Cantor, is the feature for Monday and Tuesday. "Whoopee" is a "natural" for Eddie and laughs are plentiful.

Wednesday "Tarnished Lady," with Tallulah Bankhead and Clive Brook, will be presented. Miss Bankhead, a southern girl, makes her film debut in this picture.

"Daddy Long Legs," with Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter, will be shown Thursday and Friday. Miss Gaynor's portrayal of the p.. r little waif elevates her to even greater heights of stardom than that which she now enjoys.

A Jack Oakie feature, "Dude Ranch," is the offering for Saturday. June Collyer, Stuart Erwin and Eugene Pallette are in the cast also.

Tenth Street Opens With "Common Law"

"The Common Law," opening at the Tenth Street theater Monday and Tuesday, stars Constance Bennett in a story of an artists' model and her many love affairs. Lew Cody has the leading male role.

Wednesday John Gilbert and Madge Evans will be seen in "West of Broadway," a story concerning a rich young man who returns from war to find himself jilted by the girl he loves. An excellent supporting cast includes Lois Moran and El Brendel.

Thursday and Friday Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell will be seen in "Delicious." Janet plays the part of a little Scotch waif while Charlie is seen as a millionaire playboy. El Brendel provides the laughs.

Saturday brings "The Silent Witness," featuring Greta Nissen and Lionel Atwill in a thrilling mystery drama laid around the murder of a beautiful girl. "The Driver," ninth in the series of 12 Bobby Jones' golf lessons, is shown also.

'Prestige,' Showing Ann Harding, Adolphe Menjou Shows at Rialto

Ann Harding's latest starring vehicle is outstanding in many respects, all of which assure audiences who see "Prestige" at the Rialto theater a thoroughly enjoyable hour with this great RKO-Pathe star.

As the physically frail but spiritually gigantic heroine, Ann Harding gives a superb performance. Not has she ever appeared to greater advantage from the standpoint of photography. Her wistful loveliness has an ethereal quality, with, in many scenes, a charming suggestion of whimsical humor.

Debonair Adolphe Menjou and virile Melvyn Douglas prove excellent selections for the two principal roles opposite Miss Harding.

Douglas will be remembered as the young stage actor who played his first screen role opposite Gloria Swanson in "Tonight or Never." His remarkable promise in that picture is fully borne out by the exceptional work which he contributes to "Prestige."

Music lovers have a treat in store for them also, in the work of Clarence Muse, who plays a native servant with a penchant for occasional outbursts into song. Introduced adroitly into the picture, the song sung by Muse is a native Anamrse folk song written especially for the picture.

For what is said to be the first time, ceremonial dances of Indo-China, where much of the story is laid, are shown. In savagery, weird rhythm and curious interpretations these far surpass anything of this sort before attempted.

In addition to the principal trio of the cast, other notables are Guy Bates Post, Ian MacLaren, Carmelita Geraghty and Creighton Hale.

This great heart drama is laid in tropical jungles. Much of the picture was photographed in the wild beauty of the Florida everglades. A several weeks' location trip into the heart of this exotic but little known territory resulted in obtaining some of the loveliest scenic backgrounds ever shown on the screen.

KUSHNIR WILL SPEAK NEXT SUNDAY NIGHT

Simon Kushnir, one of the most prominent leaders of the Jewish pioneers in Palestine and a member of the Palestine labor delegation to the United States, will appear at the Verband center, 327 Crew street, S. W., next Sunday night at 8 o'clock, to deliver a lecture regarding the political situation in Palestine. The public is invited.

Mr. Kushnir was in Palestine for the last 26 years. He went there as a young man and since then has worked as a pioneer, taking a leading part in the redemption of Emek Yisroel, the native heath of world Jewry. He is one of the leading citizens of Palestine and is a member of the executive committee of the General Federation of Labor in that country.

The cost of making 1,000 board feet of Douglas fir into logs is twice as great if the trees are only 20 inches in diameter at breast height if they are 58 inches.

Iron and lead salvaged in a year are worth $500,000,000.

Fred Stone, Daughter Paula and Big Company To Appear at Erlanger in 'Smiling Faces'

Fred Stone and Daughter, Paula.

The one and only Fred Stone, in a new musical frolic of distinction, "Smiling Faces," extravagantly mounted, brilliant in color, crammed with fun, will be the attraction at the Erlanger theater Wednesday and Thursday, April 6 and 7, with matinee on Thursday. Not only is "Smiling Faces" said to be the best vehicle of Mr. Stone's career, but his supporting cast is of unbounded excellence. This company is headed by none other than Mr. Stone's own lovely and fleet-footed daughter, Paula Stone.

Probably one reason that Mr. Stone maintains the vast hold he does upon the affections of theater-goers is because he is always different. His bag of amusing tricks and stunts is apparently inexhaustible. In "Smiling Faces" he brings forth an entirely new array of his unique laugh producers. His part this time is that of one Monumet Spleen, a motion picture director with ideas of his own.

Opportunity is afforded for much genial spoofing of the strange ways of the Hollywood studios. During the action of the piece Mr. Stone also turns detective and aviator. The airplane scene is one of the funniest he has ever contrived. In addition to Mr. Stone's antics, there is in "Smiling Faces" a very engaging love story involving the amatory experiences of two attractive young couples. And, of course, there are 20 or more lilting song numbers and lively dances.

In the cast surrounding Mr. Stone in "Smiling Faces," in addition to Paula Stone, are such well-known musical comedy favorites as Roy Royston, Lotti Loder, Billy Taylor, Doris Patston, Hope Emerson, Isabel O'Madigan, Adora Andrews, Eddie Garvie and Boyd Davis. Besides, there is the famous group of Albertina Rasch dancers, and in addition there is an ensemble of 75, including a stageful of Broadway's most enchanting dancers and show girls.

WILKINSON TO GIVE PASSION PLAY STORY

A descriptive narration of the world-famous Passion Play, as enacted at Oberammergau, will be given by J. M. Wilkinson, of Toronto, at Wesley Memorial church at 7:30 o'clock this evening, as part of the observance of Palm Sunday. Mr. Wilkinson has for years studied the great drama of Oberammergau and is an authority on the subject. During his travels he stopped at the home of Anton Lang, who interpreted the role of the Christus. There the traveler met Andrias, who took the part of "Peter," and also John Zwinck, who essayed the character of Judas.

Seventy-five hand-painted lantern slides have been prepared which will be used to illustrate the lecture. The public is invited.

"Possessed" Booked For Empire Monday

"Possessed" will be shown Monday and Tuesday at the Empire theater, corner of Georgia avenue and Crew street. Joan Crawford is seen as the girl who turns down the man she loves in order to leave him free to become the governor of his state.

Wednesday and Thursday finds Manager Alpha Fowler offering another Charlie Chan talkie, "Charlie Chan's Chance," in which there is plenty of fast-moving action and hidden danger. The stars are Warner Oland, Alexander Kirkland and H. B. Warner.

Friday's screen feature will be a film of laughter, "Stepping Sisters," featuring those four pastmaster laugh producers, Louise Dresser, Minna Gombell, Jobyna Howland and William Collier Sr. At 8 o'clock in the evening the stage will be turned over to an array of young entertainers in another of those "Amateur Nite" contests.

A thriller has been booked for showing on Saturday. It is "The Last Parade," with Dorothy Revier, Charles Morton, Frank Mayo and Tom Santschi.

90th Anniversary of Discovery By Crawford Long To Be Observed

The ninetieth anniversary of Crawford W. Long's discovery of anesthesia will be observed throughout Georgia and the south on March 30, Dr. Frank K. Boland, of Atlanta, president of the Crawford W. Long Memorial Association, announced Saturday.

Medical societies, schools, both public and private, patriotic organizations and leading citizens generally will be reminded of the fact that Dr. Crawford W. Long, a native-born Georgian, first used anesthesia on Georgia soil four and a half years before it was used by anybody else, despite other claims. Exercises in honor of Dr. Long will be held at the University of Georgia at Athens this year and will probably be an annual event hereafter.

On March 30 of last year, Dr. Fisher changed the name of the Davis-Fisher sanitarium in Atlanta to the Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital, which was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies by leading physicians of Atlanta and the south.

In 1926, by public subscriptions, Long's statue was placed in the Statuary Hall in Washington, D. C. There are also many other memorials, among which is his portrait in the Georgia state capitol in Atlanta and a bronze medallion at the University of Pennsylvania, a copy of which was erected on the campus of the University of Georgia at Athens by the late Dr. Joseph Jacobs, of Atlanta.

Among the claimants to the honor of having discovered anesthesia was Dr. W. T. G. Morton, a dentist of Boston, Mass., but abundant evidence proves that Dr. Long first used ether as an anesthetic in 1842 and Dr. Morton first used it in 1846, four and a half years later, Dr. Boland stated Saturday.

"Crawford W. Long, the Discoverer of Anesthesia," was the subject of a notable address delivered by Dr. Boland before the Southern Medical Association at Hot Springs, Ark., November 14-17, 1921. This address, reproduced in pamphlet form from the Southern Medical Journal and given wide circulation, is preserved by medical societies as a valuable historical record.

Grand Retains 'The Guardsman' 3 More Days

Following the tremendous crowds that have flocked to Loew's Grand theater to see "The Guardsman," the latter half of last week, that theater has extended its booking on this magnificent piece of screen art. The picture, with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne doing exquisite work in the principal roles, will be shown for the first three days of this week. Beginning Thursday the Grand will show "Ben Hur," probably the most expensive and spectacular picture ever made. It is now immensely improved over its original silent form by sound synchronization.

"The Guardsman" is the story of two actors, married and subject, like all married folk, to quarrels. They row particularly in the springtime when, as the husband says, his wife feels like making new amatory conquests. So the husband, to test his wife, disguises himself and makes love to her as a Russian "guardsman."

This situation brings delicious comedy which, acted with the finesse that no one else but this famous pair could command, makes it undoubtedly one of the greatest pieces of production the films have yet achieved.

The sensational tale of "Ben Hur," which in book form enjoyed a circulation almost as large as the Bible and which as both stage and screen drama has been continually revived in all parts of the world ever since its first production 32 years ago, is hailed as an epic that will live through the ages.

The thrilling chariot race and sea fight are made even more compelling in the reissued version for screen-goers may now hear the noise of the horses and chariots as they tear around the course as well as the shouts and cheers of the frenzied spectators. Likewise, the clash of arms and the groans of the dying in the battle scenes add increased thrills and realism.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen version, in which Ramon Novarro plays the role which made him famous, was three years in the making, the company having spent more than a year and a half in Rome filming the spectacular scenes in authentic backgrounds.

An extent of the tremendous effort spent on this picture is indicated by the fact that it employed the labor of 150,000 persons in Italy and California and the total cost of its production was in the neighborhood of $4,000,000, outdoing even such currently big enterprises as "Trader Horn" and "Hell's Angels."

"Up Pops the Devil" At Alamo Monday

Love in Greenwich Village is the theme of "Up Pops the Devil," Paramount's latest comedy-romance adaptation of a Broadway hit of last season which comes to the Alamo theater Monday.

The story concerns the marital difficulties of Norman Foster and Carole Lombard, as the young writer and his ex-dancer wife.

They live in an apartment in the quaint and very sophisticated section of New York city where young people of many professions gather for refreshment and amusement. Foster and his wife agree that they will "never get anywhere" if they continue this happy-go-lucky, gin and din existence, and so they plan a renaissance.

But the scheme hits a bump when a sugary-voiced southern girl comes into the picture from the apartment upstairs. Amusing and near-tragic events result—but the domestic scene rights itself in the pleasing finish.

Helen Hayes in Film At Palace Monday

The story of a woman who descends to the lowest depths in order to insure the happiness of her son is told in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," which plays Monday and Tuesday at the Palace theater. The cast includes Helen Hayes, Lewis Stone, Neil Hamilton and Marie Prevost.

Wednesday, John Boles appears opposite Linda Watkins in "Good Sport," a picture dealing frankly with the problems of matrimony. Greta Nissen is also included in the cast.

Thursday and Friday, "The Rainbow Trail" features George O'Brien as a lone cowboy who makes a desperate attempt to rescue three people from a hidden valley.

Saturday, "The Yellow Ticket" depicts the dramatic adventures of a beautiful and virtuous peasant girl who, failing to secure a passport to visit her father, who is dying in a distant prison, accepts a yellow ticket which permits scandalous women to travel any place unhampered. Elissa Landi plays the part of the peasant girl.

Famous Boy Musician of World To Give Concert Here March 28

Children of Atlanta will be given the opportunity to hear the most famous boy musician in the world on the evening of March 28, it was announced Saturday by the All-Star Concert Series, which will present Yehudi Menuhin, the boy genius of the violin.

YEHUDI MENUHIN.

At the request of public school officials and music teachers, an arrangement has been made whereby children under 15 years of age may obtain seats in any part of the auditorium for half the prices charged adults.

No musical event in many seasons has occasioned so much comment as the first visit to the south of Yehudi Menuhin, who has been described by veteran critics as "the eighth wonder of the world," and "the most remarkable genius of the century."

Yehudi's talent, it is conceded, is not merely the skill of a child and wonderful only because he is so young. He played a few weeks ago in St. Louis, and the critic of The Times there declared: "It is the playing of a man, thrice his age, with the authority, repose, emotion and maturity that is expected only of artists of ripened years who have gained these through diligent labor and long concert experience."

In London, Yehudi Menuhin last season drew more than 10,000 persons to the great Albert hall on the foggiest night of the year. In Berlin, where he played the Mendelssohn and Mozart concertos with Bruno Walter's famous orchestra, that noted conductor broke down and wept with emotion. In Rome, more than 6,000 frenzied Italians filled the big Augusteo auditorium and applauded for half an hour after the program ended.

The sale of seats will open Thursday at the Davison-Paxon store.

BOYS' HIGH CLUB TO PRESENT PLAY THURSDAY NIGHT

"At the Sign of the Eel" is the title of the play to be presented by the Boys' High Dramatic Club at 8 o'clock Thursday evening.

In the cast of this play many new members make their first appearance, while veteran players from former productions assure fine performances in the leading roles. The new members who will make their initial showing in this play are: Edwin Peeples, who will play the part of Sir John Hankton, the tall, grim lord of the Manor House; Sam Little, who will appear as Ben, the confederate of a counterfeiter, and Frank Eskridge, who will take the part of Grant, a police officer.

Others in the cast who have appeared before this year are: Abel, the lame innkeeper, Archie Wheeless; John, the hired boy, Verne Fulmer; Marie James, expert blackmailer, Reid Walton; William Beasley, young novelist, Irving Walker; Amelia Wayne and fugitive from a strict girls' school, Charles Lindsley; Bert Green, sailor, Charles Everitt.

"At the Sign of the Eel," a three-act play by Richard Whorf, is a genuine mystery thriller. The time is the present and the scene is the Cornish coast of England.

DECATUR JUNIOR HIGH TO PRESENT OPERETTA

Mrs. Edwin Glenn Gilbert, of Atlanta, is coaching a number of Decatur Junior High school pupils, who will take part in an operetta, to be presented at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night. The operetta is being sponsored by the P.-T. A. Association, of which Mrs. Harry Morgan is finance chairman.

The cast of characters includes Harold Still, Gertrude Hobby, Norma Lee Phaup, Horace Wood, Joe Lambert, John Hightower and Helen Allison.

GEORGIA PRODUCTS WEEK

Last year Sears, Roebuck and Company spent $5,198,-000.00 in Georgia, in addition to the Georgia payroll of $1,200,000.00 (which, of course, was practically all spent within the state). This year we hope to make the expenditures considerably larger.

"Patronize Home Industry" is a trite old maxim but a thoroughly sound one. We believe in it, we want you to believe in it. If we can pour more of the money received by us from all over the United States into Georgia Products we shall be greatly pleased.

This section is a practical demonstration of our interest in the success of the "BUY GEORGIA PRODUCTS WEEK" so ably sponsored by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

We hope that it will show you the wide variety and convince you of the outstanding quality and value of the merchandise produced right here in Georgia by our friends and neighbors and distributed by Sears from Maine to California.

We cordially invite you to come and see the many beautiful and useful things made in this state which are attractively displayed throughout the store.

E. W. Hiestand.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO.

GEORGIA PRODUCT WEEK DESIGNATED BY GOV. RUSSELL

Executive, in Proclamation Setting Aside Period From March 21-26, Stresses Importance of Using Home Products.

Urging everybody to encourage Georgia production, Governor Richard B. Russell, of Georgia, issued a proclamation calling on the public to emphasize during the week of March 21-26 a "Buy Georgia Products Sale."

In the proclamation the governor urged the people during this period to demand and use Georgia products. His proclamation follows in full.

"Whereas, despite the fact that the state of Georgia abounds in natural resources and is capable of producing all of the commodities necessary for the sustenance and comfort of man and beast, it has been established that the citizens of our state are expending over $50,000,000 annually without the state in the purchase of food stuffs alone, and,

"Whereas, it is self-evident that the purchase and the production of such commodities will stimulate and encourage the agricultural, business and manufacturing interests of the state, thereby affording employment to our people; retaining money in our state, where it will be available to our people; and increasing the wealth of our state, and,

Whereas, the Forward Georgia committee, American Legion, the women's clubs, chambers of commerce, and other civic organizations, actively aided by the press of the state, have been conducting a campaign to impress upon the people of the state the importance of buying and using Georgia products, and have planned to continue the movement throughout the year 1932, and,

"Whereas, it is important that this campaign be brought to the attention of every loyal and patriotic Georgian, in order that all of our citizens may enlist in this movement,

"Therefore, I, Richard B. Russell Jr., governor of Georgia, do hereby proclaim the week of March 21-26, inclusively, as 'Buy Georgia Products Week,' and I urge all merchants, factors, manufacturers and producers in the state of Georgia especially to emphasize during this week a 'buy Georgia products' sale, and I call upon all of the people of this state to demand and use Georgia products to enable us to have a keener appreciation of the unlimited possibilities of production within the state of Georgia, the value of our products, and the benefits to be derived by buying products and merchandise at home and assisting in creating a demand and market for local products.

"This fourth day of March, 1932.
"RICHARD B. RUSSELL JR.,
"Governor."

GENERAL WOOD, HEAD OF SEARS, IS A BUSY MAN

The dynamic Robert E. Wood, who swapped a generalcy in the army for a business career which turned in rapid fire order to the presidency of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and a commanding position in the world of commerce, paused for three minutes while in Atlanta recently.

He halted a series of business conferences long enough to say: "Well, that is the one thing in the world I don't discuss." He had been asked: "What of business?"

And his only answer was a smile and a statement he wouldn't discuss it. So the general holds at least one record that he may add to his military decorations, which embrace the Philippines insurrection medal, the Panama canal medal, and the Distinguished Service medal, and a companionship in the British Order of St. Michael and St. George.

He is the only distinguished visitor to Atlanta of recent months who hasn't found the business situation to be as interesting to discuss as prohibition used to be.

General Wood believes in maintaining personal contact with the thousands of workers in his great army, but an inscrutable smile and a profound silence towards the rest of the world. With the economic situation checked off definitely by the general, the interviewer temporarily befuddled, ran over rapidly in his mind a list of possible topics. The Wickersham report? No, that was no good. The veterans' compensation mess? No, that would be putting the general on too hot a spot. Cordell Hull's announcement that the democrats ought to get busy and raise cain about the tariff? Well, it's hard to get anybody to read about the tariff, let alone talk about it.

Mussolini? Ah, there was a fine juicy topic and the distinguished visitor was a general, too. That would be fine. "What about Mussolini?" the inquiring reporter started to ask. But the general looked at his watch and said, "Well, your three minutes are up. Thank you, and I'm sorry I have to limit you so strictly.

"The next time I come to Atlanta, maybe I won't be so busy."

Brilliant War Record.

After being graduated from West Point in 1900, General Wood had a brilliant army career. He served in the cavalry in the Philippine insurrection, then as assistant chief quartermaster, chief quartermaster and director of the Panama railroad on construction of the canal from 1905 to 1915. He resigned from the army during the latter year and entered business. When America entered the World War he immediately forsook private work. Going into the national army with a commission of colonel. He soon was made brigadier general and acting quartermaster general. After the armistice, he returned to private life as vice president of Montgomery Ward & Co. In 1924 he became a vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and was elevated to the presidency in 1928.

Captain Kidd Adorns Racketter's Pent House

A high-priced artist was asked to design aw rought iron gate for a penthouse in the exclusive West Twenties, and to name his own figure for the job. He insisted upon seeing the apartment first, and after much difficulty succeeded in getting in.

The chief adornment on one wall, he found, was a large crimson hanging, shaped like an ancient hammer. Painted on it in primary colors was alife-sized figure of Captain Kidd.

The penthouse, it developed, was the pride and joy of a brother of Owney Madden, racketeer.

South, Greater in Youthful Population, Will Pass North and West, Wood Says

(From The Constitution of February 19.)

The south has more young people under the age of 20 than either the north or the west, and it is this advantage of youthful population that in the next ten years will make it the greatest industrial section of the nation, General R. E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, told a hundred or more Georgia manufacturers who were his guests at a Georgia Products dinner at the Biltmore hotel on Thursday evening.

"These young people must be kept at home, given employment and encouraged so that they will not migrate to the north and west," the general said.

General Wood and other high executives of the company are holding a board meeting, a policy put into effect last fall when the first meeting of this kind was held in Kansas City. The object of the meetings is to bring the company's personnel in contact with the regions where its stores are located, and with the manufacturers it does business with in those regions. Manufacturers present at the dinner represented every section of the state. One manufacturer had been doing business with the company for 20 years.

General Wood at the outset of his speech said that he felt at home in Atlanta, in fact, considered himself a Georgian, although he is a citizen of Illinois.

Got Wife Here.

"I got my wife in Georgia," he explained. Incidentally, he owns a farm near Augusta, where he and his staff will visit after leaving Atlanta.

Explaining the purpose of the meeting, General Wood said there were two types of merchandise, that of the mail-order house and that of the department store. The latter handled style merchandise, which made its methods subject to quick changes. There could not be the same continuity of relation between the two classes of stores and their manufacturers. The mail-order house which handled staple goods stuck to virtually the same manufacturers from year to year.

"In Rome, in your state, John Berry, who manufactures both hosiery and stoves, has been supplying us with merchandise for the last 20 years," the general added. "I hope that this relation will continue for the next 20. We feel that the manufacturer does us as big a favor in selling to us as we do in buying from him. Consequently, we have reversed the usual procedure here tonight. Instead of having the manufacturer come to us, we have come to the manufacturer."

Speaking of the south and its future, he went on:

"I am a believer in the future of the south, especially in manufacturing. I will tell you businessmen something that may have escaped your notice, and it will show what my faith is based on. The birth rate of the north and west is very low, and its population is almost stationary.

Condition Opposite Here.

"Here in the south the opposite condition exists. The south will grow much faster in the next 10 years than either the north or west. The census figures show that Georgia has twice as many people under 20 years of age as Vermont. North Carolina, with 3,000,000 people, has more young people under 20 than the state of Illinois with more than twice its population.

"Here is where the south will forge ahead. Youth is the hope of business as of everything else. We who are on the wrong side of 50 have lost our courage to some extent. Youth has the audacity. Then, too, this section has the advantage of being near deep water, and has the raw materials, minerals, timber and cheap power that make manufacturing possible."

At the conclusion of his talk, General Wood invited the Georgia manufacturers to meet his officers who do the buying for the various departments of the company.

General Wood, who is a graduate of West Point, was a veteran of the Philippine insurrection before he retired from the army in 1915 to become assistant to the vice president of the du Pont Company, and later assistant to the president of the General Asphalt Company.

Returning to the army at the outbreak of the World War as a major, he organized the purchasing department of the emergency fleet, and went to France as a colonel. He became assistant to General Atterbury as director of the entire army transport service and was retired with the rank of general. He was decorated by the United States and British governments.

GEN. WOOD RAISES GEORGIA PRODUCTS

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—General Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., who said he believes the southeast must turn to other crops than cotton, has started raising cattle and hogs to make farm lands pay dividends. The enterprise, located in Columbia county, has not made a profit as yet, General Wood said, but he said he felt the experiment had not been entirely fair as he had been unable to devote personal attention to it. The executive said he is hopeful of success in the experiment with hogs and cattle.

FREE WHEELING IS OFFERED BY SEARS

The much-talked-of and widely advertised "free wheeling" for automobiles is being made available for all Model A Ford cars through Sears, Roebuck & Co., according to announcement made by E. W. Hiestand, manager of the company's store here. The device is fitted on the Model A Fords in place of the regular Ford clutch plate and the installation job is said to be inexpensive and requires only about two hours.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. is distributing this "free wheeling" device through the retail stores for the present but it is reported that the device will be made available through the catalog of the company, also beginning with the catalog to be issued in May to go into effect June 1.

"We are very much pleased to be able to be one of the stores of Sears, Roebuck & Co. to offer this 'free wheeling' device to the owners of Model A Fords," said Mr. Heistand. "There has been considerable interest in 'free wheeling,' and I believe that Ford owners will be glad to know that it is available to them. Because this device fits on to the clutch plate and is installed with the clutch plate it really gives us a free-running clutch and it is not a part of the transmission assembly. The effect is the same as though this were a part of the transmission and those who install this device on their Ford cars can shift from second to high and from high to second at will without touching their clutch pedal.

"We, in Sears, Roebuck & Co., feel that this is something of a 'scoop' on the automobile industry. We believe that we have here something very much desired by Ford drivers and the simplicity of design, the easiness with which the device may be installed and the advantages given to the driver through this service all make it, we believe, something which Ford owners will desire to have."

SEARS IS SEEKING GEORGIA PRODUCTS

Striking features of the tremendous purchasing power and distribution of Sears, Roebuck & Company were demonstrated during the recent second annual "Value Demonstration," according to announcement by J. R. Allais, manager of the Sears retail district, which includes the big local store on Ponce de Leon.

"Development of industries in states where the organization maintains retail stores is a definite policy of Sears, Roebuck & Company," said Mr. Allais.

"The value demonstration may seem remote from the subject of industrial development, but in reality there is a very close relation. The Sears merchandising methods are responsible for nearly half a century of success in the retail field, and have led directly to the establishment of more than 380 retail stores in addition to the ten mail order houses, including the 'parent' store in Chicago.

"Our policy of buying as much merchandise as possible in states where we operate retail stores is not philanthropy, but good business. Other things being equal or nearly so, we can buy to best advantage where we do business with friends and are in close touch with local situations. The Sears store here is very definitely part of the community we serve. It is an Atlanta store with a great, national buying organization, not a national store with an Atlanta selling outlet."

"As a local institution we are identified with community, county and state affairs. Acting on instructions from national officers, we are constantly on the alert for new manufacturing connections and try never to overlook any chance to buy in such a way that more people will be employed to handle the Sears orders."

With reference to the Sears research activities, Mr. Allais said, "In connection with the laboratories in Chicago where all Sears merchandise must pass rigid tests to protect the public on quality, and enable us to make the Sears guaranty, there is a staff of scientists constantly engaged in research work."

Farmers' Market Is Entering Third Spring as Big Success

Sears, Roebuck & Company's farmers' market is entering its third spring under decidedly more favorable conditions than at any time during its existence. It was opened May 3, 1930, as a non-profit project, and from the beginning a special effort has been made to serve the small farmers from a wide range of territory. Many hundreds of Georgia farmers, frequently with various members of their families, have had the opportunity of selling their products direct to the Atlanta consumers.

The market has also been used by co-operative groups of farmers and groups of boys and girls under county agents, home demonstration agents and vocational teachers. It has been a special aim of the market to help these groups not only sell their products but to learn the important principles involved in getting them before the consumer in an attractive way.

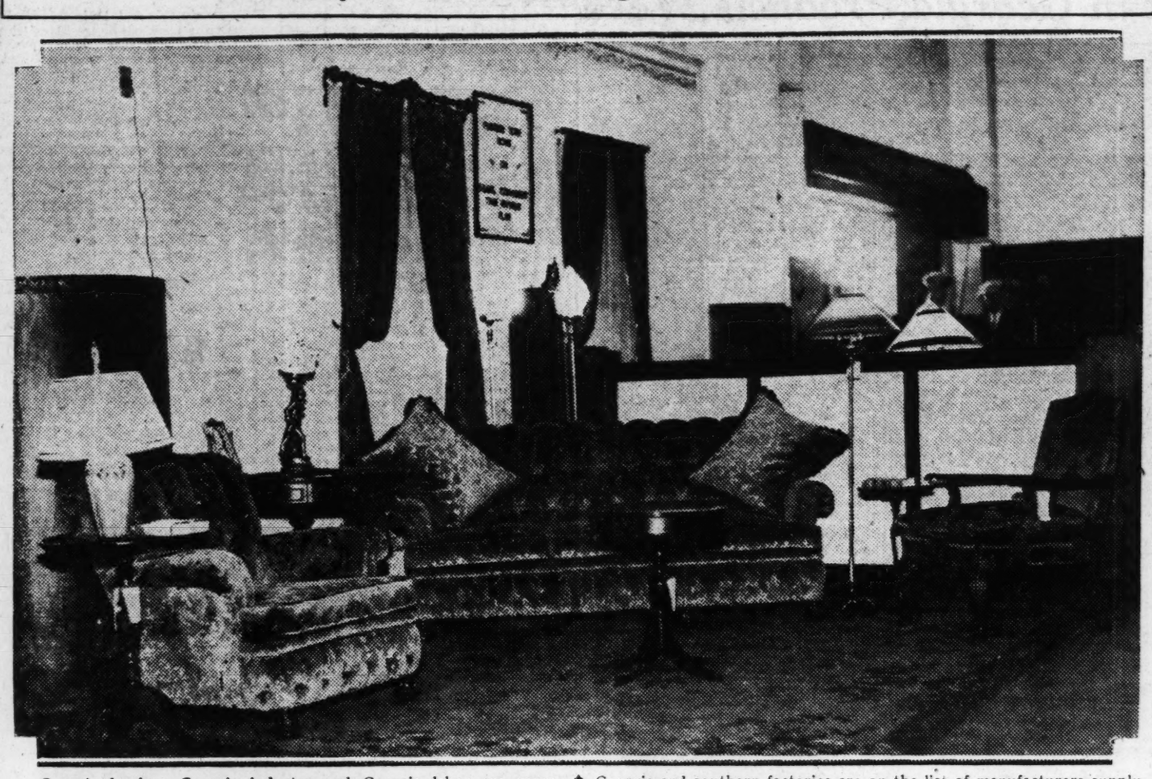

The market has not been particularly concerned in marketing a great volume of food stuff, but rather in helping as great a number of producers as possible secure training that will enable them to place their products through the larger trade channels. The market has ben particularly concerned in encouraging farmers in growing a variety of things, also new and unusual things, that might increase their farm income. An effort is constantly being made to reach as many farmers as possible in the belief that when they learn the consumer's demand they will be in a better position to help the state supply its own needs for foodstuff.

The market has for its purpose the encouraging of every effort that may help every member of the farm family have an income every month of the year. From time to time special inducements in the way of paid transportation, prizes, free service, etc., have been made to groups of farm families from isolated communities to bring in their products in order to study how best to prepare their products to meet the requirements of the city consumer. Among some of its activities may be mentioned the following: A home butter-making and home canning demonstration, conducted by specialists from the State College of Agriculture; the preparation and study of sausage and other home meat products, under the direction of Mrs. S. R. Dull; the operation of a woman's exchange booth for the fine hand work of farm women, sponsored by Mrs. Laurence T. Mitchell, of the state bureau of markets; a Georgia sea food demonstration, sponsored and supervised by the Georgia fish and game department; the putting up of fruit juices, directed by various home demonstration agents of the state of Georgia; wild flower events, sponsored by various garden clubs and flower lovers in the city of Atlanta. All of these have been put on with a definite purpose of helping the farmer get away from a one-crop system and the results have been very pleasing and beneficial.

The popularity of the market with the consumer has been proven by the fact that more than $300,000 worth of farm products were sold by the farmers in this market during the year 1931. An increasing number of Atlanta housewives who wish to buy their products fresh from the farmers that grow them are making contacts with the farmers in this market to the satisfaction of both parties.

The evidence of a wide range of products and the use made of the market is the fact that during one year products were brought or sent in from six states of the southeast and hundreds of farmers from different sections during the year make use of the opportunities offered by this market. The market has been enlarged and improved from time to time and its increased popularity and service is helping the Georgia farmers become more independent is confidently expected.

COTTON IS FEATURED IN SEARS PRODUCTS

More than $30,000,000 worth of cotton, equal to the total production of Tennessee and Florida and about 5 per cent of the nation's output, was consumed in merchandise sold through stores of Sears, Roebuck & Co. throughout the United States last year, it was reported by E. W. Heistand, manager of the Atlanta store.

The report was based on a review of last year's operations made by D. M. Nelson, vice president in charge of merchandising for Sears-Roebuck.

Increased co-operation in the campaign to strengthen the price of cotton was assured by Mr. Nelson in forwarding the information to Mr. Heistand.

"There have been many schemes advanced in behalf of the cotton industry," Mr. Nelson said. "In our opinion, one of the best ways to raise the price of cotton is to promote the sale of merchandise in which cotton is used. We have decided to exert extra effort to do more than our part by buying as many such items as possible and to advertise them widely.

Over One Thousand Atlantans Find Work At Sears, Roebuck & Co.

That Sears, Roebuck is a great asset to Atlanta, is proven by the fact that over 1,050 Atlantans find employment with this large institution. When one considers that there are many communities in the United States with less than this population, it is no wonder that Sears should be a part and parcel of Atlanta, and Georgia.

This number of employes makes Sears, Roebuck one of the largest employers of help in the south, and brings an annual pay roll to Atlanta's various stores of over a million dollars.

Mark Chase is now the thirteenth cop on the Islip, L. I., N. Y., police force. He lost the toss to become the twelfth several weeks ago, but a petitions signed by 2,361 persons resulted in the creation of an additional post.

HOW MUCH WATER CAN A TOWEL TAKE?

One minute, two, three, four—ten minutes! How much water will a bath towel absorb in that length of time? Sears' laboratory can tell to the fraction of an ounce, for a test has been devised which gives the desired data.

A carefully measured strip of the towel having been tested, is suspended over a dish of water with one end barely touching the water. A steel rule is placed parallel with the side of the towel. After ten minutes, the height to which the water rises in the cloth is measured and recorded. The amount of water absorbed is determined by weighing the towel.

The collection of data on the absorbency and construction of various makes of towels has been a direct guide as to the most desirable brands for Sears to buy.

SEARS SALES REACH TREMENDOUS TOTAL

Sales through Sears-Roebuck stores and mail order plants account for 1 per cent of total volume of retail purchases in the United States and 5 per cent in 120 different lines, it was announced recently by J. R. Allais, manager of the retail district including the local store.

"This means, of course, that 5 per cent or more of the factories and workers in each of the 120 industries are kept going by Sears orders, a really worthwhile push to the wheels of industry from the shoulders of the world's largest store," the executive declared.

Mr. Allais stated that the policy of the company is to help develop the home industries of the states where its stores are located. More than $4,000,000 worth of merchandise was bought from Georgia manufacturers last year, he said.

"This policy makes our establishment here an Atlanta store with a national buying organization, not a national store with an Atlanta outlet." Mr. Allais stated. "We are constantly on the alert for new manufacturing connections and never overlook any chance to buy in such a way that more people will be employed to handle Sears orders."

The company now operates 380 retail stores in addition to 10 mail order plants, including the one in Atlanta, he said.

Roy LeCraw Congratulates Miss Arenson On Sears' Part in Georgia Products Week

Roy LeCraw, president of the Chamber of Commerce, is shown congratulating Miss Sally Arenson, advertising manager of Sears, Roebuck and Company, on the company's participation in Georgia Products Week and all the celebration stands for. Mr. LeCraw and his organization are taking an active part in encouraging the purchase of Georgia-made products.

The "Buy Georgia Products Week," which begins on Monday, will be celebrated all over the state as a result of the active sponsorship of Sears, Roebuck & Company and various civic agencies, including the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, which is co-operating splendidly with Sears.

Public attention to the idea was focused on the Georgia products dinner which Sears, Roebuck & Company gave recently in Atlanta to the Georgia manufacturers from whom they bought merchandise. This dinner was attended by manufacturers from all sections of the state.

The movement will be stressed during the coming week by Sears, Roebuck & Company with an active display of Georgia-made products.

The movement is spreading all over the state. Its scope is outlined in the following statement from J. C. Robinson, secretary of the Forward Georgia Committee:

"The results already accomplished, advocating and encouraging the production and use of Georgia products by Georgia people, has had marked effect to the extent that the Forward Georgia Committee and others feel it necessary to continue this movement.

"To do this, a 'Buy Georgia Products Week' has been designated, which will be the week before Easter, beginning March 21. The purpose of this week is to call to the attention of the people of the state the importance of using Georgia products so as to stimulate business and encourage agricultural and manufacturing enterprises and help create local markets for local products, thereby keeping our money at home and putting it into local trade channels, which will naturally stimulate local business and improve general conditions.

"Every mayor, editor and chamber of commerce head in the state should encourage their local merchants to carry on during the 'Buy Georgia Products Week' beginning March 21 a 'Buy Georgia Products' sale, offering to the people of their community an opportunity to purchase and use Georgia products and Georgia merchandise. This movement should be given as much publicity as possible, calling upon the people to respond by giving Georgia products and Georgia merchandise preference. The merchants of each community are requested to purchase Georgia products and Georgia merchandise and use every effort to advertise and sell Georgia products in the sales they conduct.

"This movement has the hearty support of Governor Richard B. Russell Jr., who is intensely interested in the movement to encourage the people of this state to use Georgia products, and he has pledged his co-operation and personal assistance in every way possible.

"To attain this end, he has officially declared the week of March 21 as 'Buy Georgia Products Week,' and he will issue a proclamation to that effect, calling upon the merchants, manufacturers, farmers and city and county officials to work together in an effort to make this week one that is profitable, thereby injecting a stimulus into business that will begin a momentum that will last throughout the year.

"In conducting the 'Buy Georgia Products Week' it is felt that if every city and town in the state of Georgia and every live, active merchant will work together during that week by either buying Georgia merchandise or conducting a 'Buy Georgia Products' sale that an improvement in business will be seen and we will be instrumental in making this 'Buy Georgia Products by Georgia People' movement more permanent in the minds of the people and each citizen will realize the importance and his obligation in this way.

"Let's get busy at once and begin our 'Buy Georgia Products Week' and encourage our local merchants and others to conduct sales and carry on such activities that will bring about results and put our community, as well as Georgia, into a forward stride."

SEARS, ROEBUCK OFFERS PRIZE FOR COLDSPOT LETTER

$5,000 in Awards Will Be Given for Opinions on Refrigerators.

Prizes totaling $5,000, with $2,000 as the capital or first prize, for the best letters on the "Coldspot" refrigerator under the title "What Individual Feature of the Coldspot I Like Best and Why," were announced Wednesday by E. W. Hiestand, manager of the Sears, Roebuck retail store, in connection with the "Buy Georgia Products week" of the store.

"The public will have a good chance to inspect the electric refrigerator at our store between those dates," said Mr. Hiestand. Every one is eligible except Sears' employes and members of their families. There are 125 cash prizes for the best letter, with $2,000 as the capital prize.

"Contestants are not limited to the number of words in the letters nor are they required to own Coldspots. All details and entry blanks may be obtained at our store.

"Like all of our mechanical merchandise, the Coldspot refrigerator was placed on the market only after exhaustive research and testing in the Sears laboratories at Chicago and five years' of actual field tests. The first Coldspot was sold three years ago.

"How well the Sears laboratories did their job on Coldspot is attested by the fact that this refrigerator has been listed as standard by such institutions as Good Housekeeping Institute, Underwriters' Laboratories and Consumers' Research Bureau. Moreover, in certain localities many sales have been made to college professors on the strength of recommendations by the college engineering departments."

Prohibition Raid Brings Rare Viands for Poor

Twenty-five poor but worthy families feasted recently on caviar, pate de fois gras, chicken, capon and imported fruit. The food had been intended for the guormands patronizing the Petit Riche restaurant. But the restaurant was raided, the refrigerators were confiscated, and the food was turned over to the destitute.

SEARS' LABORATORY TESTS EVERY ARTICLE

There is no guesswork in determining the quality of Sears merchandise. Scientific as well as practical testing by Sears' laboratory is your guarantee of quality.

More than 98,000 problems have been solved by this laboratory since its establishment. Some of the experiments took years to accomplish. Many required the attention of nearly the entire force of 23 people employed in the laboratory.

Sears, laboratory is divided into eight units: Textile, chemical, household equipment, mechanical and electrical engineering sections and the separate laboratories for determining the quality of paints, auto tires and printing. Facilities are provided for testing almost every type of merchandise sold by Sears.

Rigid standards, such as United States governmental specifications, are often used as a basis for comparing merchandise. Standard methods of testing are followed wherever available. These include the prescribed methods of the American Society of Textile Chemists and Colorists, American Society of Testing Materials, the United States Pharmacopeia, Underwriters' Laboratories and American Gas Association.

To protect the company and its customers from substitution of inferior merchandise, the laboratory checks the delivered goods to see that it conforms to the samples submitted by the manufacturer.

Will it fade? Does it wash? Does it wear? These questions are asked by every woman when she buys yard goods. Whenever Sears makes these claims for a fabric one can, be sure the company has tested it in its laboratory by carefully controlled standard methods.

Sears' laboratory is an assurance to customers that it is constantly on the watch to safeguard quality.

TRION COMPANY GROWS TO 102,000 SPINDLES

The Trion Company, of Trion, Ga., manufacturers of sheetings, drills, canton flannels and osnaburgs, is one of the important mills the output of which is sold to Sears, Roebuck & Company.

The present Trion Company was organized by its president, Benjamin D Riegel, of New York city, back in 1912. At that time the company was rather small, specializing in heavy cotton sheetings. Today the company has grown from a fairly small beginning to a cotton mill of 102,000 spindles with a production of 1,500,000 yards per week. In addition to this, there is a glove department manufacturing canton flannel gloves, jersey gloves, various leather combinations, and gauntlets.

These industrial plants are equipped with the very latest type of machinery and are making a very high type quality of unbleached sheetings, jeans, drills, carded voiles, tobacco cloths and a complete line of laborers' gloves.

Their products are being shipped to every state in the Union, as well as export.

In addition to the manufacturing departments of the Trion Company, there is a mercantile department handling an enormous amount of business.

Further, there is a farm department of approximately 4,000 acres. This farm department has a dairy furnishing milk not only to the town of Trion but to surrounding towns. The quality of this milk and the service that the dairy is giving is unsurpassed by anything of its kind in north Georgia.

At the present time the Trion Company has approximately 2,000 people on their pay roll; are running full time and, by so doing, have given practically continuous uninterrupted work to a great many people in their vicinity. In and around Trion, unemployment is unknown.

The town of Trion, which is naturally sponsored by the Trion Company, furnishes schools, picture shows, Y. M. C. A. activities, swimming pool and almost everything along the line of betterment. There are three very attractive churches with large memberships and active Sunday schools.

BUY AT SEARS, HER ANSWER TO INQUIRY

Sears has direct evidence that its customers appreciate the work of the testing laboratories. At a recent lecture on textile testing, one woman asked, "How can one be sure that the claims made for merchandise are accurate?" Another woman quickly replied, "Buy at Sears, where you know they have a testing laboratory."

Two Sears' Executives

E. W. Hiestand, manager of Sears' Atlanta retail store, and Joseph Givner, general salesmanager of Chicago, who recently conferred in Atlanta on Georgia products activities.

L. O. Langston Is Appointed Sears Personnel Executive

L. O. Langston, operating superintendent of Sears' Atlanta retail store, joined the organization on February 8 of this year. He is in charge of personnel, service and maintenance.

Mr. Langston is a native Georgian. He was born near Atlanta and spent his life here with the exception of the time he served overseas in the World War.

He was at one time with the Southern Bell. Leaving that company he became associated with William Candler, with whom he stayed 10 years. Two of this he spent on Mr. Candler's Florida sawmill enterprise, and the other eight at the Biltmore hotel.

At the Biltmore he was in the purchasing, auditing, personnel and maintenance departments, gaining a complete knowledge of hotel methods.

In the World War he was in the first regular army division, and spent two and one-half years in France with the exception of three months in the officers' training school at Fort McPherson. He took part in five major battles and was given two citations.

In business he has had a wide experience in public accounting and in retail credit operations. His success attracted the attention of Sears' executives.

L. O. LANGSTON.

Millions Spent in Georgia By Sears for Local Goods

Millions of dollars have been spent in Georgia and adjoining states for merchandise sold by Sears-Roebuck since the local retail store was established, it was stated Friday by E. W. Hiestand, manager of the store. The Sears-Roebuck policy, he said, is to buy as much as possible in this territory and, as business grows, to encourage the expansion of local factories and industrial plants to meet increased demand from local sources.

Mr. Hiestand said that in checking over the stocks of the various departments, he was pleased to find that a large proportion of the merchandise was of Georgia and southern manufacture.

Georgia Furniture.

The furniture department is stocked almost entirely with "home products" made by Atlanta and Georgia furniture factories on Sears-Roebuck specifications, he said.

Bedroom and living room suites were made by Jacobus Furniture Company, of Atlanta. Living room suites were made by the Rome Furniture Company, of Rome, Ga. Dining room furniture was made by the Trogdon Furniture Company, of Toccoa. Bedroom suites were made by Currahee Company, of Toccoa. End tables, smoking stands and other odd pieces were made by the Art Furniture Company, of Macon, and Athens Furniture Company, of Athens, Ga.

In men's clothing, work pants came from Calloway Mills, LaGrange, as did many rugs. Towels and ticking came from the Muscogee Mills in Columbus and Kincaid Mills at Griffin, Ga. Bedspreads and draperies came from mills in adjoining states.

Sheetings came from cotton mills in Atlanta, as did canvas for tents and awnings made by the Couch Brothers in East Point and the Atlanta Tent & Awning Company in Atlanta. Blankets came from Arnell Mills at Griffin.

Most of the shoes sold in the department are manufactured by the Bona Allen Company in Buford, which also makes the harness and much of the other leather goods handled in the store.

Atlanta-made hats, made by the American Hat Company here, are sold not only in the Atlanta store, but in many of the other Sears-Roebuck stores throughout the United States.

Cluett-Peabody shirts, Frank E. Block candy, cook stoves and heaters from the Rome Stove Works at Rome, Ga.; cabbage plants from the Valdosta nurseries, flower bulbs and seeds from the H. G. Hastings farm near Atlanta, were other varied Atlanta and Georgia products among hundreds in the store.

FRIEDMAN IS NAMED SEARS FASHIONIST

Appointment of David Friedman, long identified with leading women's wear stores, as fashionist for all southern stores operated by Sears, Roebuck & Co. was announced here recently. Mr. Friedman will make Atlanta headquarters for operations in supervising the fashions displayed in Sears stores from Virginia to Texas.

After a long connection with leading stores in the United States, Mr. Friedman joined Sears, Roebuck as supervisor of ready-to-wear departments.

Mr. Friedman returned to Atlanta last week from a pre-Easter inspection of New York fashions. He stated that color contrast will be the principal new note in spring and summer wear. Tri-color costumes are especially popular.

Wider Dresses Cost U. S. Hotels $1,000,000

When milady decided to wear her skirts longer and in wider variety, she added a million dollars to the expenses of American hotels.

At any rate that's what A. G. Pulver, hotel manager, told a group of hotel managers yesterday.

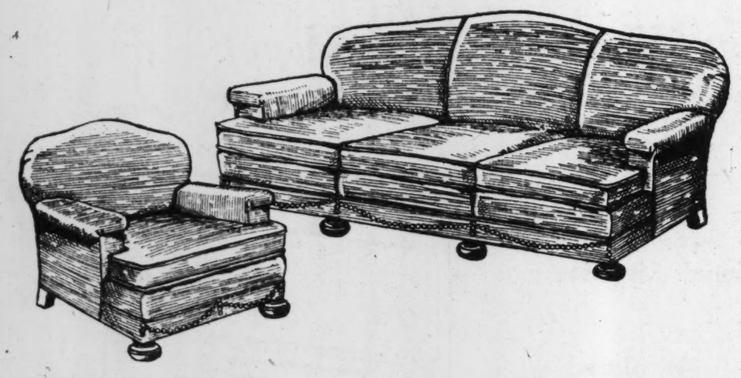

The money, he said, is to be spent to enlarge and otherwise remodel the closet space of the nation's hotels to make room for the modern clothes.

SEARS, ROEBUCK JOIN MOVEMENT

Civic and National Affairs Promoted by Firm During Past Year.

In all civic and national affairs, Sears, Roebuck will be found cooperating to the utmost. In looking over the files of the concern, one finds that in addition to having cooking schools, style shows, entertainment for the children, and many other events during the past year the firm has held over 50 interesting contests, displays and participated in movements of various kinds.

January, 1931, Sears held a free cooking school, and on January 16, held a farm festival, in which county agents demonstrators and radio stations took part. January 28, a style show was given at Keith's Georgia theater.

Sears, Roebuck girls' basketball team won city-wide fame in the girls' league during February. On February 5 Sears gave a donation of $3,000 to the Red Cross drouth fund. Sears' fashion contest was won by an Atlanta woman February 8. The golf department of the store installed a free practice driving net in March.

May 1, Sears' national fur trapers contest was won by a southerner, who was awarded a $2,000 check for a mink skin which he entered. Sears' service station during safety and traffice drive gave free brake inspection at night, so that better driving might ensue.

During the middle of May the sports department held a bait casting tourney, which attracted city-wide interest. During National Cotton Week, in May and June, Sears was in the front rank with a cotton style review at a local theater.

During the night baseball season, Sears for the convenience of their customers made available their parking lot at night, directly across the street from the baseball park.

In July Sears showed the housewives, in a demonstration, just how to can and preserve fruits and vegetables. Last September the firm celebrated their 45th anniversary. An Atlantan won Sears' nation-wide contest on radios in October. In November, National Wool Week was marked with special cooperation from Sears, Roebuck.

These and many other events have kept Sears in the public eye, and done much toward putting the firm over in a big way with their public.

Sears Features the Coldspot With Its Fine Moving Parts

Dry zero insulation, which the bureau of standards at Washington tested and found to be of superior insulation value, is incorporated in the Coldspot refrigerator pictured herewith.

A variety of Coldspot refrigerators, famed as a machine with only five moving parts, and marketed through Sears, Roebuck & Co., occupied the center of attention as one of the outstanding exhibits at a recent automatic refrigerator exhibit in Atlanta.

Sears waited five years before marketing the Coldspot because its merchandise is backed with an unqualified guarantee. It did not choose to market an electric refrigerator until it had tested, experimented and finally proved that it had one worthy of such a guarantee. When the Coldspot was launched in the marketing campaign this year, demand became so insistent that manufacturing of sufficient quantities became a problem. The factories have been working days, nights and Sundays and only recently reached the point where deliveries to customers can be made at once.

The Coldspot has only five working parts, put up in a package unit which is inspected and sealed at the factory making it practically foolproof. It reduces noise to a minimum and is trouble-free, provided the twice-a-year oiling instructions are carried out. The Coldspot has cold control for regulating temperatures. Users will find that cubic foot dimensions are larger than specified.

SEARS EMPLOYES GIVE AID TO PENNY CLUB

Another evidence of the Sears Roebuck employes' co-operation in all civic affairs was the great interest which they showed in giving to the Penny Club.

Boxes distributed throughout the store were filled by employes, and Mrs. Glenn, who was in charge of the movement, said "the boxes from Sears Roebuck were a great help, and we received a world of co-operation from both the firm and salespeople."

In all charitable movements and civic affairs, Sears leads the way for their co-workers and the employes are not far behind.

Vast Figures Given By Tonnage Experts At Sears, Roebuck

An idea as to the vastness of the Sears, Roebuck store in Atlanta is given through figures given out by the tonnage department which keeps an accurate record of every pound of merchandise shipped and received.

The inbound tonnage each day on an average for the past year reaches the enormous total of 120,000 pounds each day. This figure broken down reveals that over six freight cars of merchandise is received daily, and during 1931 over 300 solid cars.

The outbound department is also a busy unit, handling 48,000 pounds daily, or over 2 1-2 cars shipped from the platforms each 24 hours. This shipment places Sears, Roebuck in the front rank of shippers in Atlanta, and brings thousands of dollars annually to Atlanta firms.

HIESTAND DELIVERS ADDRESS TO AD CLUB

E. W. Hiestand, manager of Sears, Roebuck & Company's retail store, declared that from 70 to 90 per cent of all retail merchandising advertising was done in newspapers, in an address to the Atlanta Advertising Club Thursday at the luncheon meeting of the organization in Rich's tea room. Mr. Hiestand had as his subject, "What Is Advertising?"

"There are two kinds of advertising, immediate result advertising, and editorial, or good will advertising," he pointed out.

"The function of retail merchandising advertising is to get the customers into the store. If we get them and they fail to buy, the goods have not been advertised right or the selling is wrong."

He said that contrast is the best method of presentation in advertising, and that the five points to consider in the presentation are white space, the heading, the cut, the description and the price. He declared that ads must be newsy but not chatty and said that the advertising of sales is going out. He added that editorial (good will) advertising, building for the whole future rather than tomorrow, is the best type of advertising.

Sears' Weekly Payroll 20 Thousand Dollars

Twenty thousand dollars in these times is a lot of money, but that it the amount that Sears distributes to its 1,055 employes every week. The weekly pay roll is exactly $18,765, or over one million dollars each year.

This money is all spent in Atlanta with Atlanta firms, for household expenses, gasoline and oil,, food and clothing, and amusements.

Big Service Station Gives Courteous and Prompt Attention

One of the most popular departments of the Sears, Roebuck store is the tire and automobile accessory service station of the big institution. Here motorists are received with courteous attention. It is really all the name implies. A service station, and Sears' employes are trained in giving the kind of service which has made the firm nationally known.

Tires are mounted free, batteries are installed free, and every possible attention has been shown for the convenience of customers. The service station is located adjacent to the parking lot, and is arranged so that motorists may drive in and out with the least possible effort.

Sears' service station sells thousands of gallons of gas and oil each month, and many Atlanta motorists have found Sears' prices at the service station to be in line with those in all other departments.

New Men's Suit Department Opened in Sears' Store Here

Sears, Roebuck's new men's suit department, completely remodeled, redecorated and with a varied array of fashion-tailored suits and made-to-order material, was opened recently.

The newly-equipped department, on the first floor of the retail store, occupies the same quarters heretofore devoted to men's clothes. New rugs, furniture, display racks and other equipment have been added to give the department a modernistic effect.

In line with the new department's opening, fashion-tailored suits in the latest spring modes are being displayed. In addition, an unusually large stock of material for made-to-order suits is being shown.

Supervising rebuilding of the new department quarters were E. W. Heistand, manager of the big Ponce de Leon avenue store, and S. S. Christopher, shown in inset, manager of the men's clothing department.

GEORGIA PRODUCTS USED IN MAKING COMPANION TIRES

For Buy Georgia Products Week, Sears, Roebuck, due to the fact that cord plys and breaker strip fabric, is manufactured in Georgia, are having a special sale of Allstate Companion tires, at extra low prices.

Sears claim that this tire will outrun other tires on a per dollar basis, the claim based on a recent test, both road and laboratory under the direct supervision of Professor Phil C. Huntley of the Armour School of Technology.

The tires were put under a gruelling 2,000 000 mile test on the road. Six test cars were used with two drivers for each car, and were driven both day and night. The tires were driven over sand, through mud, gravel and snow.

Over mountains and through swamps, blistering desert trails and mountain icy roads. All the way from Akron, Ohio, to Arizona. After the test, when comparisons were made, Professor Huntley found that Sears' Allstate Companion rated very nearly 50 per cent better than the next competitive tire on a distance per dollar basis.

The cord plys and breaker strips not only are manufactured in Georgia, but Georgia cotton is used for the products. At the Sears' service station, tires are mounted and batteries installed free.

PARKING LOT BRINGS SEARS CUSTOMERS

"One reason that so many people like to trade at Sears, Roebuck," said E. W. Hiestand, of the Sears firm, "is that we have made it as convenient as possible for them.

"First we arranged an enormous parking lot, where hundreds of cars may be parked absolutely free. Filled it with cinders and packed it, so that the rain would not make it soft or soggy.

"We find that our parking lot is a great asset to our store as our customers do not have to drive through a lot of traffic, and be bothered looking for a place to park, or take the chance of getting a parking ticket."

Be THIN
It's Easy Now
● Millions of people, in late years, have found it easy to reduce. Modern science has discovered a great cause of excess fat. A certain gland becomes weak. Its secretion largely affects nutrition. Its absence means that too little food turns to energy, too much goes to fat. That is why fat people become lazy—all due to that weak gland.
Since this discovery, doctors the world over have been feeding that gland factor in obesity. A like gland taken from food animals.
The results are seen in every circle. Excess fat has been fast disappearing. Now all fashions, all ideas of youth and beauty, are based on slenderness.
Marmola prescription tablets embody this right method in right form. A famous medical laboratory prepares them for this purpose. People have used them for 24 years—millions of boxes of them. Users have told others the results, and Marmola has become a major factor in conditions which you see about you—slender figures, youth, beauty and vim.
Stop the hard and harmful methods until you see what Marmola does. Combat the cause, as all modern doctors do. As weight comes down, watch your vim come back. Don't wait longer while so many are enjoying these results. Start today, and stop when you are normal.

Luther's Bible Comes to America

By Betty Browning

LUTHER'S BIBLE has come to America. After having been preserved in the vaults of a princely German family for nearly four centuries, the book has passed into the possession of Dr Otto H. F. Vollbehr, eminent German bibliophile, who has brought it to this country as the gem of a collection of 1,500 early printed documents and manuscripts. Chicagoans have opened negotiations with Dr. Vollbehr which may result in the acquisition of the Bible and the rest of the collection for their city.

The Luther Bible has been called one of the great intellectual and artistic treasures of the Reformation. It is Luther's translation of the Bible, printed under his supervision at Wittenberg expressly for Prince Georg III. of Anhalt, one of the leading defenders of the reform movement. All three volumes are profusely illustrated with original miniatures and wood blocks by Lucas Cranach, intimate friend of Luther and the master artist of the German reformation.

Dementia Traffica

COMING out of traffic court, where business registers no depression, met Dr. Herman Goodman, an old friend, and we squatted in a nearby cafe to crack a cracker with a sip of soup. I remarked to the doc that most of the tickets were for going through red lights. Dr. Goodman, who knows about such things, sprung a highly intriguing theory on me, somewhat to wit:

Red lights for denoting "Stop" are dead wrong. Red is a natural challenge. Red drives the bull haywire. A red-headed woman drives a mild man wild. And a red light makes a driver defiant. An unwritten law defense based on red-light mania or dementia traffica might click.

Experiments have shown that animals will resent red and either turn from it or attack it. Red is a stimulant. Only orange-red surpasses it.

On the other hand, green, which denotes safely, is so soothing that drivers frequently have to be honked at to get them started though they are staring right at the green signal. The same ones who risk a fine or accident to cheat one second through a red light will yawningly lose two seconds before getting in gear on the next green one.

The traditional red light for danger, I am told, grew through the ages because red can be seen further than any other color.

Says Nell

Nellie Revell, the heroic showwoman who broke her back, lay for years in a cast, was a world-wide medical cause celebre, and by sheer grit and faith and an abiding sense of humor beat all that and today walks around and works at her trade and is a cheer and a kick to everyone who knows her, has a philosophy of life which has withstood more than most martyrs' span on earth was ever intended to weather.

We were in a taxi recently and she was babbling on—

"Yep, Jack, it's worth while living if a fellow can just mooch along and occasionally get a chance to put red lanterns around a dark hole or shove a ladder under some chump who's out on a limb... Some people think that's a flock of hooey. Well, so are 'please' and 'thank you.' But it would be a terrible world without 'em. They are the hairline between us and monkeys!"

But—Does It Rhyme?

Harold Orlob, the song-writer, broadcast with me over WINS. He was flashing a new ditty, "Lead to My Heart," dedicated to Mrs. Ely Culbertson, and he knocked off some wit about bridge. To my astonished ears he mentioned something about "argumentative propensities." Fancy a song-writer who can pronounce "argumentative propensities!" We may yet meet one who can spell it.

Pounds of Pounds

Noel Coward has stepped ahead of Shaw, Kipling, Wells and Barrie as a royalty-earner, with an approximate income last year of $250,000. Like all rich British writers, he draws most of his sugar from America. Shaw's annual take these days is about $175,000 and A. A. Milne, due to "Winnie the Pooh" and other kid books popular on this side, cashes checks for $150,000. Those who cop between that and $100,000 include Somerset Maugham, P. G. Wodehouse, A. S. M. Hutchinson, Michael Arlen, E. Phillips Oppenheim and Warwick Deeping.

Edgar Wallace is said to have grossed $5,000,000 in his lifetime. "Journey's End" brought R. C. Sheriff $250,000. Noel Coward grabbed off close to half a million on "Bitter-sweet." Hutchinson, so far, has made $350,000 on "If Winter Comes," some $50,000 more than Remarque got with his sky-rocketing, "All Quiet on the Western Front." None of the foreign women authors can touch the Americans, though, with Edna Ferber and Fannie Hurst banking a good $100,000 per annum.

It isn't all plum pudding and gravy for the English literati, at that. W. L. George had a room papered with 723 rejection slips!

Idiosyncrazies—

The same week that Earl Carroll surrendered his namesake theatre, the handsomest and most thoroughly equipped on earth, by a weird financial paradox he and his personal corporations earned more than $16,000 profit. So are amusement accounts involved. His touring "Vanities" turned in $8,700 plus the $1,000 weekly salary to Earl; his resident "Vanities" netted $4,800 plus his weekly salary, $1,600... But the house share for the New York show was not enough to meet the rent exactions. He is apparently fed up on theatre operation, has opened huge offices on Fifth Avenue and proposes hereaftr to produce prolifically, in the legitimate as well as the revue commodities.

One H. E. Switzer has organized in Reno an "Escort Club," to provide playmates for the mammas who are waiting to Houdini the handcuffs. The lads must have looks, wardrobe and dancing talent, and "be gentlemen unless encouraged to be otherwise." H'mph.

Buster West, champion three-cushion billiardeer of the Friars, and vaudeville hoofer and spoofer, was shooting with a visiting guest and beating him plenty. The other, after the fourth miscue, muttered "Really, I've never played so badly," and Buster shot back, "Oh—then you have played before?"... Which is something like the gag about the stage director who suddenly decided to throw in a fiddle bit in a number and shouted to the assembled chorus, "Hey—can any o' you janes play the violin?" And one pugnosed pony chirped back, "I don't know—I never tried!"

Newspaperman, friend of mine, started a column on one of the sheets. It didn't last. The day after it was out he received the following letter from the head of the press department of a chain of Broadway houses:

Inasmuch as you are no longer writing your column, I will appreciate the return of your season pass....THAT'S BROADWAY.

MA'S MOVIE ALBUM—NO. 20.

Edna Purviance, in 1916, When She was Charlie Chaplin's Famous Ingenue ...She Now Lives in Hawaii.

Harpo Marx, the most famous harp-player in the world, is probably the worst harpist on earth. He does nothing right, not even tuning his instrument. He makes audiences roar and musicians groan. He taught himself. From the first he held his harp against the wrong shoulder and still does. His mother insisted on his playing some instrument and he chose the harp because he didn't think she could get one. But his uncle, Al Shean, produced—and Harpo was stuck with it.

Vieing with the hash-haciendas where one may eat all one can eat for 60 c's (and in some spots for as low as 35) a speakie in the Village now invites you to drink all you can hold for a buck. That takes in Scotch, rye or gin—if you still believe the sweet language of labels. Anyway, it's a bargain.

With Martin Beck back in the saddle of organized big-time vaudeville, the industry returns to the hands of one of its makers. Beck was the chief of the Orpheum Circuit, one of the greatest theatre-builders in history, creator of the Palace, New York, the State-Lake, Chicago, and his own Martin Beck in New York, a masterpiece of construction. The two-a-day may rise again now. It had dwindled down to one theatre in this country, the Palace on Broadway, whereas Beck, himself, used to operate more than 30 in and West of Chicago.

The song-writer, who became King overnight of Hollywood with the advent of the sound-picture, only to flop like a whole lot of kings have done of late when it was discovered that musical shows, a-la stage, were not so hot on the screen, is sneaking back again. But it's through the servants' entrance this time, as a hired man, for not musical shows but shows with music are coming into movie vogue

HE'S A MASTER.

Dan Healy, New York's Foremost Stager of Cafe Shows and Ringmaster of Same, Knockin' 'Em Over at the Paramount Hotel Grill.

The big producers gobbled up all the music publishing houses at high dough during the rush and have let go at depression prices wherever possible since... Music publishing is an intensely specialized science and just being a slick businessman isn't enough to qualify one to get by in a game with such huge fluctuation possibilities dependent on the flimsiest zephyrs of popular whim and mood.

They've raised $50,000 to ransom Forty-second Street from the operators of burlesque, flea circuses, ballyhoo and store-shows who have been kidnaping what was once the greatest theatrical block in the world for several years, the space between Seventh and Eighth Avenues on the great crosstown stem. George White says he will not exhibit his "Scandals" in his own house there any more. Even Al Woods, who was the King of Forty-second Street, when he made his comeback after bankruptcy, put up his sign on Forty-first, which used to be the back alley of the great string of theatres on the South side of the block—the New Amsterdam, the Lyric, the Sam H. Harris, the Eltinge, the American Music Hall. Of these the Amsterdam is still in the class and big dough.

Thyra Samter Winslow, whose "Blueberry Pie" again proves that a collection of short stories can sell, started as a chorus-girl after some newspaper work on a small sheet in a town in Arkansas, and her first published story was "Confessions of a Chorus-girl." She has appeared in more various magazines than any other woman writer in all the annals. Everything interests her and her range of subject matter is phenomenal... She is married to Nelson Waldorf Hyde, a Yale man, an executive of the telephone company. He is younger than she is.

Met an unusual panhandler on one of the side-streets. He boned me for two-bits to buy himself a drink. His frankness floored me so completely that I dug.

"Thanks, brother," he said, "I'll lift my glass to your good health. I'll pray for you the last thing tonight before I pass out... and I'll pay you back—after the meek inherit the Earth!"

LOVELIEST CO-ED

JAZZ FAN

Andre Lawrence van Assendarp, 23, Formerly of Holland, but Now Stationed in Java, Dutch East Indies, Whence He Dispatches a Daily Letter to Carol, the Big Romance of His Life.

ANDRE LAWRENCE VAN ASSENDARP, 23, of Java and The Hague, was an ardent lover of jazz music. So much so that when the Simmons University Cowboy Band, from Abilene, Texas, came to The Hague, where Andre was studying at Leiden University, he went backstage at the theatre where they were performing and began to pal around with them.

This was in the Summer of 1930. For several years the Simmons Cowboys had toured Europe doing their stuff. The unit was highly popular with Continental audiences. But it's doubtful if any single fan of theirs was as enthusiastic about them as young Andre.

The son of a Dutch magistrate for forty years in the East Indies, he admired everything about the Simmons boys—their picturesque frontier costumes, their glittering six-shooters, their equally gleaming trumpets and trombones and saxophones. The bandsmen in turn took to Andre. They found him a pleasant fellow, blonde, rather intense, of the scholastic type, much absorbed in his lessons. Not averse to a seidel of beer now and then, you know, or a quick and eager glance at a pretty girl. But withal an essentially serious youth.

One day, while the visiting Texans were being entertained by Andre in his rooms, one of the guests handed a volume he'd been carrying to their host. It was "The Simmons Bronco," the university's year book. Andre glanced at it politely, but with fairly feeble interest, until—

Turning the pages, his eyes rested on the photograph of a girl in that section of the book devoted to sophomores. Andre thought, with a thrill, that he had never seen such a beautiful face, framed in a halo of vivid blonde hair. The features were small, regular, delicate. The expression was gay, animated. "Carol Johnson," read the caption underneath.

The Dutch are not given to displays of emotion, so Andre masked his intense interest beneath an assumption of boredom. But the next time he and the Simmons boys got together he asked to look at the book again. The Texans by this time were getting wise. They nudged one another, winked, and with characteristic American candor inquired whether the Java boy fancied Carol as the cream in his coffee.

Andre blushed, stammered in embarrassment. So the six-shooting jazz babies from the great Southwest relented and took pity on the Dutch lad. They gave him Carol's address and intimated that it would be all right with them if Andre wrote to her. Andre was a little apprehensive, but finally took the hurdle. Would Carol be angry at his presumption?

Carol wasn't. She had received a brief note from one of the bandsmen, effecting an introduction by proxy at a distance of thousands of miles. Consequently, she answered Andre's letter, and romance at long distance began to bloom.

Andre was in rapture's seveth heaven. But he fretted a good deal over the space that separated him from the Texas dream girl. He could hardly wait for his seven-year period at Leiden University to end. When the last term was up he caught the first United States-bound boat. But he didn't proceed immediately to Abilene. Instead he made his first stop at Bogolusa, Louisiana, where Carol's people lived. Andre knew his Old World properties and how to observe them.

The outcome of his interview with Mr. and Mrs. Johnson is not known, but the brevity of his visit indicated that he hadn't had to waste much time convincing them that his intentions were serious. From Bogolusa the ardent young Dutchman made a beeline for Abilene. Carol met his train.

Andre spent a week in Abilene, most of it in Carol's company. There were campus strolls together, motor outings, twosomes at the talkies.

Andre succeeded in making himself almost as popular with the campus crowd as his "cream-in-the-coffee" girl. Her popularity, about a year ago, had been officially recognized. At that time Gary Cooper, romantic he-man movie star, had visited the university and had acted as judge of a contest sponsored by the college newspaper. "Carol is the most beautiful of the co-eds," had been Cooper's ruling. And recalling that he usually favors brunettes—Boy! Page little Lupe Velez!—the students couldn't question Gary's sincerity.

Meanwhile Andre was, regrettably, summoned to Java, where a post in the Dutch civil service awaited him.

But Carol's spirits have been considerably cheered up ever since by the receipt of a daily letter from the ardent young jazz lover of Java.

Honors Hero Who Cured His Mad-Dog Bite

"RUN for your life! There's a mad dog loose!"

This hysterical cry, ringing through the Paris streets, caused an abrupt scattering of pedestrians. Every adult took to his heels, but the warning came too late for a little boy named Joseph Meister. Before he could reach cover, the animal, foaming with rabies, bore down upon him and bit him severely.

Joseph's uncle and guardian was in despair, for there was little general knowledge about this dread malady, so often the cause of lockjaw and speedy death. But some of the elder Meister's friends had heard of the great Dr. Louis Pasteur and his laboratory experiments in counteracting hydrophobia. They persuaded Joseph's uncle to take the child to the specialist, and he did so. Pasteur quickly effected a cure.

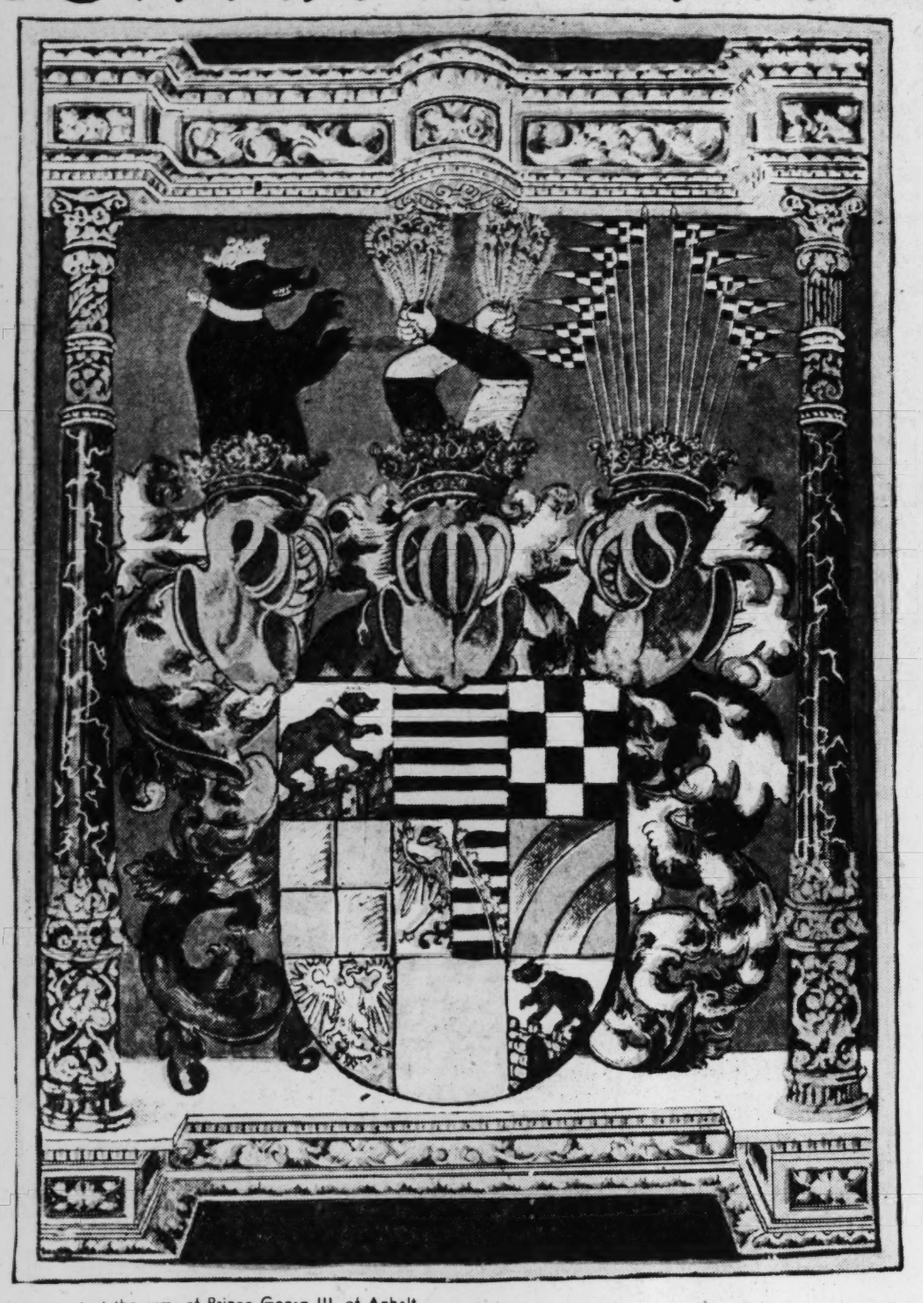

All this was a long time ago, in July, 1885. Joseph Meister in the intervening years has grown to man's estate. But he has never forgotten the benefactor to whom he owed his life. Ten years after the mad dog episode, Pasteur died. But before then the institute bearing his name had been erected in Paris, in honor of the eminent chemist and bacteriologist. And a statue commemorating Pasteur's saving of little Joseph Meister was put up so that humanity should never forget that heroic act.

In the accompanying photograph you see Meister standing beside the memorial in the institute's gardens.

Luther's Bible Comes to America

Typical of Cranach's famous picturizations of Luther's doctrines is this original miniature showing Sin and Grace and the salvation of man through faith. To the left of the tree trunk dividing the miniature, Adam and Eve are seen tasting the forbidden fruit in paradise, and Death is prodding Man into the gulf of the eternally damned as Moses indicates the twelve tables of the law. To the right, John the Baptist indicates Christ on the cross to Adam, and Christ tramples on Death; the Virgin is on a hill in the background

The woodcut of the arms of Prince Georg III. of Anhalt for whom the Luther Bible was especially printed, is reproduced in each volume in varying color combinations. Lucas Cranach, master artist of the German Reformation, executed the woodcut and all of the miniatures illustrating the Bible.

The unique feature of the book, however, is the full page autograph transcriptions of Bible passages on the fly-leaves of each volume. These were written and signed by Luther and by his principal associates, Philip Melancthon, Johan Bugenhagen, and Caspar Cruciger. There are four of these inscriptions in each volume.

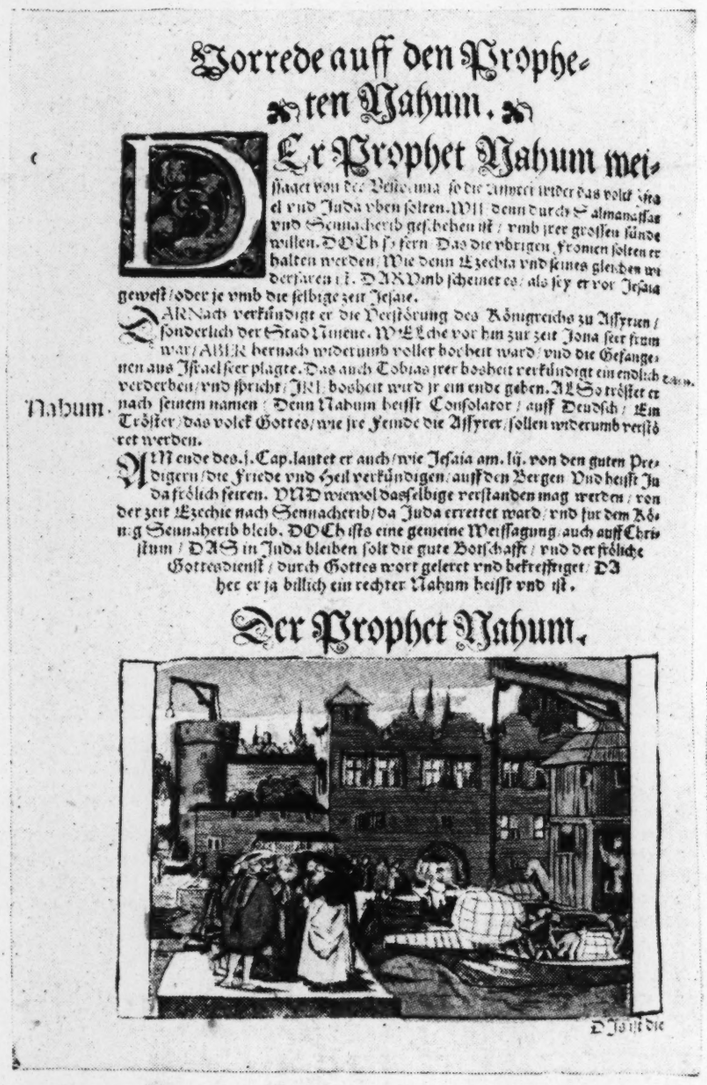

Although the Bible was printed in 1541 and the miniatures and inscriptions are dated three years later, the book is in a state of almost perfect preservation. Each volume measures roughly 12 by 16 inches and is 2 inches thick. The brown silk binding covering oaken boards is only slightly worn; the calf backs, brass corner pieces, and ornamental bosses are intact.

At right: The portrait of Melancthon, "scribe of the Reformation," adorns the second volume of the Bible Signed by Cranach and dated 1544, it is considered one of his master pieces.

A portrayal of the desolation wrought by two of the seven angels of the Apocalypse, as told in the Revelations of St. John.

A page from the Bible showing the characteristic heading and illuminated cap letter at the beginning of each chapter. The woodcut is one of many in which Biblical characters and places are given the aspect of sixteenth century Germany

Inside the covers the vellum pages are found as fresh and spotless and the type as clear as though the Bible had been printed yesterday. The coloring of the illuminated letters heading the chapters and of the hand-painted wood blocks which adorn almost every page is as rich and bright as when it was applied.

Particularly striking are the miniatures, which are numbered among Cranach's finest work. A full page heraldic design of the Anhalt arms adorns each volume. Each design offers a different combination of brilliant colors, enframed in a lustrous gold border, the process for making which is now lost.

Perhaps the most interesting of the miniatures is the portrait of Melancthon, within a border of the arms of Anhalt. Melancthon was called the scribe of the Reformation; a professor of Greek at the University of Wittenberg, he helped Luther translate the Bible. This miniature, its unusual clarity of feature and flesh tones emphasized by the reformer's dark costume, is considered one of Cranach's masterpieces of portraiture.

Characteristic of the dramatic interpretations of Luther's doctrines for which Cranach became famous is a full page miniature in the third volume depicting Sin and Grace and the salvation of man through faith. This is reproduced in the illustration at upper right of the page.

Another page from the Luther Bible setting forth the artist's conceptions of Apocalyptic angels

The Bible was received by Prince Georg of Anhalt only two years before Luther died. Three years later, in 1547, the rulers of Anhalt, with other Protestant princes, were involved in a bloody war with Emperor Charles V., which resulted in the confiscation of the property of one branch of the Anhalt family.

Through this war and through the wars of four centuries the princes of Anhalt preserved the famous book, locking it in the vaults of their medieval castle. Then after the World war, with the dethronement of Germany's ancient rulers, the family faced poverty. Its most precious possession had to go. Dr. Vollbehr purchased the Bible from the present duke of Anhalt for $150,000.

Now the Luther Bible is the gem of the collection of 1,500 rare documents, appraised at more than $1,000,000, which Dr. Vollbehr is planning to sell as a unit to a university, library, or museum where it will be kept intact for the benefit of the public.

After the war Dr. Vollbehr began to dispose of his many collections. Henry Huntington acquired one for his famous library at Pasadena, Cal., for $1,250,000.

In 1928 Dr. Vollbehr presented to the Library of Congress a collection of European printers and publishers marks, more than 11,000 items, called the most comprehensive of the sort in existence. In 1930 Congress purchased from him for the Library of Congress the famous Gutenberg 42-line Bible and a collection of 5,000 early printed books and documents. Although the collection was appraised at more than $3,000,000, Dr. Vollbehr sold it for $1,500,000.

The Week in the News of Other Years

Sir Isaac Newton conducting an experiment with light rays.

TURNING back the page of time for the dates of notable events which fall within the week, beginning today, the chronologer comes upon a wealth of material important historically. Births of famous men, deaths of others, tragedies, battles, and disasters make up a list for THE GRAPHIC WEEKLY'S "Front Page of History." Following are a few of the important dates of the week:

March 20

43 B. C—Publius Ovidius Naso (Ovid), the great Roman poet of the last Augustan age, was born at Sulmo, in the Abruzzi mountains. He was the last true poet of the famous age of Roman literature which began with Lucretius. He died A. D. 17.

1727—Sir Isaac Newton, noted English natural philosopher and discoverer of the laws of gravitation and motion, died. He was buried at Westminster abbey on March 28, 1727. Newton was born at Woolstrope, near Grantham, on Christmas day, 1642. He was knighted by Queen Anne at Cambridge in 1705.

1861—Mendoza, a city in Argentina, was totally destroyed by an earthquake. Not a building was left standing, and 10,000 persons lost their lives, including the French geologist, Bravard, who had predicted the catastrophe.

March 21

1685—Johann Sebastian Bach, famous German composer, was born at Eisenach, Germany. He was of a family noted in music for more than 200 years. He composed cantatas, secular vocal music, orchestral, chamber, clavier, and organ music. Like another great composer, Handel, he became blind before his death, which occurred on July 28, 1750.

Johann Sebastian Bach

1804—Louis Antoine Henri de Bourbon Conde, duc d' Enghien, was executed by a firing squad in the moat of the Castle of Vincennes, near Paris. He was accused by Napoleon of plotting against France, tried by court martial and condemned. Napoleon refused to show him mercy. The duc d' Enghien was born at Chantilly Aug. 2, 1772.

1912—Capt. Robert Falcon Scott, famous polar explorer, Dr. E. A. Wilson, Lieut. H. R. Bowers, and Capt. Oates are believed to have perished upon this date. They were returning from the South pole, which they reached on Jan. 18, 1912, only to find that Amundsen had been there ahead of them. Their bodies and diaries were found Nov. 12, 1912.

March 22

1599—Sir Anthony Van Dyck, great Flemish painter, was born at Antwerp. Among masterpieces from his brush were portraits of the nobility and royalty of Holland, Italy, and England. He died Dec. 9, 1641.

March 23

1775—Patrick Henry, revolutionary patriot, soldier and politician, delivered his famous speech at a revolutionary convention in Virginia in which he uttered the words: "I know not what course others may take but as for me give me liberty or give me death." Henry served as governor of Virginia, but spurned such important posts as United States senator, secretary of state, and chief justice of the Supreme court.

Patrick Henry.

1849—An army of Austrians under Radetsky defeated a Sardinian army under King Charles Albert at the battle of Navaro in Italy. King Charles Albert abdicated in favor of his son, Victor Emmanuel, who concluded an armistice with Radetzky, by which the Sardinians were spared the disgrace of surrender.

1901—Emilio Aguinaldo, leader of the Philippine rebels, was captured by Gen Frederick Funston at Palawan, Luzon. His capture brought to an end the Filipino insurrection. Aguinaldo attempted to take Manila from the Americans on Feb. 4, 1899. He took an oath of allegiance to the United States April 19, 1901.

March 24

1603—Queen Elizabeth, the last of the Tudor rulers of England, died. She was born on Sept. 7, 1533, and was the daughter of King Henry VIII. and Anne Boleyn. She took the throne Nov. 17, 1558.

Queen Elizabeth.

1815—The American warship Hornet defeated and captured the British sloop Penguin. The battle occurred three months after the treaty of peace was signed at Ghent, the commanders of the two vessels being unaware that the war had been brought to an end.

1894—The United States government authorized the establishment of a naval base at Honolulu, Hawaii. The great base at Pearl Harbor, seven miles from Honolulu, today is one of the most completely equipped marine stations in the world.

1767—Joachim Murat, king of Naples, was born at La Bastide-Fortuniere, France. He became one of Napoleon's leading generals, married Caroline Bonaparte, Napoleon's youngest sister, and was elevated to the post of governor of Paris, later to that of a grand marshal, and still later to that of a grand admiral. Napoleon made him grand duke of Berg and Cleves in 1806, and in 1808 appointed him king of Naples to succeed Joseph Bonaparte. Murat broke with Napoleon, but offered his services to his former chief before the battle of Waterloo. Murat was executed by a firing squad at Pizzo, Oct. 13, 1815.

1816—Payridon was elected the first president of Argentina. Formal independence of that nation from Spain was declared July 9, 1816, although no representative of Madrid had ruled in Buenos Aires since May, 1810.

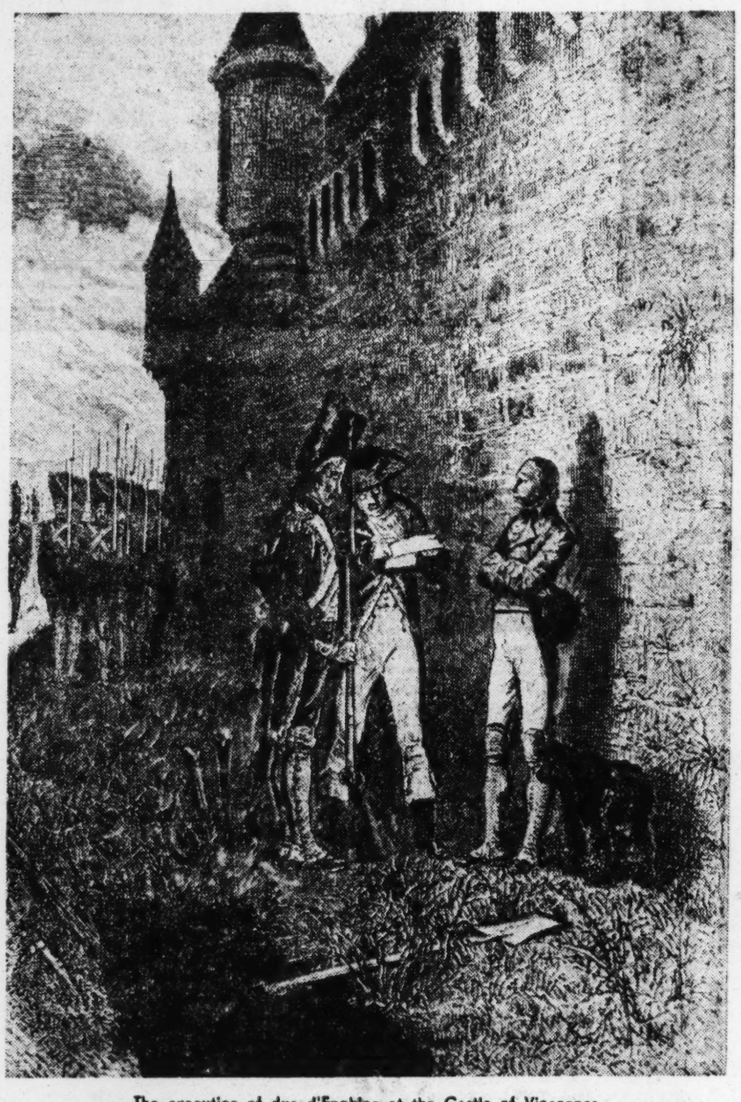

1865—A Union force of 45,000 men commanded by Gen. E. R. S. Canby invested the city of Mobile.

March 26

946—King Edmund I. of England was stabbed to death at the royal villa at Pucklechurch in Glouchestershire by an exiled robber named Liofa. The king was buried at an abbey in Glastonbury.

1812—Caracas, the capital of Venezuela, was almost totally destroyed by an earthquake. Approximately 12,000 persons lost their lives.

1857—A British army defeated troops of Persia at the battle of Monhammerah. It was one of the most important military engagements of the Anglo-Persian war.

Tiny Daughters of the Mikado

LIKE two quaint little Japanese dolls are these two tiny princesses, the daughters of Emperor Hirohito of Japan. The smaller one is Princess Kadzuko Taka, and her sister is Princess Shigeko Teru. Their mother is the former Princess Nagako of the house of Kuni. She became the bride of Hirohito in 1924, and four years later her husband was crowned emperor of Nippon. Princess Kadzuko Taka was born Sept. 30, 1929, and Princess Shigeko Teru was born Dec. 8, 1925. This is a recent picture of the royal children.

The Jokesmiths' Comical Bird

AT some time or other nearly everybody has heard stories about the dodo bird, but few people know that such a creature once actually existed. He is popularly believed to be the creation of comic strip artists and jokesmiths. Homer Dill of the University of Iowa museum spent several years gathering all available information about this strange bird, which has been extinct for several centuries, and guided by the data thus compiled he has constructed a representation of the creature. One of the most remarkable things about the model is that it looks a great deal like the goggle-eyed bird portrayed by the comic artists. It is shown here with the scientist who made it. The dodo was allied to the pigeons, about the size of a swan, and of uncouth and clumsy appearance. It was quite flightless, and lived in security in Mauritius until the island was visited by Dutch sailors in the sixteenth century. The hogs which these men took with them were largely responsible for the subsequent rapid extermination of the birds.

What's a Flood if the Train's on Time?

THE engineer who directs the construction of a railroad is even more important than the engineer at the throttle of a locomotive. He must lay his tracks so carefully that they will not be swept away by floods, settling of the soil, or other disturbances. This photograph shows a train navigating a flooded railway in Syracuse, N. Y. In spite of the inundation, traffic proceeded with only a slight variation in schedule even when the water was at its highest.

Bathing in Sunshine: Reveling in Health

THESE young people are spending the winter soaking up the health-giving rays of the sun on a Florida beach. They have fled from the cold and dampness of the north to the semi-tropical south where they may absorb ultra-violet rays to their heart's content. City dwellers of the northern latitudes are likely to suffer from a great deficiency in sunlight during the period from December to March. Ultra-violet rays, which medical men have learned are necessary to health, are largely shut off from the northern cities at this time. Children are particularly likely to suffer from the lack of them. The boys and girls pictured here, however, have no fears of rickets or kindred ailments.

"Capital of Bootleggia," Fed by Mystery Ships, Rises Off the Shores of Newfoundland

Dense Fog of the Grand Banks and a Denser Fog of Hush Hide Booze Buccaneers

By Frederic Babcock

St. Pierre, a town, capital of the French colony of St. Pierre and Miquelon, on the S. E. side of the island of St. Pierre. It is compactly built of stone, has a good harbor, and is an important cod-fishing station.

—Lippincott's Gazetteer of the World

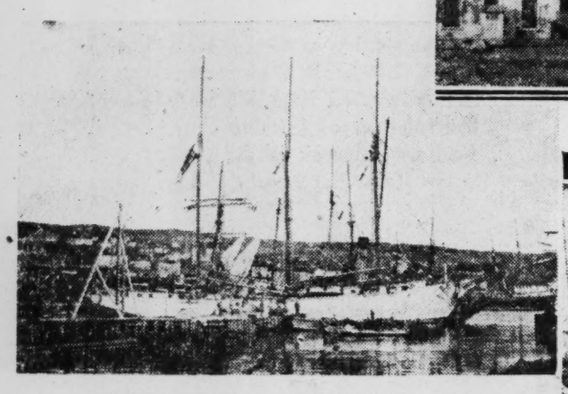

The town of St. Pierre, looking toward both entrances to the harbor. Dog island, in the center background, has a motorboat service to the town and is inhabited by about 200 fishermen. The original residents of the colony got free land from France on condition that they build their own homes.

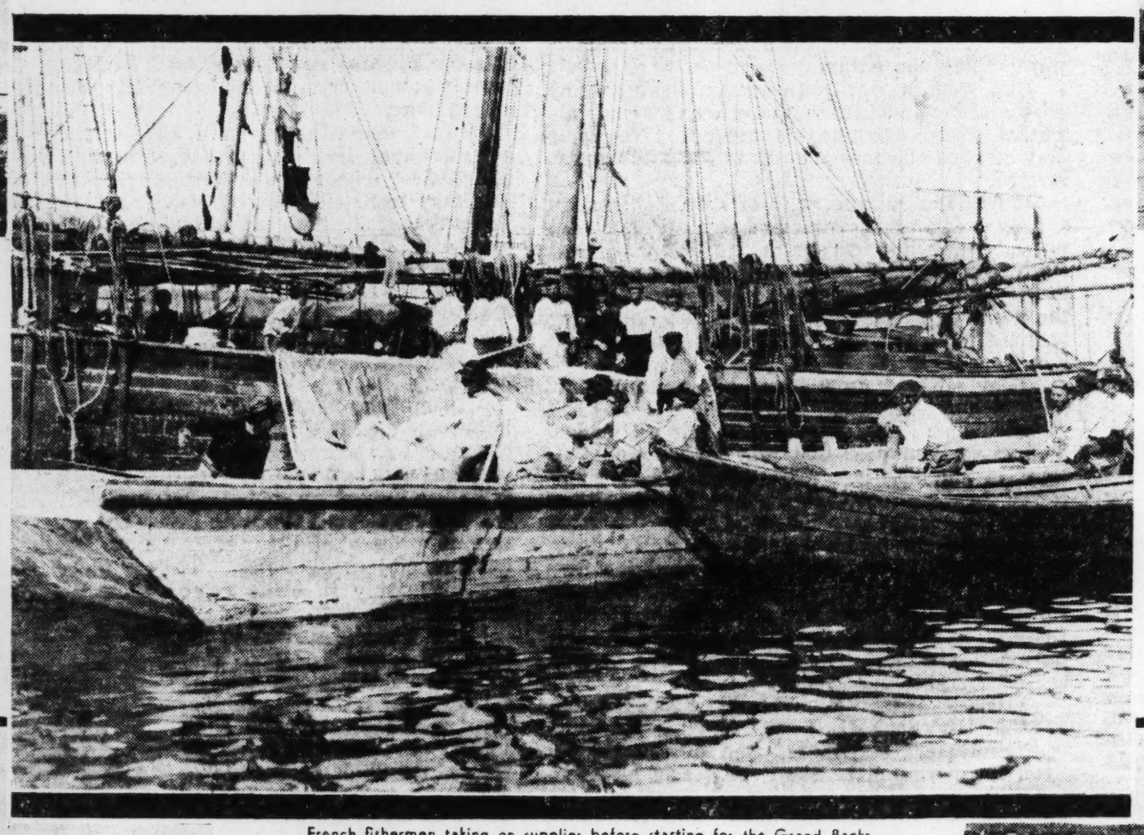

BEHIND that somewhat prosaic description there is a story that would rival the tales of Stevenson and Poe. For St. Pierre, situated on a tiny island 15 miles off the southern coast of Newfoundland, has become one of the capitals of Bootleggia. Rum smugglers, daring dogs of the sea, are using it as a base for operations which, it is related, often realize as high as $10,000,000 a year. The town is no longer important as a cod-fishing station; it is important as a source of one of the greatest floods since Noah's.

A vessel all set to transport a cargo of fish across the Atlantic to France, thereby proving that rum running isn't the colony's only business.

A French trawler, one of the twenty or thirty that come over from Boulogne, Bordeaux, and other French ports every spring to fish on the Grand Banks.

The United States had no sooner banished the saloon, some thirteen years ago, than St. Pierre began to realize its possibilities. By 1922 it had set in motion a mass drive against the possibility of seeing America thirst. Flagless mystery ships, clouded by the dense fogs of the Grand Banks and the denser clouds of hush, were arriving from out of the nowhere. And they were bringing with them many thousands of cases of Scotch whisky and Holland gin. Thus the insignificant codfish station became the rallying ground of the west Atlantic outposts of alcoholic Europe, the haven of American bootleggers, and the guiding spirit of the domain that extends from Newfoundland southward along the meridian to Nassau, Jamaica, and the Caribbean. From this point the bootleggers could outfit and load for their dark trips into the United States and Canada; there they could flee to safety when the pursuit grew too warm.

Today St. Pierre still holds its strategic position in the Realm of Rum. It is only 2,200 miles from the supply bases of western Europe; the Bahamas and other West Indian aspirants to leadership are 1,000 miles further removed. Place a line on the globe, one end resting on Glasgow and the other on Chicago or New York, and the line will pass almost directly over the French colony of St. Pierre et Miquelon. And the island is close to the center of things. Newfoundland almost cuts it off on the east, while to the north and west are the coasts of Canada and the United States. Rum runners operating from its shores may strike in a hundred different directions.

Women drying codfish in St. Pierre, preparatory to shipment to the mother country. Fishing was once the principal industry of the colony. It isn't any more.

One of these buccaneers of boozedom once boasted that he could deliver one thousand cases of any kind of liquor in New York three weeks from date of receipt of order. It is said that he made good his boast. He added that no fewer than 200,000 cases of whisky were carried from the island to New York by one vessel in one year.

"Last year," this skipper related, "we made four trips between Scotland and St. Pierre, and on each voyage brought back 50,000 cases of choice goods. We didn't want to risk capture with that amount on board, and so we called at the French colony. There we discharged 40,000 cases, and then continued to 'Rum row,' off the New Jersey coast, where we transferred our cargo to high-powered motor boats and lighters. Having got rid of our supply, we beat it back to St. Pierre for another 10,000 cases. We continued this routine throughout the season.

"We bought the liquor in Scotland for $11 a case, which figures out at $2,200,000 for the 200,000 cases. We sold the stuff to New York interests for $50 a case, which totals $10,000,000, giving us a gross profit of $7,800,000. Not so bad, eh, for one year's work?"

"A vessel clears from St. Pierre for the Bahamas or some West Indian port," he went on. "Striking in off the Long Island shore, it loafs along in a leisurely way and is met by boats from shore, which take off its cargo, unseen, of course. All this time the boat is protected from seizure on the high seas by its clearance papers. To satisfy the French and British authorities that its voyage was legitimate, it really goes to the port for which it cleared, loads another cargo there, clears for St. Pierre, and repeats the performance.

Waiting at the quay for the steamer, Pro Patria, to arrive. This is St. Pierre's only regular connection with the outside world. The steamer runs twice a month to North Sydney, Nova Scotia. And the cattle on it travel first class!

"The game works both ways, both voyages being profitable for the owners and all concerned. Can you beat it?"

The colony is ruled by a governor, appointed by Paris. He does not attempt to conceal the facts.

"The Americans are welcome to come to our island and buy anything we have to sell," he said some years ago, "and they may come without hindrance and go with our good will. There are no restrictions on the export of alcoholic liquors or of any other goods from St. Pierre. There is no prohibition, such as there is in the United States, and you may be sure that none will be enforced under the prevailing laws.

"Any captain who obeys the laws of the open seas and of St. Pierre may leave here with 100 cases or 1,000 cases of cognac or of whisky on his manifest for New York or Washington, if he wants to. It is not for us to inquire into the local laws of those cities. Such a manifest would be cleared from our customs without question or delay.

"You say there are smugglers here. Smugglers with respect to whom? To France? No. You say the United States. We are sorry for that, but we can enforce the laws only as they are."

"How much traffic in liquor is there out of St. Pierre?" a storekeeper was asked.

"What merchant would answer a question like that?" he countered. "No merchant would reveal the details of his liquor business. Particularly to an investigator. You ask what disposition will be made of the 10,000 cases of whisky coming into St. Pierre. How much is that for the 125,000,000 people in the United States? Not one drop, one bare taste, per person. It is useless to discuss it."

St. Pierre island is only about ten miles square. Its surface is rocky and its vegetation scant. With the Miquelon islands, nearby, it forms a colony of only 93 square miles. Prior to the coming of prohibition, fishing was almost the only sizeable occupation of the inhabitants. It's different now.

The colony is just about the last remnant of New France in North America. But many people have believed for years that, with other islands, such as Bermuda and the Bahamas, off the Atlantic coast, it constitutes a potential French and British menace to American security. Some people have advocated, as a way out of the difficulty, that these islands might be turned over to the United States in lieu of the payment of part of the war debts. So far the scheme has come to nothing.

It is difficult to conceive of the islanders themselves standing for any such policy. As a part of the United States their wet paradise would be dried up—comparatively speaking—under the withering blasts of the trade winds from the mainland. Then where would all the money go?

"I told the inhabitants of St. Pierre et Miquelon that France would not trade their affection and glory for gold," the French minister of colonies once said.

"These hardy 4,000 French men and women are profoundly attached to France and they bravely did their duty during the war. They are of pure French descent, mostly Bretons and Bearnaise. However, these excellent patriots have begun to doubt their native country. An American campaign has made them believe that France, having need of money, would sell them to America."

"Did they believe it?" he was asked.

"They believed it so thoroughly that on the day of my arrival there they received me coldly. They imagined that I came to confirm the unhappy news."

"What did you say to them?"

"I told them that France did not sell Frenchmen, that she would not trade their affection for gold, and that she never abandon them."

The minister of colonies said that when he made this announcement the people of St. Pierre wept. They wept for joy.

NO MORE dominant figure exists in the Orient today than Riza Pahlavi, former stable boy and Cossack trooper and now reigning shah of Persia. In the following article by Eskandar Khan Nazar Mirza, a native of Teheran and the first man ever permitted to take photographs in that country, you will find a fresh angle of the mighty sultan's personality developed.

The dramatic train of happenings set forth is authentic and springs directly from the ruler's passionate desire to modernize Persia. Ever since he ascended the ivory steps of the Peacock Throne and with one superb gesture tossed away the pearl-studded Kadjar crown, the democracy and radical theories of Riza Pahlavi have been obvious.

In spite of various humble callings he has followed, his father was once master of ceremonies under two ex-shahs. The family was rich, powerful, honored. Yet Riza, at nineteen, joined a hard-boiled Cossack regiment as a common soldier. Already his ambition was terrific. He believed that Persia's future lay in her army—so to the army he went.

He studied at the Sorbonne in Paris for two years; then returned to Teheran, was given a captain's commission in the cavalry and rose rapidly to a colonelcy. Since that time he has dedicated his busy life to two things: fighting and politics. In the Balkan War he threw in his lot with the Turks. Already an outstanding Nationalist personage, he was made Minister of War in 1921. By 1923 he had become Premier of the land of Iran.

As a Nationalist leader, he was committed to a practical programme. The first thing, therefore, that he did was to boot out all British and Russian officers then encumbering Persia and to weld the army into the semblance of a clenched first. With sabres and rifles to back him up, he next coolly deposed the reigning shah, the fat spendthrift, Ahmed Mirza, and usurped his crown. Ahmed Mirza, after having run through millions of dollars which he showered upon gay ladies in Paris, was forced to open a perfume and soap shop in self-support. Not long ago he died.

No more incongruous contrast could be imagined than that which existed between Ahmed Mirza and Riza Pahlavi. Ahmed was almost repulsively fat; Riza is athletically lean and clean of limb. Ahmed was an unbridled luxury-lover; Riza, almost ascetically frugal and moderate of appetite. Ahmed traveled with a retinue of flunkeys, lackeys and sometimes dancing girls. Riza disdains pomp, restricting himself to the services of a brisk and business-like lieutenant.

Riza Pahlavi continued to prosecute his modernistic programme. One of its several platforms was the gradual enfranchisement of women— a reform that would have struck his predecessor as a fantastic absurdity. Riza Pahlavi believed and believes that the female sex should not be treated as chattels of masculine domination. And, as a sort of symbol, he began his campaign by abrogating the ancient rule that no woman may appear in public with unveiled face.

Just how that bit of radicalism led him into a domestic comedy with dramatic elements is set forth in the following article.

A COPPER SUN was setting over Teheran's minarets as the mullahs prayed fervently to Allah in their mosques. "Redeem us from impending calamity," they besought. The dying daylight glowed on the great dome of Abdl-Azim, gleamed on the figures of two women approaching the edifice.

One woman was young, lithe, beautiful, of aristocratic appearance; the other, a squat, attentive dame, obviously a servant. Together they entered the mosque. In the west darkness loomed.

It was the Sultana, wife of Riza Pahlavi, on a holy mission, accompanied by her personal maid. They had driven in the Sultana's own motor car—in itself a tradition-defying heresy—to the tomb of her ancestors, long buried under the dome of Abdl-Azim. Her Majesty's coming was unannounced, so no official welcome awaited her.

They entered on a scene of almost preternatural quietness. At the main portal an aged guard dozed. He did not even stir as the two women walked past him into the scented twilight of the interior. The Queen, closely followed by her companion, made for the inner shrine, where for two thousand years the great kings of the empire have slept a dreamless sleep.

Suddenly, from out of the semi-darkness stepped two priests. They were tall, bearded, formidable, and wore the robes of their order. Blankly, in a kind of terror, they gazed at their unruffled visitors. The encounter was beyond their venerable experience.

THESE WOMEN, THESE INTRUDERS, WERE UNVEILED!

"Madame," stammered one of the priests, "you have committed sacrilege. You have entered the holy of holies with your face bare. No more terrible sin could be committed." He shuddered. "La Ilaha ill' Allah! There is no deity but Allah," the two muezzins moaned, beating their breasts in despair and supplication.

The Sultana merely smiled at this outburst. It was a friendly, almost sympathetic smile. But it offended the priests to a pitch of rage. Muttering something about "impudent females," one of them rushed away to the office of the High Priest.

To that dignitary he stammered out his story. Gathering his robes majestically around him, the High Priest descended the great stairway with his official staff. An example, he felt, must be made of these unveiled women.

(Parenthetically, it is interesting at this point to note the first appearance of unveiled women in Persian streets. Shortly after the outbreak of the World War, wily Russian diplomatists imported a large number of their young countrywomen in the guise of exporting house employees, secretaries to Persian bankers and merchants.

(The natives were startled, also enchanted. They feasted on the unconcealed and luscious beauty of these foreign women. For a time all Teheran was so absorbed in "business," meaning dictating to the imported secretaries, that the harems were dolefully neglected. The lesson later was not lost on Riza Pahlavi . . .)

Confronting the Sultana and her attendant, the High Priest started with amazement. He had never before gazed upon the uncovered features of a Moslem woman. The affront was too much for him.

"How dare you?" he cried angrily. "You have the effrontery to enter the sanctuary of Persia's kings—a hideous insult—you—you—." Words failed him. Furiously he lashed out at the Sultana, striking her in the face, twisting her hair in his hand, belaboring her with his staff of office. But the faithful maid interposed, breaking the priest's grip, hurrying her mistress into the safety of outdoors.

Dazed with stinging pain, half crazed with bewilderment, Her Majesty rushed to the nearest telephone. There she hysterically sobbed out her story to Riza Pahlavi. "Such an indignity," she whimpered. "It's more than flesh and blood can bear."

The Sultan is first of all a man of action. His lips set in grim lines, he ordered his roadster, got in, unattended, and drove off furiously in the direction of the mosque. He made the fifteen miles in exactly fifteen minutes.

His military figure and impressive bearing proclaimed to the priests that the Shah of Snahs was at hand. The whole mosque quivered with anticipatory excitement. This visit was indeed an honor. Melodiously wailing a welcome, the High Priest and his retinue prostrated themselves before the determined-looking ruler. They noticed apprehensively that his forehead was clouded with rage.

Riza Pahlavi turned to his wife, who had joined him. "Which one is the culprit?" he thundered. A tiny, trembling forefinger indicated the High Priest, who crawled abjectly toward the Shah, began kissing the dust from his boots, imploring, "Mercy! Mercy!"

It was no use. With one swift gesture, Riza Pahlavi jerked the cringing priest to his feet, gripped the copious whiskers with a muscular left hand, with the right hand delivered a terrific sock on the jaw. The blow uprooted the priest, sent him spinning down upon the flagging of the courtyard. It was an unprecedented scene.

The Persians rubbed their eyes incredulously. What a situation! And what would happen next? What did happen was the official dismissal of the offending dignitary. He was notified that he must start instantly on the lone pilgrimage to Mecca, there to be purged of his sin.

This may seem like a hard punishment. Yet under the old regime, the offender would have been much more cruelly dealt with. In those days the culprit would have been beheaded and the head suspended from a long pole and exposed to public ignominy for ten days.

But Riza Pahlavi is not only a powerful Liberalist leader; he is also that most unusual of phenomena, a truly liberal ruler. An additional motive behind his expulsion of the High Priest was a natural desire to shun publicity and prevent the spotlight of attention from being turned upon the Sultana. There was no way, however, that he could prevent the story from being repeated, with the result that it has now spread over the whole Orient. This is the first time the dramatic episode has been told in English.

Admirers have likened Shah Riza Pahlavi to his spiritual ancestor, that picturesque and pungent Haroun El-Reschid, whose figure glides so impressively through The Thousand and One Nights. That fantastic caliph made it a practise to disguise himself as a beggar or a pilgrim or a musician and wander about the streets of Bagdad. In this manner he was able to inform himself of the real state of the people, as distinct from the often erroneous reports his ministers gave him.

Like Haroun El-Reschid, the present Shah keeps an ever-watchful eye on his kingdom and its subjects. He is always on the go, traveling here and there, inspiring the citizenry to loyalty and hard work, relieving poverty and repressing the individual tyrannies of officials and overseers.

Generally he keeps his exact whereabouts a profound secret. He has been known to turn up at a bazaar or a mosque attired as a dervish or beggar. The following incident, related to me by a Persian prince, is typical of the Shah's activities:

"There is probably no single personality in all Asia which today commands such admiration as that of the Shah," said my very royal infor-formant. "He has many superb characteristics, valor, intelligence, electric energy, and he is physically perfect.

"Just before I left Persia, the Shah figured in a most comical episode. A high official of the National Assembly was due to arrive at his birthplace. The result was that a large local deputation was on hand to greet him. While the crowd was cheering the dignitary's arrival, a young man dressed a frayed and dingy frock coat edged his way to the welcoming committee's ranks.

"The stranger inadvertently planted his avy foot on the toes of a local resident of some portance. There was a roar of rage. 'Child a camel!' screamed the injured man. 'Watch here you're going. By Allah—!' He waved s walking stick menacingly. The stranger ietly smiled. But the other committeemen by is time were in an uproar. 'Beggar!' they outed. 'Thief!' And prepared to give the ung man the beating of his life.

"Getting a good close-up of the stranger's ce, the man whose toes had been trodden upon derwent a sudden change of heart. 'Stop!' he lled. 'For Heaven's sake, stop! It's His ajesty, the Shah of Shahs.' Instantly the attide of the crowd changed. The trembling offials, heads averted in shame, pressed nearer to e Shah. They muttered broken apologies, resured him of their loyalty.

"A stern smile played fitfully over the welloulded features of Riza Pahlavi. His lips arted, words were uttered, ominous words:

"'I'll hang—!' There was a moment of inse suspense. The silence was physically opressive. Then, 'I said I'll hang this order round the neck of our most judicious and faithul deputy,' the Shah continued, his smile changg from austere to gay. 'This is in evidence my appreciation of his services to the state.' ith which words, the potentate drew a glitterg decoration from his shabby pocket and suspended it about the throat of the dumfounded dignitary."

I have repeated this somewhat frivolous but charming anecdote as an instance of how human and how humorous Riza Pahlavi is, as a man and a monarch. But there are other, graver sides to his nature. Since he ascended the throne he has instituted many much-needed and drastic reforms. Chief among these is his bulldog determination to educate the youth of the country.

The primary school courses, under his supervision, now include reading, writing, the Persian Islamic scriptures, elementary arithmetic, geography and history. The following creed is memorized by all pupils:

The fatherland is more precious than the soul and the body. Soul and body must be sacrificed for the fatherland. The people of the fatherland are all members of one body. The advancement of the country is a sacred duty of all its inhabitants.

But rugged patriotism is not the only thing demanded of his subjects by the Shah. The doctrine continues:

Should any one of my faculties become diseased, I will not burn it, but cure it. Should any fellow-countryman do me harm, I will show patience and teach him to be good. If my tooth aches, I will try to make it better, instead of reviling it.

In sharp contrast to the "good, old" Oriental days, when only spiritual values were honored, the new Shah has instituted courses in physiology and hygiene in his schools. Knowledge of the human anatomy is imparted, and slowly, but surely, a love of cleanliness, and truth, and loyalty to country is being imparted.

Occidentals may find it hard to believe that such reforms are by no means an easy matter. But Persia's outstanding difficulty of finding proper instructors for its youth is being gradually solved. Formerly the country was obliged to depend upon European educational systems solely. Now she is devising her own. More and more, reliance is being placed on the work of capable women teachers. In fact, the latest Shah was given instruction by a woman—something unheard of in ancient times.

What an astounding contrast between the days of Persian Liberalism and those days of unbridled license and revelry on the part of Riza Pahlavi's predecessor, the rotund and carefree Ahmed Mirza. Ahmed, fat, thirty, and far from fair to his impoverished subjects, early had decided that the night life of Teheran wasn't half gay enough for him. He accordingly packed away his crown, borrowed a couple of million from countries friendly to Persia, and departed for Paris and the bright lights.

IN CHIEF'S UNIFORM

Once arrived there, he became so fascinated with the city that he just couldn't pry himself loose. Burning up the boulevards struck pleasure-loving Ahmed as much more important than going through the dutiful gestures of a Shah. He developed an overwhelming fondness for the fair sex. He found, strangely enough, that most French girls had a fondness for wine and jewels. He denied them neither. Said a contemporary account of his prodigious spending:

Ahmed Mirza has embarked on a career calculated to wreck him. Nightly he buys magnums of Moselle for such international beauties as Mrs. Jean Nash, "best-dressed woman in the world;" the exquisite Baroness d'Erlanger, the former Mrs. Peter Cooper-Hewitt; the inseparable Dolly Sisters, Rosie and Jenny, and Pearl White, blonde movie star.

The Shah has been turned loose in Paris. It's going to his head. Round, saffron-cheeked and as naif as a baby, he just can't crowd enough gayety into his routine. Vainly his ministers and relatives telegraph him to return and behave himself. He just keeps on spending. Of course, it's not the fault of the charming ladies mentioned . . .

THE NEW REGIME

Pretty Persian Actress of the Present Period, "Emancipated" Under the New Shah's Anti-Veil Orders.

One of the fat Shah's quaint obsessions in Paris was ballet girls and their fluffy costumes. Their tulle ruffles, he thought, were a great improvement upon the attire of his harem beauties. So when they finally did prevail upon the corpulent playboy to come back to Teheran, he brought with him his own ideas of how to beautify the harem. He summoned the royal dressmakers and commanded them to make his various wives "go Parisian."

Unfortunately, Persian couturiers have only the dimmest conception of a ballet dancer's skirts. They made a valiant effort to turn in a good job, however—and you can see the result in a photograph accompanying this article.

If one were disposed to chronicle Ahmed Mirza's Parisian career—melancholy task!—it would record a long round of hectic, wine-soaked nights and sleep-drugged days. It was indeed something less than a bright inspiration when one of his ministers suggested that the boy, then about twenty, ought to "see something of the world."

So off they packed him to Paris. And there what a wide and costly swathe he cut!

His arrival was celebrated with a parade down the Champs Elysees. Later Ahmed engaged the whole of Ciro's restaurant for a night and threw a gigantic party. Most of the feminine guests—and males were notably missing—were frisky young Americans. At Les Ambassadeurs Edith Kelly Gould taught the clumsy playboy to dance the Cat's Glide. At the Palace smiling Ahmed and 100 invited guests watched Harry Pilcer scamper about the stage like some fantastic faun.

A fleet of motors carried the Shah and his friends up to Sacre Coeur, where, at Nini's celebrated resort, acrobats leaped about, balancing champagne bottles and flaming tapers on their heads. There were refined orgies in the Cabaret des Oubliette Rouge, that underground retreat where once French aristocrats were trapped and slain during the Revolution; confetti battles in the streets . . . .

The "good, old" days of Ahmed have vanished—forever, hopes Riza Pahlavi, his successor. The liberal ideas of the new Shah, while prosaic to the Western mind, are startlingly radical to the Persians. His is an iron will.

The banished High Priest who socked the Sultana and was "paid off in lumps" can testify to that.

SECKATARY HAWKINS FAIR & SQUARE CLUB

"A QUITTER NEVER WINS—— ——A WINNER NEVER QUITS"

IT HAD long been understood that we boys were not to trespass upon the territory of the boys across the river in Pelham, and the Pelham boys were not to come over on our side. Not that we were afraid of them, but just for the sake of peace and quiet on our old river bank. Judge Granberry had told us often that if there was any more fighting between us boys our clubhouse would be torn down and our club disbanded. Naturally, we didn't want that to happen. Our idea was to play fair and and square, and if a fellow does that there isn't any need of fighting.

As I was writing down the minutes of our club meeting today, Perry Stokes came silently into my writing room. Perry is the caretaker of our little old clubhouse down on the river.

"The Pelhams are coming, sir," he said.

I heard the door open and the rough-shodden feet of the Pelham boys entering the clubhouse. I went out through the curtains that hang between my writing room and the front room, which is our meeting room. Briggen, the Pelham leader, stood at the head of his gang, on either side of him his two trusty pals, Ham Gardner and Dave Burns.

"Well, Briggen," I said, in a friendly tone, "you come peaceful, I hope?"

—"Yeah," he said, nodding his head slowly, "we come peaceful. You boys done a lot for us Pelham kids, and we got you to thank. We know you are fair and square. That's why we come again to ask you to help out—"

"Ah! Yes, I rather thought so," I cut in, with a little laugh. "You still think of us when you need help. What's the trouble?"

"Well, you see," began Briggen, slowly, "we fellas took another guy in our gang—a swell guy, Hawkins—don't you ever tell him I didn't say he was a swell guy, or he'd knock my block off—yes, sir! He's one fine fella, and I'm here to tell you he is!"

"No, you didn't come to tell me that," I said, with a grin. "You came to tell me he was the worst boy you ever took into your gang—"

"Sh! Don't talk so loud!" broke in Briggen, glancing nervously around at the windows. "He might be listenin' even this very minute—you never can tell when Questa is near you—"

"Questa!" I exclaimed. "So that's his name, eh? Sounds a bit like Italian—"

"That's what he is, Hawkins! An eye-talian such as there never was before!" broke in Ham Gardner. "An' I always tol' Briggen never to take up wid' an eye-talian feller, because once when I was up in Watertown wid' my pappy, he met an eye-talian man, an' he never—"

"Go ahead, Briggen," I said, shortly. "Tell me what made you come over here to me—"

"We can't stand it no longer!" uttered Briggen in a whisper. "First when he joined our gang, he was smooth and oily and got all my kids on his side. Then he started bossing us—wanted us to do everything he said, meet when he called a meeting and carry out his orders—well, we just wouldn't. Then he went away . . . it was a week later, and he came back with three of his own kind—"

"But why tell me, Briggen?" I asked, with a smile. "You boys are big enough to fight your own fights. You get mixed up with fellows you don't know, and when you find yourselves in a mess, you come over here to me. Now, you know I'd help you, if I could. It's not for myself that I'd worry about—but the other boys in this club expect me to steer clear of trouble. I can't risk their peace and safety for you fellows. You've got to figure out your own problems, from now on."

"You don't know Questa," said Briggen, with a grin.

"No, and I don't want to know Questa!" I retorted quickly. "If he's what you say he is, the less I know of him the better. We boys in this clubhouse have had enough trouble and worry and excitement, and we've had too many mysteries to figure out. The last one was one too many. But now that it's all over, we have peace and quiet again on this old river bank, and we aim to keep it."

"You ain't a-goin' to keep it," he said.

"You're wrong!" I said "We ARE going to keep peace, no matter what it costs. I've made up my mind about that, Briggen. No use for you to talk further, if you're trying to change my mind about that. Perhaps you'd better go, if you Pelhams don't want a fight on your hands. For, believe me, I feel like punching you one in the eye right now—"

"Steady!" said Dave Burns, in his low, cautious voice, as he stepped between Briggen and me. "You're losin' yer head, Seck. Briggen don't mean no harm—he's tellin' you straight—you got it comin' to you, boy—trouble is what I mean!"

For a few moments we stood silent, staring straight at each other, neither one seeming to know what was in the other's mind—

"Well," I said, "why don't you come out with it, then?"

"I was comin'," said Briggen, "but you was too hot-headed to listen—"

"I'm cool-headed now—so say it!"

"All right, then. Questa is a bad actor, Hawkins—sooner or later your clubhouse over here is bound to have a visit from him. Sooner or later you guys are gonna get a call from him—and, believe me, you've got to do what he says—"

"I'm not so sure about that," I put in, hotly. "That Questa boy may be all you say he is, but he's heard enough about our club—it's a fair and square club—we won't go out and hunt up a fight, but if we are forced against a wall and have to defend ourselves, he'll find that we can do that thing very well, too."

"He's not afraid of you," said Briggen, grinning.

"Perhaps not," I returned, "but we shall not attempt to engage him, even so. We are willing to grant that somebody else is bigger and better than we are, as long as he does not interfere with us. And as your Questa boy has not done us any injury, we shall not try to find him. I hope you understand that, Briggen, and now you can go back to your own side of the river, and please, for the love of peace! stay there, won't you?"

"You won't help us, then?" asked Briggen.

"How can I?" I asked, my hands outstretched to him. "We can't promise to help you out in all the fights you fellows get. You got yourself into them. Unless they touch our club, we can't engage in any controversies—"

"Them's big words," said Briggen, and again he grinned. "But maybe I can tell you something that will change your mind. Questa HAS done something that will touch your club—"

"All right!" I exclaimed. "Name it! Tell me what he has done—"

"He's got a new gang—mostly Italian boys—they've come down this way to attack our shacks over there across the river—they think we Pelham boys, because we are poor, will do whatever they tell us—"

"If that's all you've got to tell me," I broke in, impatiently, "you might as well stop and go back to your side of the river. I told you before, you fellow have to fight your own fights. If Questa and his strangers come down and attack your Pelham shacks, it's no affair of yours—you've got to defend your side—"

"Yes, but if they come down riding ponies that belong to your club—then what?" shouted Briggen, his arms above his head.

I turned upon him in one swift movement, and eyed him fiercely.

"Say that again!" I muttered, between my teeth.

"Yeah, sure as you're born—I saw it!" said Briggen, in a hushed voice. "You boys got some ponies lately, didn't ya?"

"Yes, we each got one, from Mr. Sadler, for doing him a favor—"

"Well, and Questa sneaks up to the barn—you keep 'em in Dobel's barn, don't ya?"

"You seem to have been spying very well on us—yes, we do keep our ponies in that barn!"

"Sure! And Questa knows. After you boys go home for the night, Questa and his boys sneak your ponies out the barn and ride 'em, all night—leastaways until they have to get home themselves."

My blood began to boil at this. I could hardly talk. Who was this Questa, who thought so much of himself as to feel it honorable to help himself to other fellows' ponies? I did not question the right of it—it was more or less a question of colossal nerve—a nerve that I should like to challenge. I quickly dismissed the Pelham fellows, and they went their way, promising to come back on the morrow to hear further as to whether I would, or would not, throw the weight of our club into the Pelham crowd, and battle with this mysterious Questa gang.

* * * *

I called Perry Stokes and together we hurried down to the Dobel barn, where our ponies were stabled. Roy Dobel was at work in the barn with a pitchfork.

"Roy," I said, "how are the ponies?"

"Fine," he said, "just as fine as they could be. And am I proud to have them kept in my pop's barn! Say, Hawkins, this club of ours ought to be very proud of these ponies—I just learned today that they were once in a circus, and can do many tricks—"

"I'm not interested in the tricks they can do," I said, roughly, as I shoved my way past him and went on to the stall where my beautiful old bald-faced Winner stood. "How's Winner?"

"He's all right," said Roy. "I just fed him another quart of oats extra. Seemed like he must ha' been spoilt once upon a time—he always looks around for an extra handful when all the others ha' finished—"

"Hello, Winner," I said, as I entered the stall, and the pony turned his head to look my way. "How's-a-boy? Gettin' plenty to eat now?"

The beautiful animal whinnied, and thrust his velvet nose into the crook of my left arm, as I threw my right over his shoulder. What a horse! Little, yes; but what a pet he had become.

"Good old Winner," I whispered into his ear. And as though he understood the love I felt for him, he nodded his head and rubbed his nose in my hand. I reached into my pocket, where I had put a few sugar lumps at luncheon time. As I gave him one of them, I turned to Roy Dobel.

"Roy," I said, "you look after the ponies for all the members in our club, don't you?"

"Sure!" he answered, readily. "It's a great pleasure, Hawkins. I don't want a cent for my services. That just goes to show how much I appreciate being a member of the Fair and Square Club. And, besides, I get a kick out of it. Each one of these ponies is like a friend to me. I go around ten times a night, after my lessons are done, and talk to each one of 'em and see if they are comfortable before I go to bed—"

"Last night," I broke in, "did you go around ten times—"

"No, I only went twice—my mother was ill, she was nervous about me—wanted me to stay in the house—"

"Well, when you went the rounds the second time," I asked, "did you see Winner here in his stall?"

"Oh, didn't you have him?"

"Whadda you mean—didn't I have him?"

"Why, every other pony was in here—each in his stall—except Winner—but I thought you had come and taken him out for a ride—"

"Roy," I broke in, "I was studying for examinations last night—I wasn't out of the house after dark."

"Then somebody else must ha' been riding Winner, sir," said Roy, "because he didn't come back until late at night—"

"Yes," I said, "somebody else was riding him, Roy, and that's the next mystery which this Fair and Square Club of ours is going to have to figure out."

Which we did.

DID YOU GET YOUR SCRAP BOOK?

The second edition of the Seckatary Hawkins Scrap Book is now off the press. Bring 10 cents or send 15 cents to The Constitution office for your copy, in which to paste the daily strips of Our Club's Adventures.

AN APRIL FIRST PASSWORD

"Happy Schooldays" was the solution of last week's password. So many members wrote in that this puzzle is the kind of a puzzle they like best that we have decided to give you another one this week. You can remember these passwords, and try them on your playmates to see how clever they are.

Now, we will be a bit easier this week and let you figure out a password that has to do with April Fool's Day. You know you will have to keep your wits about you on that day, so

W-T-H-O-R-T-P

Just fill in the missing letters and you'll have three little words that will tell you what to do. It's easy to figure out, and it's a good thing to say to yourself not only on April 1, but on the second and third and every other day, for that matter, for safety's sake.

WHAT THE SECKATARY HAWKINS BOYS AND GIRLS ARE DOING

Dear Pen Pals:

Quite a number of our club members have written to me, saying that they would like to be aviators when they grow up. I, too, have always imagined it would be great fun to roar through the air in a great-winged airplane or perhaps go sailing through the clouds in one of those sausage-shaped balloons, called zeppelins. But I'm not sure how I would feel about it, once I was off the ground. You've got to get air-minded first, I suppose. People who had never seen an automobile were timid about taking their first ride in one. But nobody has any fear of automobiles any more, although there are accidents occurring every day. I guess a time will come when everybody will feel as safe in an airship as people now do in automobiles.

* * * *

It seems to me that this subject is one of the most interesting today for boys and girls. How aviation has progressed in the last few years, the different types of flying machines and the passenger service, plus the improvement in the air mail and the time-saving air transportation has made possible—well, I'd just like to have all my pen pals write me what they think about it all. We are living in such a wonderful age that writing letters is made easy because there are so many wonderful things to write about. Then, too, there is a chance of winning a book for your letter.

* * * *

Now let's call the meeting to order and introduce those lucky pen pals who win books this week. These books contain the earlier adventures of our club down on the old river bank. Let us remind you again that even if you won one, you should not stop trying for another, for there are ten volumes of these adventures, and you have a chance of winning the whole set—that is, if you remember that a quitter never wins and a winner never quits. Here's the first one, from a new pen pal in Canada:

Dear Seck:

I will write a letter to try and win a book. I will never forget your slogan, "A quitter never wins and a winner never quits."

I will tell you of a picnic we had—the teacher and the children of our country school, which is 11 in number.

The teacher had told us the day before to bring more lunch than usual. The next day we got ready at about 1:30, and we went about one-half mile and selected a nice place. We gathered some rocks, which we put in a hole in the ground. Then we got some dry sticks and made a fire. Then we put some eggs which we had brought in a pail and cooked them. When they were cooked we let them cool. Then we had lunch.

After lunch we played games for a while. Then we put out the fire and started for home. We were happy but tired little girls who went home that night.

I am a Canadian girl and live in the province of Saskatchewan, Canada. I do not think you get letters from Canadians very often.

We do not get the paper with your stories in, but a friend gave me one page, so I am able to become a member. I am enclosing the stamp and blank.

I remain yours, fair and square.

LUCILLE COTE, 12,
Coriander, Saskatchewan, Canada.

Here's one from a perseverant pen pal in Iowa. He has written many times, and that just proves that it pays to follow our slogan, "A quitter never wins":

Dear Seck:

I have written to you many times before but have not yet won a book of your adventures. But that did not stop me from writing again.

I have seen one of your wonderful books at a boy friend's house, and I think they are very nice.

I was certainly anxious to find out how you Flower of the Sun and Sadler of the Seventeen got away from Fong Shu.

My birthday was the 29th of January and I am now 13 years old.

I read your strip in the paper every day. I like them as well as any books.

I have written in hope of winning one of your famous books.

Yours, fair and square,

VERNON SHAFFER.
811 W. 3d St., Davenport, Iowa.

And now one of our club members has written some poetry. This one is from down in dear old Georgia:

Dear Seck:

I have written one time,
But that was only a few lines.
I have never won a book,
But soon for one I shall look.

I thought until I was blue,
How I could win a book from you;
But I know one thing, I'll never stop trying,
And I won't even start crying

Oh! I do like to read,
So please hear my plea.
Send me only one,
It would be so much fun.

I want a book so bad, I do,
And oh! just let it be from "you."
But I'll have to write fast,
As this line is the last.

Goodbye and Good Luck.

BETTY BROCK,
Route 1, Rockmart, Ga.

A pen pal from New York writes the following communication telling us about her cat, which I am sure must be a very nice pet:

Dear Seck:

I have not won one of your books, but I will be looking forward to seeing my name appear in the winners' column.

This week I am going to write about my pet. It is a cat. It is mostly all black, with the back paws white and a little white on the front paws, which make it look like white mittens.

The thing my cat likes to do best I bet you cannot guess. Well, I will tell you, although you may not believe it. He likes to sleep under the stove with his head between his two paws. I like to touch him when he is asleep because he always makes a funny little noise, which makes us all laugh. Pussy never eats much, but he surely does like fish or salmon. There is one thing funny about our pussy. He never eats anything unless I feed it to him.

Well, I can't write any more, as mother is calling me to put my cat out because he was in all day.

Your Pen Pal,

MILDRED HAWKINS.11,
272 Walnut St., Buffalo, N. Y.

And there being no further business before the club, we will adjourn until next week. I'd like to keep on writing, but we have used up all our space, and this will have to be all for this time. Don't forget, I'll be watching for your letter. And don't be a quitter.

Bye, till next week.

Yours, fair and square,

Today's Prize

SPRING.

Dear Seck:

Gee! spring is almost here,
To bring us gladness, joy and cheer.
It is in the spring when the buds come out.
And scatter their fragrance all about.
The peach tree in its pretty pink gown
Is talking to the sunflower with its bright yellow crown,
And down in the meadow, what is that so sweet?
Why, it's the sparrow with its cheep,
cheep, cheep.
But oh! when winter comes and is so bold,
The trees and flowers are left in the cold.
But soon comes spring to brighten everything,
And then the flowers are quite the thing.

Yours, fair and square,

IRENE LEE, 13,
Tallulah Falls, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I am a little girl 10 years old, and in the high fourth. Gee, it is cold weather. It has been so cold I could not get out doors. I have a dog, cat, 2 squirrels and 3 pigeons. I had better sign off.

Yours, fair and square,

LOUISE NANTZ,
Stockbridge, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I read your adventures every day and enjoy them very much. I think your motto, "Fair and Square," is fine, and I like your colors, "Blue and White."

I am 12 years old and am about 4 feet 9 inches tall. I have blond hair and fair complexion. I am in the 7th grade at school. Our school will be out in three weeks.

Yours, fair and square,

MARGIE LAMB,

Dear Seck:

Have just finished your Sunday page, and enjoyed it very much. I look for your strips daily and also the Sunday page. Have read all the girls and boys letters that wrote to you, and enjoyed them very much.

Speaking of pets I have had several, but they have been dogs mostly. I love dogs and I have one now. He is very cute and I am trying to teach him lots of tricks.

Yours, fair and square,

VIRGINIA MANN, 14,
Roanoke, Ala.

Dear Seck:

I fed my dog. When it had finished eating I put a pair of my 4-year-old brother's short pants on his hind legs, and I tied it above his legs. I put a pair of gloves on him, and tied them behind his ears. I put a pipe in his mouth and a straw of tobacco in it and lighted it. I charged my friends a penny to see my dog circus.

JAMES ROBT. HOLLERAN,

Please ask some of the boys and girls to write me.

WALTER LEE GILBERT,

Dear Seck:

I have gray eyes, 4 feet 10 inches tall, 11 years old, my birthday is June 3, have I a twin? If so tell he or she to write me. I will answer all letters I get.

Yours, fair and square,

FULA MAE CAIN,
Route 2, Hoschton, Ga

Dear Seck:

While plundering through my trunk today I came across my club button, which I have had almost a year. I feel ashamed to keep this emblem of our club and not let my "pen pals" hear from me but once a year. I like most of the boys and girls, am going to school. I am trying hard to improve every moment of my time, that I may be a winner in anything I try to do.

We have organized a 4-H Club in our school, which I hope will be a success. It will be a great help to us girls and boys. I took raising butter beans for my part, hope I will have good luck with them.

Yours, fair and square,

MARTHA BALLARD,
Lamar, Ala.

Dear Seck:

I wish I could be with you down on the old river bank. I'd like to share in some of the fun you all have, I think.

But about these scary adventures, I don't know; there's mighty scary places in the pictures that you show, about Mui Fong's hand, and about the Emperor's sword. Believe that would be more'n I could stand. And now, Dear Seck, if I win a book, I'll hide away in some quiet nook, and through its pages I'll read and look. Seck, I'll thank you with all my heart.

And now this rhyme and I shall part.

Yours, fair and square,

EVA HAWKS, 12,
Route 1, Franklin, Ga.

Dear Seck:

Saturday daddy bought four hundred little baby chicks. They are so cute. The only clubs I belong to are yours and the 4-H Club.

My favorite hobbies are reading and collecting post marks and stamps. I like books for boys or girls, either one, especially ones that are full of adventures and mysteries.

My two cousins live next to me, and enjoy reading as much as I do. We take The Constitution and I read Seckatary Hawkins in the daily and Sunday papers.

I am 10 years old, and in the fifth grade. My birthday is July 28. I have fair complexion, blue eyes and black hair.

Yours, fair and square,

MILDRED PHARR,
R. F. D. 3, Lawrenceville, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I am 10 years old and in the fifth grade. The lowest I have ever made was 90½. I think your motto is just fine. I think that to be fair and square to every one is just fine. I have one little brother who is four years old and two sisters. The youngest is three and the other eight years old. I have been wishing to be a member of your club. I would like to be with you boys on the old river bank. I would have liked to have been with you boys when the Spider Boy showed you all the way into the Cave of Wonders.

Yours, fair and square,

JAMES AMBROUS CHAPMAN,
Route 1, Jefferson, Ga.

Dear Seck:

Say! which is your favorite season? Mine is summer, the time of sunburn and bug bits, and not only that, but the time for growing of grain, bathing, beautiful moon light nights and mid-summer feats, and flowers, too. I like a lot of flowers and they make the home more beautiful in summer.

Last summer I went camping. (Just the 4-H Club girls), at Spring Lake, and boy, I mean I had a good time. What time we wasn't bathing we were eating, (ha! ha!). And I am looking forward to go next or this summer.

I am like the girl who won one of your books, when I get grown I am going out west and be a cow girl, but I will still keep up with your interesting part in the paper.

Just a fair and square member.

MATTIE DEAN,
Enigma, Ga.

Dear Seck:

This is my first letter to write,
And if you don't think it all right
Just say so, and I will write again,
For the next time I will use a pen.

I have light hair, and eyes of blue.
My hobby is books, and thinking of you.
I visit the country with people I know,
And play and have a good time where'er I go.

In Places where I am likely to find
Is the paper, with you in mind.
I spend a few minutes of my time
Thinking of the good deeds you did in your time.

While I am thinking of you and your motto,
I wish I could visit your club in our auto.
Wishing you with all my luck and cheer,
Hoping you have a swell leap year.

Yours, fair and square,

VASSAR EDWARDS, 10,
73 Lakewood Ter., Atlanta, Ga.

I have been very interesting in your showings. I have a dog that has black spots and is white.

We have just put up some swings at school, and set out some flowers on the school campus. I don't think our school is going to run but three more weeks.

I would like for some of my pen pals to write me, and tell me all about their things at school.

Yours, fair and square,

MARY FRANCIS MATHIS, 10,
Box 27, Stockton, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I am using the topic you suggested, which is—

"SPRING."

Spring is here! Who isn't already making plans for excursions to take place in the coming days? Nearly everyone is.

Spring is when winter has completely gone and leaves no trace of her cold, wintry winds or mean cold days of the past season.

Everyone is happy at this time of the year. Why shouldn't they? To see the trees budding after a long winter's sleep, and to see early shrubs and jonquils blooming and other flowers just coming up, should make everyone feel as if they are a new person or perhaps have just waked up after a long sleep and see how Mother Nature has almost changed the familiar scenes into entirely different surroundings.

Yours, fair and square,

MARTHA MacAULAY, 14,
699 Moreland Ave., S. E., Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Seck:

What is your favorite season. Mine is spring, for in spring all the pretty flowers bloom. I sure do love flowers. I like to work in them, too.

I am a 4-H Club girl and have a flower garden. It is up and looks pretty. I have some flowers blooming. I have planted some shrubbery and carpet grass in my yard.

Seck, next week is examination week for us at school. I sure do dread it for I want to make good. I am afraid I am not, for it is a hard grade. I am in the 7th grade. I like to go to school.

Tell all members to write to me. I promise to answer all letters.

A fair and square member.

CLARICE SMITH,
Enigma, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I am a blue-eyed boy nine years old, I like horses and dogs. I have a pet horse named "Ruby Taylor," she is brown and white and I like her very much.

I read Seckatary Hawkins every day and enjoy it very much.

Yours, fair and square,

BILLY SMITH,
2721 Glenwood Ave., S. E., Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I have heard lots of you and wish you would put my name down because I wish to be a club member of Seckatary Hawkin's. We have five little dogs. I sure wish you could see them. They are fox terriers. Do you want to see them? I love to read of you.

Lots of love,

MARY FOSTER WILLIAMS,
R. F. D. 2, Covington, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I, too, belong to a club which is called the O. C. T. I am vice president, and hope we can have a club like yours. I read your daily adventures and also your stories and letters in the Sunday magazine and I sure enjoy them for you are always so "fair and square."

Yours, fair and square,

ANNIE SHERMAN, 13,
Route 1, Kingston, Ga.

Dear Seck:

This is the second time I have cast my hook. Hope this one will win a book.

I am glad you rescued Sadler. Hope you and Jackerson will meet again soon. What has happened to Mu Fong and the Spider?

Yours, fair and square,

FRED SCOTT JR.,

Hints For Flower and Vegetable Gardeners

Care of the Shade Trees

BY W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

EACH time we stop to think about shade trees we cannot help but bring to mind the very interesting Japanese folk story concerning red and green maples. There grew in Japan a tree of marvelous beauty having red leaves. A poet pasesd and wrote so ecstatically of the tree that it never changed color again; it knows that the poet will not be there to admire it. All green leaved sorts descended from that tree; the red sorts are constantly arraying themselves in the hope that a passing poet will do them justice in the poems of the future.

Whether or not this story is true, whether or not the other stories that we hear of a great many shade trees are true, we do know that almost every home site is selected largely because of fine old trees that are growing there. Except for the lawn itself there is probably no one part of the home planting that arouses more admiration and comment from the passer-by than the beautiful trees there. In spite of this fact there is probably less known about the care, fertilization, and watering of shade trees than of any other one plant used about the home. It is very fortunate that they are more or less trouble-free, for if this were not true a great many of our fine century-old trees would be dead and gone.

Trees are somewhat at a disadvantage in that they are unable to show to the observer that there is any trouble until it is almost too late. A good concrete example of this was shown during the summer of 1926. We all remember the drought that occurred during the summer of 1925 that so devitalized these trees that they were unable to stand the following summer, which was not severe. At the same time they were able to live through the fall, winter and spring of 1925-26.

For two reasons it is then necessary for us to occasionally observe our shade trees with a great deal of care and attention. First, because they belong to a proud family and will not show their troubles until forced to do so. Second, because of the fact that it is almost impossible to replace shade trees once they have died. Very few of us can remember the planting of the very fine, magnificant shade trees which we have in and around Atlanta.

In considering the care of shade trees it is well to bear in mind the conditions under which shade trees grow naturally in our forests and woods. There they live almost undisturbed; nature almost never cultivates the roots of her shade trees. She does prepare a good, rich mulch on top of the soil, which not only seasons the trees constantly, but also holds moisture for their benefit. Except in unusual cases she allows very little other growth to be fighting with the trees for the food that is in the soil.

Such is not the case with us. We want our shade trees without a mulch of leaves around them. We also want grass to grow under them and nearby, and in a great many cases we also want shrubs, flowers and hedges to grow either under the trees or very close to them. This means that the tree must wage a constant war against these flowers in order to have sufficient food and water for its natural, steady growth.

Since we have takenfrom the shade trees their usual natural method of feeding and drinking, it is only right that we should care for them so that they may live.

Fertilization of Shade Trees.

There are several methods of feeding trees. One of the best ways is to dig a trench under the extremities fo the branch spread. This is not to be recommended, however, for it will destroy a great many of the fine, feeding roots. Another method is to distribute the fertilizer on the top of the soil in the hope that it will gradually feed the tree. This is not so good, because the grass there will probably use most of the plant food before the tree is able to get it. Also, a great many of the feeding roots of the tree will be attracted to the surface of the soil, which is not good for it.

Probably the best method of feeding trees is by placing the fertilizer in small, crow-bar holes, just beyond the branch spread of the tree and completely surrounding the center of the tree, holes should be made by the use of a crowbar, about 18 inches deep. These holes should be from two to three feet apart. A second circle of holes should be bored midway between the outer circle and the trunk, but not nearer than six feet to the trunk. These holes should then be filled with fertilizer up to within three or four inches of the surface of the soil and then the soil replaced.

Many gardeners recommend stable manure for trees. It makes a good humus and greatly improves the physical and mechanical condition of any soil, but it does not feed the trees properly, particularly if it is broadcast on the surface. Liquified barnyard or cow manure is excellent for newly planted or transplanted stock.

When shade trees have been properly fed, it is not necessary to feed them every year unless exceptional conditions prevail. Every two to three years after the first application should be often enough for refeeding to keep the trees healthy and vigorous. A casual observation of the color of the leaves will show when trees need feeding again. Undernourishing is generally shown by yellowish or brown, undersized leaves, thinness of foliage, and occasional dying back of the tips of the branches.

Properly fed trees will show almost immediately, the effect of these feedings. The foliage will be a deeper green and the size and volume of the foliage will be apparent. The development of healthy, vigorous trees tends to check insect borers, and there is less likelihood of limbs breaking during storms.

There are a number of commercial, complete plant foods that are recommended for the use of shade trees. Care should be taken in the selection of one of these, since a very slow acting fertilizer will give best result for this particular purpose. It would be almost impossible to make a mistake in using too much bone meal for fertilizing shade trees. For best results we believe that raw bone meal is much to be preferred over the common, steamed bone meal. It might be well to mix a small amount of commercial fertilizer with this bone meal when it is applied.

During hot, dry summers the ground around trees, particularly immediately under the branch spread, should be soaked with water every two weeks. The superficial sprinkling commonly given to lawns does not benefit the trees, as this moisture is generally absorbed by the grass roots, and seldom penetrates deep enough to give the tree any beneficial results. Where trees are obviously lacking water, some more drastic method must be followed than the ordinary sprinkling. A good method is to bore a number of holes with an auger or crowbar, exactly in the fashion recommended for fertilization. The garden hose, or water from a bucket, may then be used in these holes until the ground is thoroughly puddled. These holes also serve to aerate the soil, a form of cultivation that is very beneficial. Trees that have suffered from lack of water, quickly and quite noticeably pick up after these puddlings.

Remember that this puddling should be done only in cases of emergencies. That is, this should be done only during periods of very prolonged drought, or in the case of the trees transplanted during one winter which should be watered every two to four weeks during the following summer.

It is a comparatively easy matter to keep trees in a healthy condition by systematic feeding and watering. It is certainly very much easier and very much simpler than waiting until the trees are almost dead and then taking very drastic measures. Very often, in these cases, it is necessary to call a tree surgeon for his advice and help. In case the tree is not lost, it has certainly been a very great expense.

Spraying.

We are fortunate that very few insects or diseases attack the common varieties of shade trees that are used in our section around Atlanta. In case you are troubled with some insect or disease, the best thing to do is to ask some expert in your town.

The filling of cavities that sometimes occur in shade trees is such a scientific, difficult job that the amateur should not attempt to repair this damage. The best thing to do is to get the very best tree surgeon available for this kind of work.

Grading and Filling.

It sometimes becomes necesasry to either grade from the tree or fill around the tree. It is very important that this grading or filling be done without injuring the old, fine shade trees that are there. If roots are likely to be killed by the sun, the loss of these roots may cause the death of the tree. A heavy fill of one or more feet will almost invariably kill the tree unless proper methods are employed.

In case it becomes necessary to make a fill about a tree, the followihg method is generally considered best. From six inches to one foot of coarse gravel should be placed on top of the ground, from two to three feet beyond the branch spread up to the trunk of the tree. A well should be built around the tree trunk itself. Tile drainage should be connected with the coarse gravel out to an opening at a lower level.

Culbertson on Contract

THE TRIPLE VALUATION OF A HAND.
LESSON 15.

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

This is the fifteenth of a series of articles in response to requests from numerous readers designed to explain the elementary principles of contract bridge. One of these will appear each week. In them Mr. Culbertson will write especially for the benefit of those who have never played contract and who may even be unfamiliar with the methods of playing it. The articles will cover the game from its basic elements to the higher phases of contract bridge. The series in its entirety will comprise a complete course of instruction in "How to Play Contract."

THE contract player cannot count on a fixed and altogether reliable trick-taking power in the cards he holds, even for one deal. The values fluctuate according to whether he is making a declaration for the final contract, or whether he is responding in support of his partner's bid, or whether he is viewing his hand as to its power of defense against the opponents' declaration.

First of all, of course, when a player picks up his 13 cards and sorts them, he considers their trick-taking power with a view to making some kind of opening bid. The first requirement is a minimum honor strength of 2 1-2 honor-tricks. Obviously, however, if he expects to take only 2 1-2 tricks—which is to say, he may take only 2 tricks or he may take 3 tricks, dependings on the distribution of the cards in his adversaries' hands—he cannot make one-odd (7 tricks in all) which is the number contracted for in an opening bid of one. However, any hand which contains 2 1-2 honor-tricks almost certainly contains 1 1-2 more tricks that will be taken with long cards—that is, the cards remaining of long suits after the top honors have been played, and which then may take tricks because other players cannot follow suit. A simple example of this occurs when the hearts, let us say, are divided among the four players thus: South A K Q 2, West J 9 3, North 7 5 4, East 10 8 6. South has four hearts, or one more than any other player, as the cards happen to be distributed here. If South leads the ace, king and queen, he will drawand win in 3 tricks all the hearts but the deuce, which he holds himself; he may now lead the deuce which, since no one can follow suit, and assuming that there are no outstanding trumps to ruff the trick, will win a fourth trick in hearts. The deuce is worth, in the example given, 1 trick.

However, a long card may not always win a trick. Generally speaking, it has about one chance in two, so each card above three held in any one suit may be counted as worth 1-2 playing-trick. In the trump suit, naturally, a long card is certainly worth more—for it cannot be ruffed by the opponents. Cards above three in the trump suit are always counted as worth 1 playing-trick each in the declarer's hand.

When making an opening bid, therefore, the player counts his honor-tricks, his long suit tricks in trumps (1 trick for each card over three), and his long suit tricks in side suits (1-2 trick for each card over three). Suppose he holds:

Spades	A Q 7 4
Hearts	9 8 6 3
Diamonds	A 5 2
Clubs	10 6

This hand contains 2 1-2 honor-tricks (1 1-2 honor-tricks for the A Q of spades and 1 honor-trick for the diamond ace). Ordinarily, for making an opening bid of one in a suit, it is unnecessary to count more than the honor-tricks, for 2 1-2 honor-tricks will practically always win 4 tricks all together (with accompanying cards), and partner can be counted on usually for 3 supporting tricks, making the required 7 in all. The hand, when counted, proves this, for it shows: 2 1-2 honor-tricks, 1 extra trump trick for the fourth spade, and 1-2 extra trick for the fourth heart—4 playing-tricks in all. This is the first valuation of the hand. You can make an opening bid of one spade, since your spade suit is biddable, (four cards headed by 1 1-2 honor-tricks). Suppose your partner responds with two hearts. You now make your second valuation of your hand with a view to supporting hearts.

The responding hand counts honor-tricks, which are always the same in value, and long suit tricks in all four suits, giving the long suit cards all the same value of 1-2 trick for each card over three in any one suit. The long trump cards in the responding hand are given the value of only 1-2 trick (instead of 1 trick as in the declarer's hand), because short suit or ruffing tricks are also counted in the responding hand—trumps have a double use, that is, and must not be overvalued. The same hand is then worth: 2 1-2 honor-tricks, 1-2 trick each for the fourth spade and the fourth heart, and 1 ruffing trick for the doubleton in clubs (a doubleton is worth 1 trick when the responding hand holds four or more trumps)—making 4 1-2 playing-tricks in support of partner's bid suit (hearts).

Suppose that an adversary bids three diamonds. You now value your hand in a third way—defensively against diamonds as trumps. You find 2 1-2 honor-tricks as before, which for safety's sake you count as only 2 tricks. That is all, for you cannot count long suit tricks against an adverse trump as your long cards will probably be ruffed by the opponents. Your club doubleton does not give you any expectation of ruffing in clubs, but if you had only one club (a singleton) and an extra small diamond, you might have some hope of ruffing a club trick, and you could perhaps add 1 trick for the fourth diamond. In the defending position you count only honor-tricks and sure trump tricks in valuing your hand.

Consider the following hand, and, for practice, value it (a) as the declarer making a heart bid; (b) as the responding hand supporting partner's club bid; and (c) defensively against the opponents' spade bid.

Spades	6
Hearts	A K 7 5 4
Diamonds	A 4 2
Clubs	K J 7 5

You should get totals of 6 1-2, 7 1-2 and 4 tricks, respectively.

TODAY'S POINTER.

In estimating the trick-taking value of a hand, your cards must be valued three ways during the bidding:

(1) At own bid count honor-tricks, long suit tricks in both trump and side suits, but not the short suits.

(2) In support of partner's bid, count honor-tricks, long suit tricks and short suit (ruffing) tricks.

(3) Against opponents' trump bids, count honor and trump tricks, but not low cards in side suits. Exceptionally a singleton (only one of a suit) or a void (the absence of a suit) may be counted.

Over the Garden Wall

BY LADYE GAYE

DIARY OF A DIRT DIGGER:

MONDAY NIGHT:

A REDBIRD sang to me this morning from the top-most bough of the old crabapple tree. How thrilled he was about something! Maybe it was the coming of spring—the fine crop of bugs—the new home site. Anyway, he kept on telling me about it over and over with his tweet-tweet-tweet-twirr! With the exception of one or two rascals in feathers, the birds are the gardener's truest friends. It is said if the birds were destroyed, this country would be laid waste by a plague of insects within a year. After that swarm of grasshoppers last summer, it's not hard to believe that statement. Let's have more and better birds, say I.

TUESDAY:

It was upon the very good advice of Mrs. J. M. Royall—the one who grows delphiniums that look like the pictures—that this dirt-digger first began using sifted coal ashes in the garden. Some fine Wrexham hybrid delphinium plants had just been purchased—in spite of better judgment and bitter experience and the determination was strong to make the onery things do right one time. Then it was, Mrs. Royall advocated the use of sifted coal ashes about the roots of the plants, the lighten and keep porous the soil. And it made a difference—right then—in the feel of the dirt. Folks who are struggling with a sticky, clay soil, (and who isn't), would do well to sift their ashes, from furnace or grate, and try working a little soil-lightening magic for themselves. It really helps a lot, and then it's so inexpensive, which makes it doubly interesting right now.

First, put the ashes in a tub; then wet them down slightly, and sift. For this operation use a round hand-sieve.

THURSDAY:

Here is a whole lot of information about planning a garden, as Andy would say 'in a couple of nutshells"; 'The garden as a whole, with its arrangement of beds, paths, axial lines, and terminal or central features, must have unity of composition and pleasing proportions in plan, but to realize fully the idea in the designer's mind, these elements, together with thoughts of emphasis, balance, symmetry, and the like, must be carried into elevation. In other words, we must not, in making our planting plans, merely divide up the area allotted into more or less uniformly sized spaces and fill these in a casual way with various flowering things. We must, to make our gardens express anything more than the mere commonplace, consider each section or bed, or even a part thereof, as a distinct picture, homogeneous with the whole, but having its own individuality and, consequently, its own appeal.

Just as each room in the house is a part of the whole and yet is a distinct entity, so is each of our garden pictures. Not only should this careful planning for pictorial effect take into consideration the particular flower bed area, but also the background against which the floral display appears, and the foreground across which it is to be viewed."

Now, that's such downright useful information about the business of landscaping, or garden designing, it's worth reading again. And here's some more along the same line.

'We should work out the composition of our gardens in much the same manner as we furnish a room. In that case, there is usually some dominant feature, such as a fireplace or a group of windows around which the furnishings of the room are placed. Likewise, in garden planning we should select as our dominant feature that perennial, shrub, or tree which is at its highest point of maturity at the season we are planning for and group about it other plants which will support and accentuate our keynote. This idea of a dominant note may be followed on throughout the season, for at all times there is some one of the perennials serving as a keynote around which we may build our garden pictures. That important question of color, too, becomes more easily understood when we employ a dominant plant as the fingerpost to what we may use successfully.

Knowing Your Stars

BY EVANGELINE ADAMS

The World's Most Famous Astrologer.

WAS VENUS IN CANCER WHEN YOU WERE BORN?

VENUS, as I have told you before, rules our affections and our emotional capacities. The particular sign of the Zodiac in which Venus was located at the time of your birth will have much to do with determining whether or not you are very highly emotional; whether or not you are affectionate or cold and, in fact, a great many other things involving your sentiments, emotions and affections. In one sense, Venus governs our private lives, for its position in our horoscope indicates what and how we "feel" rather than how we act..

Some people, you may have observed, are extremely affectionate and simply cannot conceal their feelings. Others may be, secretly, almost as affectionate, yet remain outwardly cold and impassive. Any competent astrologer can tell from any person's horoscope at a glance just what kind of an emotional nature that person possesses.

How? First of all, by noting what sign Venus was in at the time of birth; second, the "aspects" formed between Venus and the other planets, and third, by the "house" in which Venus is located. In these articles, I cannot go into the matter of "aspects" nor "houses" because these vary with each individual, but I can and will tell you in which sign Venus was located at the time of your birth, and what significance attaches to this sign.

If you will consult the accompanying astronomical table, you can readily ascertain whether or not Venus was in Cancer when you were born. If it was, then you will be particularly interested in what I'm going to write about today. It should be remembered that what I am telling you applies solely to the zodiacal position of Venus and the qualities imparted by the position of Venus in Cancer. These characteristics will be somewhat modified by the various "aspects" and the "house position" of Venus in your own individual horoscope. In a general way, however, all people born when Venus was in Cancer have certain definite characteristics in common.

Cancer is an extremely sensitive sign, with the result that those who were born when Venus was in Cancer are sensitive in matters of love and affection. They are inclined to be fastidious both as to the manner and the object of their love. If your husband or wife has Venus in this sign, my advice to you is to be careful and preserve the niceties of romance.

People with Venus in Cancer usually like to "mother" some person, animal or object. If you are an unmarried woman, be sure that the man you select as a husband is one who will appreciate a home and who wants children, otherwise you'll very probably suffer a great deal of unhappiness, for you have the natural urge to want children. You'll also take a great deal of pride in your home and you'll want your husband to enjoy it, too. The same might be said of you young unmarried men, for you, too, will want a comfortable home and children, and if you happen to select as a wife, a woman who is essentially a club-woman, and who has time for neither children nor home, you're not likely to be happy.

Men with Venus in Cancer love to "mess around" in the kitchen and are frequently better cooks than their wives.

You've probably known women who seemed to be born cooks. They can take a pinch of this and a handful of that, mix the various ingredients together and the result is deliciousness itself. If you were to inquire for the recipe, the chances are that the cook could name the ingredients but she couldn't tell how much of each to use. If you investigate, you'll probably find the cook has Venus in Cancer.

Wives with Venus in this position will lavish much loving care and attention upon their dining rooms and they'll spend a great deal of money for linens, glassware and china. They have a strong artistic sense which usually finds expression in some form of home decoration.

Cancer is a passive sign and Venus therein makes for extreme emotionalism, yet the affections are receptive rather than aggressive. It is hard for a person with this position to resist the advances of another. There is little disposition to seek companionship or love, but, when these are offered, they are gladly accepted. There is often deep sentimentality and the person is apt to take his affairs too seriously. In reality, wounds heal quickly. It is very unfortunate for any one in this position to be deprived of free normal expression of his or her tendencies; in such cases the health may suffer.

If you have Venus in Cancer your emotional nature makes you very dependent upon sympathy and affection, and you are easily influenced by those you love. Cultivate will-power, and the ability to say "no"; otherwise your desire to please may lead you into compromising situations from which you may find it difficult to extricate yourself. You probably love to travel, yet you are always anxious to get back home and glad when you do.

The desire for comfort in life and general good fortune in minor matters is to be expected in people with Venus in Cancer. In art and music, and in literature also, the effect is likely to be very intense. The feelings are very quiet and deep-seated, permeating the whole atmosphere. The same may be said of the emotions and affections, for they, too, are likely to be very intense and deep-seated, although outwardly quiet.

Men with Venus in this position are less likely to be unfaithful to their wives than are most other men. The reason for this does not lie in the possession of any extraordinary virtue, but merely because they are careful and "fussy" about where they play. So if you have a husband with Venus in this position, I can recommend him to you. But remember that he is likely to be sensitive.

Wives, too, with Venus in Cancer are sensitive, for it is in the nature of a woman to be more sensitive than a man. Therefore, if you are her husband, don't wound her feelings. She's deeply sentimental, even though you think she doesn't show it always, and because of this she's likely to remember wounds to her affections and feelings.

You women with Venus in Cancer probably have been having plenty of difficulties during the past two years. You've been going through the most disillusioning and dangerous period you've probably ever encountered or will again encounter. Your feelings may have been more easily hurt and perhaps you haven't been getting the little attentions you're accustomed to. Well, here's a bit of encouragement. You've been under a combination of bad astrological influences that could hardly pass unnoticed. And I suspect you men with Venus in this position have had your troubles of the heart, too. (I'm talking about emotional troubles now and not physical disease.)

But I said I was going to give you some encouragement and here it is: Saturn, which has been one of the chief offenders against your affections and feelings, moved out of the sign Capricorn on February 24. While in Capricorn, it was in extremely unfavorable position for you. I'm sure the worst ff your trouble has passed.

Next week, we'll talk about those of you who have Venus in Leo. You can ascertain from the astronomical table accompanying the article, whether or not you are included!

WHEN VENUS WAS IN CANCER.

The following table will tell you whether or not Venus was in the sign Cancer at the time of your birth. Run your eye down the left-hand column until you come to the year of your birth. On the same line with the year will be found the dates covering the period during that particular year when Venus was in Cancer. If the date of your birth is not included in the periods covered in this table, then Venus was not in Cancer but was in one of the other of the 12 signs.

How Human Peacocks on Puppet Thrones Help Great Britain Hold a Vast Country

A Story of Gilded Playboys of the Orient, Proud and Rich, but Shorn of Powers

By John A. Menaugh

MYSTERIOUS INDIA—strange land of zenanas, of spices and magic, of snake-charmers, fakirs, and lordly elephants. It is just as mysterious today as it was centuries ago when the Scythians and the Parthians swept down through it from the north, just as mysterious as it was in the days of Robert Clive and Warren Hastings, just as mysterious as it was when Rudyard Kipling was writing his gripping tales about it forty years ago.

India ever will be the land of mystery, for it is a country in which the planting of western culture never takes root. India is a land of striking contrasts. On the one hand are the teeming millions of Hindus and Mohammedans, for whose independence Mahatma Gandhi is spinning a war of nonresistance on his primitive spinning wheel. On the other hand are the fabulously wealthy princes of the native states, whose palaces are the wonder of architecture and whose jewels are the envy of the richest millionaires.

Mixed up with this contrast of the poorest of the poor of India and the wealthiest of the country's rich princes is the caste system, with the lowliest untouchable at the bottom and the proud Brahmin at the top.

Hinduism, the principal religion of India, is a religion with a million gods. Mohammedanism is the creed of the Islamic prophet, which through the centuries has found fertile soil in that land which intrigues imagination. Between these two are a thousand creeds and cults, so interwoven that even the most scholarly of the native priests cannot untangle them.

The princes of India are the descendants of ancient royal families of the various native states, who for political reasons, and partly to satisfy the oriental taste for pomp and glory, have been permitted to occupy puppet thrones in the great capitals of the land. Great Britain learned early in its experience with India that it could best govern the land through permitting native rulers to keep their thrones, though to a man these princes have been shorn of virtually all of their power.

Still Britain is wise enough to pretend, at least, to listen to these princes, and when the recent round-table conference on India's problems was held in London a whole flock of bejeweled and princely puppets sat in at the pourparlers. It is partly through the native rulers that the British are able to retain a governmental grip on the vast land of India. The princes do not look with favor on complete independence for the country.

There are scores of native rulers in India of which the western world hears but little. It is only when one of them actually does something outstanding or gets himself into trouble that he attains fame or notoriety in American newspapers.

Consider the case of Rejishwar Sawai Sir Thakoji Rao Holkar, Bahadur, G. C. S. I., former maharajah of Indore. No one outside of India ever heard much about him until he became involved in the murder of a wealthy merchant of Bombay and the kidnaping of a dancing girl, Mumtaz Begum. He cleared himself of the charges, but not until after he had relinquished his gadi, or throne, in 1926 to Maharajadhiraja Raj Rajishwar Sawai Yeshwant Rao Holkar, Bahadur. The former maharajah married Nancy Miller, a Seattle girl, in 1928, although he already had two wives. Nancy adopted the religion of her husband and now is known in India as Maharanee Sharmishtha Bai Saheba.

Perhaps the greatest of the native rulers of India, if the number of his subjects and his enormous wealth in palaces and jewelry count for anything, is Sir Mir Usman Ali Khan, G. C. S. I., G. B. E., the nizam of Hyderabad, whom the British permit to rule over the greatest Mohammedan state in India, with a population of more than 12,000,000.

His two sons recently married the daughter and the niece of the deposed Ottoman caliph, Abdul Medjid. The nizam is entitled to a salute of 21 guns, which is the greatest number of detonations allowed any of the Indian sub-kings of King George.

Another of the better known princes is the gaikwar of Baroda, whose full name and title is Farzand-i-Khas-i-Daulat-i-Inglish-i-a Maharajah Sir Sayaji Rao Gaikwar, Sena Khas Khel Shamsher, Bahadur, G. C. S. I., G. C. I. E. Baroda is a wealthy state, and the gaikwar is said to have several fortunes in jewels locked away in his strong boxes. The artillery never stops short of 21 guns for the gaikwar.

Among other 21-gun princes are Sir Hari Singh, Bahadur, the maharajah of Jammu and Kashmir; Sir Sri Krishnaraja Wodiyar, Bahadur, the maharajah of Mysore; and the maharajah of Gwailor. They all rule, in a restricted manner, over populous native states. Sir Hari Singh will be remembered by newspaper readers as the mysterious "Mr. A." of a celebrated European blackmail case.

In the 19-gun class of princes fall Sir Muhammad Hamidullah Khan, Bahadur, G. C. I. E., G. C. S. I., C. V. O., the nawab of Bhopal; the maharajah of Indore; the maharajah of Kolhapur; and the maharajah of Patiola. Entitled to 17 guns under the rule of the British king business is the maharajah of Rewa. The mir of Khaipur, the maharajah of Kapurthala, the maharajah of Jind, the maharajah of Nabha, and the nawab of Rampur are all 15-gun princes, while the 13-gun class takes in a great number of smaller figureheads, including His Highness Maharajah Manikya Sir Bikram Kishor Deb Barman, Bahadur, of the Bengal states of Cooch Behar and Tripura.

The boy rajah of Pudukkottai still is almost too young to get much of a thrill out of an artillery salute. The jam of Las Bela and the mir of Kalat may or may not be entitled to royal salutes, information about those two obscure kinglets being vague on the question, as it also is regarding the number of guns given Captain His Highness Nawab Sir Sadiq Muhhamad Khan, Abbasi, Bahadur, K. C. S. I. K. C. V. O., the nawab of Bahawalpur.

Salute or no salute, every one of these native princes has one or more fine palaces. Many are immensely wealthy. Nearly all of them maintain great herds of elephants of state, upon which they and their satellites ride on important occasions.

Quite a few of the princes have been educated in England, either at Oxford or Cambridge, and many have carried back to India an apparently sincere liking for European ways. Many have added an occidental polish to what the west considers an oriental oiliness. Britain appoints the princes to high rank in its army. There are native rulers who are colonels, others who are lieutenant colonels, and among the younger princes the ranks of major and captain are quite common. Britain also heaps honors and decorations on them, as is revealed by the strings of initials trailing behind their names like comets' tails. This is all a part of the wise policy of 10 Downing street.

A number of the native rulers are true sportsmen at heart. They enjoy hunting the tiger from the back of an elephant; they like to stalk the sambur deer and the black panther or shoot the elusive pheasant over the backs of their huntings dogs. Polo is a favorite sport among many, who maintain valuable strings of ponies and test their skill and gameness against the British army officers stationed in India.

A Poor Loser

BY OWEN C. HOLLERAN, CAPTAIN R. A. F.

I FIRST met him back in 1908 or maybe 1909. We went to the same school down in Savannah, where my father was a fairly well-to-do doctor, and his was the local buyer for a firm of importers at Hamburg. His name was Waldemar von Rheinecker, but everyone called him Porky, because one of the kids said that his hair stood on end like the quills on a porcupine we had seen in a circus the year he first came to our school. He was the strongest boy in our class, and if it hadn't been for his bristle of almost colorless hair with the pinky scalp showing through it he would have been the best looking, as well.

He was the poorest loser I ever saw, and like most of that breed, he had a streak of active cruelty in his make-up that sometimes showed up in bullying little kids, and on a couple of occasions caused both of us to be sent up to the head of the school for fighting. We seemed to always be on opposite sides, and as we were pretty evenly matched our personal contests became rather bitter at times. He was the catcher on one of our sandlot ball teams, and I was pitcher on another. I once took half of his team to keep him from using his bat on me when I struck him out with two on and two down. He was a better swimmer than I, and once re pulled me out of the surf at Tybee after I thought I was a goner. He boasted of that so much afterward that there were times that I wished he had let me drown.

Of course, all of us kids knew that nothing was too dirty for Porky to do if he was losing. He simply had no sense of sportsmanship at all. We put that down to his being a foreigner, so on the whole we were friendly to him. Largely, I think, because we all knew that he had more than his share of courage and recklessness.

When he went away to Yale and I went to Harvard, we wrote to each other occasionally and even managed to get together two or three times a year. We generally ended our visits with a big argument, that once or twice ended in a fight, over the comparative merits of the American and German form of government. We both graduated in June, 1914, and he went back to Germany to take post-grad work at some German university, while I went to London for a year of medical work. Then the war came on and I forgot all about Porky. All of my friends were going into the army, and I got so worked up that I wangled my way into the Devons as a trooper.

During the next 18 months I saw quite a bit of rough and tumble fighting over parts of three continents, ending up with that first expedition into Serbia, where I was loaned to the Dublin fusiliers, who had lost most of their subaltern officers in Gallipoli. It was a hard campaign, and during the retreat to Saloniki I lost part of a foot and ended my career as a foot slogger. That hit me pretty hard, for I had only been given my commission a few weeks before, and here I was knocked out almost before the ink was dry on it.

When I came out of hospital in England, in November, 1916, I managed to wangle a chance to learn to fly. After doing a year of being instructed and of instructing others, I was ordered out to join 56 squadron in France in the early spring of 1918. McCudden, Maxwell, Crowe, Rhys-Davids and all that crowd were present or past members of 56, which was the nearest thing we had to Richstoffen's circus, so I felt very set up over being sent to them. They were a luxurious crowd, and sent a car all the way down to Boulogne to meet me. We landed at the aerodrome just in time for lunch. The squadron were seated when the adjutant and I came into the mess and I was given a vacant chair about midway down the table. I found that I knew quite a few of the pilots, having met them at the ground school at Oxford or in training squadrons in England, so I didn't feel at all like a stranger.

The mess had one guest for lunch, a French pilot, who could speak no English. He had landed an hour or so before to inquire as to his whereabouts, after having been chivvied about the line by a flock of fokkers. He was, he said, an Alsatian, but had been reared and educated in Paris. His face seemed vaguely familiar, but I couldn't quite locate the memory and didn't really try, being considerably amused by his story over being pushed around the sky by that German squadron. He had two rows of decorations, and everytime he would think of those German lads he would beat on his chest and bellow.

For the next few days I was busy getting acquainted with the work and the war. Then one afternoon, Fielding Johnson and I went over to 60 squadron for tea. We found our little Frenchman a guest there. He told F. J. that he had flown up from the south to accept the invitation that Billy Crowe had extended to him when he was with us. Again there came to me the feeling that I knew this bird. It was evident that he also felt the same way about me, for he avoided getting near me, but kept staring to the point of rudeness. As soon as he decently could, he left, and F. J. and I went home.

During the next few months we had an exceedingly busy time. The war was in its final stages and air fighting on the British front was both severe and continuous. It was our job to keep the German staff blinded to the army movements, so our fighting patrol lines were established seven or eight miles back of the fighting line on the ground. Very few of the German reconnaisance machines got through our patrols to look at the lines, and fewer still got back again. There was one German squadron we could never seem to catch. They were heavy daylight bombers and they virtually made a habit of onloading a flock of bombs somewhere on the lines every morning at dawn.

A quarter of a million infantry on a 30-mile front were sqoaking about that handful of bombs, so it had to be stopped. Intelligence told us that the squadron lived on an aereodrome about 27 miles back of the German lines, near Estourmelles, so we loaded our little SE5s with four 20-pound bombs each and went over there one afternoon to give those fellows a party. It was quite a party, too, but that is another story.

On the way home I met a shell that smashed up my engine and I landed in a heap just back of a German field battery. Somewhere, during the party, a bullet had gone through my right ankle and between that and the local German intelligence people, I had a rather nauseous week before I got back to the prison cage at Fresnoy, up near Valenciennes, you know.

I had been there a couple of days when I was sent over to be interviewed by the chief intelligence officer of that district. When I went into his office, he greeted me quite cordially in English. It was our late guest. All the time he was questioning me, and it was a stiff frilling, for Fritz was very shy of information and he needed news, I kept unconsciously searching for that face. After almost two hours he decided to call it a day and let me go back to the cage. As I rose to leave, he suddenly smiled and said, "Would you like to stay for tea with me Hanks?" Then I knew him for Porky Rheinecker.

Well, we had tea together, but before we were through with it, Porky became so unpleasant in his comments on the allied armies, especially the American forces, that I rather lost my temper. He was obnoxiously boastful, as usual, and in his boasting he let drop several facts of prime importance to the allied staff, if they could find them out.

He was especially bitter toward America and blamed her for the revolution, which he said, was brewing in Germany. But it was his expressed opinion of the dumbness of the air force, though that caused me to flare up and promise him that I would break up his little spying game for him. He just grinned and said that he was glad I knew what he was doing, because he had arranged for me to be especially watched and the first time I made a break would be the last.

I think he really enjoyed that bit of mental cruelty, but that his precautions were due even more to the realization that he had talked too much himself.

There wasn't a hope in the world of making a daylight escape from the cage, which was an old brewery surrounded by a double system of wire entanglements, one on top of the wall and the other outside. It would have been comparatively easy to get out at night, even with my game foot, for the guards were abnormally careless, but Porky saw to it that as soon as it began to grow dark each day, I was confined in one of the cellars which had no windows and only one heavy door that opened directly into the guard room. Porky, the vain devil, had me over to tea with him several times during the next week, and twice told me of his visits to the British lines. He even told me how my kit had been shipped to England the day he had lunch with 56. He seemed much amused over the way the fellows speculated as to my fate. He was picking up some very valuable information, too, and through that Fritz was able to break up two major raids during the week, with a loss of over a dozen machines to us.

A couple of days after he told me about my kit, he came over to say good-bye as I was to be started up to Germany for permanent interment the following morning. He was more friendly than he had ever been, and surprised me by saying that he had arranged for me to ride into Valenciennes instead of marching with the rest of the party. The next morning the dog cart arrived nearly an hour after the others had left. Porky sent a note by the driver, saying that he hadn't sent a guard along with the driver because I couldn't get away anyway, not even with two good feet. That note was irritating, which Porky meant it to be. It gave me an idea, too, which Porky didn't intend it to do.

On the way to Valenciennes we had to pass through a wood almost a mile long and it appeared to be totally deserted when we entered it. The driver was paying no attention to me, so it was easy to slip his gun out of the open holster in which he had it, and belt him over the head with it. He curled up without a sound. Then I drove the cart into the heavy undergrowth along the creek about a hundred yards from the road, and wrapping my coat around the driver's gun to deaden the sound, I shot the horse and left both of them there.

I spent the next couple of hours creeping down that creek looking for a hiding place, where I could stay until dark. I found a tree that had fallen into the water, and forced myself under it so that the brushwood covered me completely. There I stayed in terrible misery until night. As soon as it was dark, I began working down the stream again. I dared not get out of the water for the whole area was alive with Germans. Wet through as I was, the chill October night wind made every step an agony, which was made even more unpleasant by my damaged ankle. All next day I lay curled up in a drain from an abandoned factory on the outskirts of a little village. I can smell that drain yet, but it was dry and out of the wind, so I even managed a little sleep.

The second night I reached the canal du Nord and lay hidden in the mud and weeds along the banks all the next day. I hadn't eaten a bit since I left Fresnoy, so I was quite weak when I started out that night to work my way through the lines. It turned out to be much easier than I had expected. Fritz had been pushed back so fast and so roughly that he had lost a lot of his usual keenness. The ground was literally blown to glory by the day's shelling, so there was little wire and that little was not being worked on.

Intermittent shelling was going on, and once a piece of debris, thrown by a shell that burst 10 or 12 yards away, knocked the wind out of me. Another escape came a few seconds later when a German patrol of eight or ten men passed so close that I could have touched some of them. My narrowest escape came when I reached the temporary wire in front of the British position. An American outfit, doing their trip into the lines were holding that sector and they were nervous.

When I hailed the trenches, about six machine guns answered me. I guess Fritz thought a raid was coming, for he started throwing everything he owned in that direction. It was quite a while before the row quieted down and the Americans sent out a patrol to count the dead and wounded. They were rather disgusted when they found me. After we got into the trench it took a lot of persuasion to convince the tubby little major in command of the sector to send me along back to a British unit. I really didn't blame him for doubting that I was an officer; I wouldn't have blamed him for doubting that I was human either.

In the end he gave me a whacking big drink and sent me back to the batteries, which were British. There I was fed and got a wash of sorts before starting out. Between suspicious brigadiers and divisional staff Johnnies, it was almost noon before I reached the headquarters of Longcroft's brigade of the air forces. After congratulations, both verbal and liquid, more liquid than verbal, I bathed and the staff having loaned me enough clothes to get on with, the general sent me over to Valheureux aerodrome in his own car. The first thing I saw when I got out of the car in front of 56 squadron office was a big briguet with French markings, standing on the tarmac. I didn't even dismiss the general's driver, but went straight to my flight hangar. Sergeant Webster was there and after his first surprise at seeing me, he said that the Frenchman had come in some hours earlier and was down in the mess. I ordered Webster to render the briguet unflyable and started for the mess.

When I walked in, somebody let out a yell and for a minute or so there was a row that brought tears to my eyes. When the fellows quieted down again I saw the French aviator, who hadn't moved out of his seat. He was very pale and was nervously playing with his empty glass, most of the contents of which he had spilled on the table. It was Porky, of course. I walked over to him and he forced the thinnest sort of a smile. The same sort of smile he wore as a boy when he was losing top place in a competition.

"Well, Herr Hauptmann Rheinecker, it is an unexpected pleasure to meet you here."

"I am surprised myself," he said in English, and you could hear the gasp go round the table, "I told the fool who started to take you to Valenciennes that he was to kill you in the wood and report that you had attempted to escape."

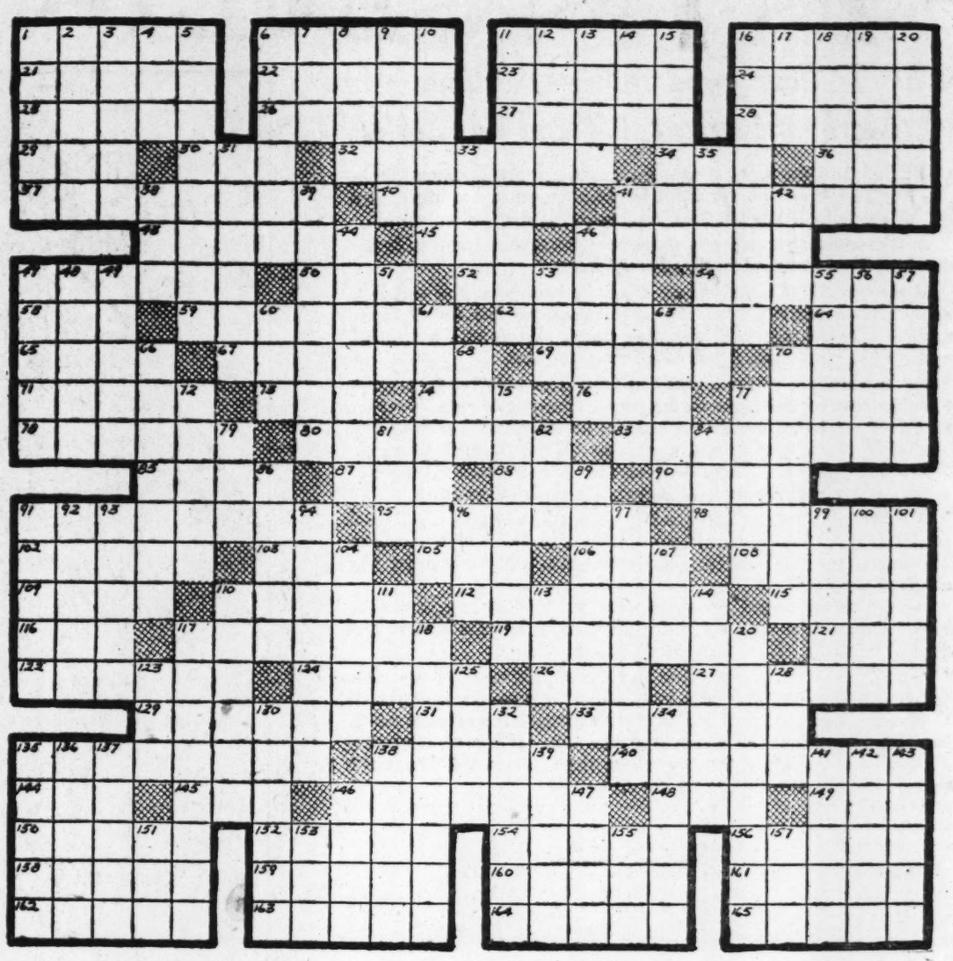

I introduced Waldemar to the mess and told them his story. They all congratulated him on his bravery, and even allowed him to have the run of the mess until headquarters could send an escort after him. He asked if we would notify his people of his capture and the major agreed that if he would write a note to his chief that we would drop it on one of the German aerodromes next day.

It was dinner time before a staff officer came down to gather him in. I told him something of the things Porky had told me, so he decided to take him to GHQ instead of questioning him at the squadron. Porky had been very sulky, in fact he had been most infernally rude all afternoon. He had told me not less than a dozen times that they wouldn't get anything out of him. In fact, whenever he thought of being a prisoner he either burst into profanity or fairly wept with rage. What a lather the fellow was in. But it was not so much from patriotism but because he, Porky, had been caught.

We asked the brass hat and Porky to stay for dinner, even though we were getting fed up with his wailing. All during the meal he was in a nasty, snarling humor and hopelessly unpleasant. When the port went round, he rather surprised us by standing to a very rigid attention while the king's health was drunk by the mess. As we sat down, he turned to the major and with a "May I?" drank his port to Der Tag, or something Deutch. I missed it in the russel of the mess rising. As we sat again, Porky still on his feet, turned to me and snarled: "Once you beat me, but this time you do not win, my American pig. Even if your luck has ruined my plans."

He dropped into his chair and rolled off onto the floor dead.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle.

AUNT HET

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

"I SEE in the papers where one o' these Smart Aleck writers says men is naturally more modest than women.

"The trouble with him is, he don't know the difference between modesty an' shame.

"I remember when golf first got epidemic I'd hear women talkin' about their husbands hatin' to undress before other men in the locker rooms. You'd think they was too modest to let strangers see their figures, but I noticed them that had the worst cases o' modesty had the laziest wives. The thing they didn't want to show was holes in their socks.

'Modest, my eye! It ain't modesty that makes a man dread undressin' for a doctor when he's got on ragged underclothes an' his feet need washin'. It's a guilty conscience.

"If a woman don't make no bones about such things, it's because she's fixed for it an' ain't got nothin' to hide. I've been too modest to try on shoes, too, but it was because I hadn't planned for it when I left home an' knowed I had a hole in my stockin'.

"Men an' women ain't much different. The knock-kneed, paunchy ones blushes at the thought o' bein' seen naked, but you find one built like a $300 mule an' put him in a bathin' suit where gals are an' he's a bank-walker ever' time."

Amazing Career of the Coffee Bean

COFFEE, not coal, may soon haul passengers and freight on Brazilian trains. After dumping tons of coffee into the ocean and burning other tons to avert a crash in the coffee market, Brazilian government officials announce that coffee will be pressed into bricks and tried out as fuel in locomotives.

"Coffee is a prolific stepchild of Brazil, for the original home of the coffee plant is Ethiopia," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Goat Started the Coffee Ball Rolling.

"But coffee has by no means been given the proverbial treatment of a stepchild," continues the bulletin. "Its beans have been fondled to build up enormous fortunes, cities, towns and railroads. The coffee bean started its world-wide rambling from the Ethiopian hills centuries ago. Tradition has it that its stimulating effect was discovered by a priest when he investigated the plants consumed by his herd of goats because the animals refused to take their proper rest. His tests led to the cultivation of the coffee plant.

"Shortly after its discovery, coffee 'jumped' the Red sea and began sprouting along the southern coast of Arabia, home of the famous Mocha coffee. In the 15th century, the aroma of coffee rose from European coffee pots and when colonization got under way in the West Indies and South America, coffee beans were among some of the early cargoes from Europe.

"There are about 80 species of coffee, but only a few are cultivated for commerce. The cinchona tree, from the bark of which quinine is produced, is one of coffee's botanic relatives. So is gambier, which furnishes tanning material and dyes that bear the same name.

Moslems Banned Use of Coffee.

"In its meteoric rise coffee has had its ups and downs. Its first use was in the form of a paste which was eaten. Moslems, prohibited from drinking wine, took to coffee. Moslem leaders, upon learning coffee's stimulating effect, called a meeting at Mecca and banned its use in 1511. Fanatics burned the coffee warehouses, raided the coffee houses and beat the shop proprietors with their brewing utensils.

"The ban lasted only 13 years in Egypt, where Sultan Selim denounced it, and further impressed his feeling upon his subjects by executing two Persian doctors who warned against coffee drinking. Egypt now is among the world's leading coffee consumers. Some Egyptian peoples even use the beverage in connection with religious rites.

Plantations Mark Every Continent.

"A 'Coffee map' would show that nearly all coffee is grown between the tropics of Cancer and Capricorn. All Central America, and a wide coastal rim around the northwest shoulder of South America, including Ecuador, Bolivia and Peru on the Pacific, and Colombia, the Guianas on the Atlantic and southern Mexico are large producing areas. Plantations also dot Jamaica, Haiti, Porto Rico and Santo Domingo.

"Liberia, Sierra Leone, portions of southern Nigeria and the coastal zones of the Belgian Congo, Angola, Mozambique, Kenya, Ethiopia and Madagascar are the African coffee regions, while the Arabian Peninsula, the southern tip of India and Ceylon are the coffee regions of Asia. Queensland, Australia's 'sugar bowl' state, is also its 'coffee can,' while coffee berries brought from Liberia have made Java a synonym for good coffee. Java's neighboring islands also are developing the coffee industry.

"The world's leading coffee-producing region is a pear-shaped district on the Atlantic coast of Brazil, in the 'backyard' of Rio de Janeiro. The prosperity of Sao Paulo state rises and falls with the rise and fall of the coffee industry. Coffee built its fine modern capital, which bears the name of the state, its excellent railroad system and its good roads. The railroad leading from Sao Paulo, the so-called coffee capital of the world, to Santos, the world's greatest coffee port, is one of the richest steel highways in the world because it is literally a coffee funnel with the small end of the funnel set in ships' holds at Santos."

SPRING SUITS AND SMART BLOUSES

Chic Tailleurs and High Waistlines Mark the Current Trend in Styles

SPRING and the Easter suit—the words are almost synonymous, for there hasn't been a Spring season yet when the importance of the tailleur has not been emphasized in the fashion world.

Today we offer you a group of the very latest suits and the blouses that have been designed to accompany them.

At the immediate right you see a strictly tailored suit of soft blue wool. Cut on military lines, it is double-breasted and darted at the waist to give the new high waistline effect. Worn with a scarf of oyster white roshanara, it makes a jaunty costume.

Just in case you prefer a coat and frock ensemble for your wardrobe, we have included one on the page. The coat of green Venetian wool features a diagonal weave and has luxurious cuffs of blue fox. The wide revers can be worn open or closed. It also shows the high-waisted closing. The silk frock that is worn beneath this coat is shown in the group below. It, too, has raglan sleeves.

A silver fox scarf, with its head fastened at the left, collars a black wool suit that has a rounded jacket, nipped in at the high waistline. The sleeves reveal pleats from elbow to wrist, held together by tiny straps of the wool.

Below, on the seated figure, you see the brocaded eggshell satin blouse draped into a tie at the neck that tucks into the high-waisted skirt of this suit. Note the clever pointed yoke.

A very dressy suit of Clearview blue lightweight wool has a peplum jacket and wide sleeves. The large collar of gray fox is extremely flattering. And the figure below at the extreme left wears the matching flat crepe blouse to accompany this suit. It has an interesting draped neckline and it, too, tucks into the high-waisted skirt which crosses in back and buttons on the side.

High-Waisted Effects Are the Newest Order of the Day

THE seated Figure at the Lower Left Wears a Flat Crepe Blouse in Clearview Blue to Accompany the Suit of the Same Color Above. The Blouse Has a Draped Neckline and Tucks Into the High-Waisted Skirt. The Black Wool Suit with Silver Fox Cuffs Has a Flat Crepe Blouse of Bright Green Printed in a Leaf Pattern in Black and White. The Frock of Venetian Green Flat Crepe That Goes with the Coat of the Same Color Has the New Wide Raglan Shoulders, a Draped Bodice and Cleverly Seamed Skirt. The Last Blouse in This Group Is of Brocaded Eggshell Satin and Drapes Into a Tie at the Back and Tucks Into the Wool Skirt of the Black Suit Shown in the Standing Group.
